Steel Prices Are Boosted Throughout Industry

$5 a Ton Rise Hits Highest in Years, Adding Millions To Nation's Bills

Higher Costs Cited

By William D. Horgan

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Steel makers boosted prices on an industry-wide front today.

The higher prices will add millions of dollars to the Nation's steel bills and may be the forerunners of still further advances.

Some quarters suggested the mark-ups anticipated demands for higher wages expected from the United Steel Workers Union (CIO). Others cited higher costs.

Steel is a key raw material in our highly industrialized economy. Price increases, large or small, may finally affect the cost of automobiles, hairpins, refrigerators and the hundreds of other products containing steel.

Increases Announced

Large steel producers today announced increases of about $5 a ton in the cost of billets, blooms and slabs, products known as semi-finished steel. New prices were the highest in years.

United States Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., the two largest steel makers in the world, were among those who first disclosed the higher prices. They were followed by other steel giants such as Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., Inland Steel Corp. and Republic Steel Corp.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., operating subsidiary of United States Steel, said forging grades of blooms, billets and slabs were boosted from $35 per gross ton to $54 per net ton. That was a round-about way of saying the price had increased $4.89 a net ton. Rolling grades of steel were also advanced.

First to be affected by the higher prices will be non-integrated steel processors who make finished steel products from semi-finished steel. Much of this production is in the form of heavy castings and forgings. These processors, who use only a fraction of total production of semi-finished steel, will find their costs increased about $10,000,000 annually, according to an estimate by the Iron Age, authoritative trade publication.

More Raises Likely

The big steel companies, although selling a portion of their semi-finished steel output to so-called outside companies, process the bulk of it themselves. Higher prices for these integrated companies would be expressed in their finished products such as sheets and strips of steel. Only a few companies have announced such increases, although it was considered at least likely that the major producers would follow suit.

Oxnam Defended As Washington's Birthday Speaker

Morristown, N. J., Feb. 19 (AP).—The Washington Association said today it would stand pat on the selection of Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam as its Washington's Birthday speaker despite objections by the local Catholic Church.

Msgr. John J. Sheerin of St. Margaret's Church had objected to the selection on the contention that Bishop Oxnam has been affiliated with organizations now being investigated as possible "Communist-front groups" by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Thermometer Is Due to Act More Normal

High to Be in 40s Today; Yesterday's 72 Is Near Record

Cooler temperatures were descending on Washington last night after two days of Miami-type weather.

The Weatherman said temperatures would drop to the upper 30s here this morning and will remain mostly in the 40s during the day. In addition to being cooler, the day will be windy and there will be some clouds. Tomorrow will be cloudy and cold.

This will hardly be freezing weather but may seem frigid by contrast with the balmy peaks reached Wednesday and yesterday.

Yesterday the mercury reached 72 at 2:25 p. m., just a shade short of the 74 which stands as a record for February 19. This record was set in 1939. Yesterday's lowest temperature was 39, registered at 4:44 a. m.

Wednesday's high of 70 was also two notches shy of the all-time record for the date.

The springlike weather may have been pleasing to most residents, but to firefighters it meant a rash of brush fires. Here in Washington, firemen answered 10 brush fire calls between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

And in the four suburban counties, more than 60 alarms of fires were reported, most of them brush blazes.

Prince Georges County alone reported 30 alarms during the day, 22 attributed to burning brush. In

$480 Pay Rise Proposed for U. S. Workers

Temporary Increase Urged in House Bill; $1000 Boost Opposed

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Federal pay-raise campaign yesterday brought these developments:

1. A bill by Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee, to give temporary cost-of-living increases of $480 a year to most Government workers.

2. A serious split in the Senate Civil Service Committee over the flat $1000 increase bill, and.

3. An unconfirmed report that the Administration will soon unveil its own pay-raise plan.

The Rees bill would be retroactive to January 1 and would remain in effect until July 1, 1949. It would continue the present $10,000 ceiling on Classification Act salaries and no employe could be paid more than $10,000 as a result of the $480 increase.

Postal employes and Federal workers whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act would be included in the Rees bill. Hourly and part-time employes would receive an increase of 25 cents an hour under it.

Chairman Rees will begin public hearings before his committee next Wednesday. His will be among the 40-odd bills now before the committee that will be considered at that time. Rees promised "full consideration" of all the various pay measures.

The Senate split developed after it had been announced that a number of Senators had agreed to support the Langer bill to give most Federal workers at least a $1000 flat increase. Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.) who was listed as a supporter, told the Senate:

"I am not in favor of a general over-all increase as proposed in this bill. I think we should make a very careful study of the Federal salary structure all along the line and then grant increases com-

Stopgap Rent Control Act Scheduled

Measure Will Give Congress Time to Draft Compromise Long-Range Plan

By The Associated Press

Rent controls in their present form will be extended through March 31, Congress leaders indicated yesterday. A longer extension providing some increases is slated to be approved before then.

This is the schedule outlined by Republican floor managers:

1. The House will pass by next Tuesday its stopgap bill extending the present law which expires February 29. The Rules Committee cleared it for action yesterday.

2. This measure is due to be accepted by the Senate before the end of next week without change.

Chance For Compromise

By this arrangement Senate and House leaders gain added time in which to work out a compromise between their two longer range bills.

Today the Senate opens debate on its measure which would continue controls 14 months beyond February 29. One of its provisions permits abandoning ceilings on so-called "luxury" houses and apartments—that is, rents of $225 or more per month.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) has said the Senate Republican Policy Committee favors a longer extension, but not necessarily the 14-month plan drafted by the Banking Committee. He said he expects several amendments will be offered from the floor when debate starts today.

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) indicated opposition to the "luxury" provision. He told a reporter "high-rent tenants are just as much entitled to protection as those in the lower income brackets."

Woods Confirmation Held Up

He said he also will seek to strike out a clause in the Senate bill ending rent control on rooms in private homes. Ives said this would cause hardship for thousands of college students.

The Senate bill also would permit rent increases up to 15 per cent in cases where tenants and landlords agreed on a lease running through 1949. Higher rents would be allowed landlords who prove they are losing money.

The House long-range bill is still in process of formulation.

Meanwhile the Senate Banking Committee delayed action again on the nomination of Tighe E. Woods as Federal housing expediter. Members indicated they want to wait until Congress acts on rent controls so they can question him on his ideas of administering the law.

Rising Temperature Cracks Whisky Bottles

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP).—The recent warm-up in the weather was apparently rapid enough to crack whisky bottles, with a resultant loss of blended rye.

Before the mishap was discovered, the contents had run out of half a dozen bottles that had been standing in a store window through the recent cold weather. The high temperature was the only apparent cause.

Truman Calls Campaign Issue 'Liberalism vs. Conservatism'; South's 'Revolt' Mars Harmony

President Appears at Two Party Dinners As Democrats Gather for Nationwide Fight

Jefferson-Jackson Dinners Open Democrats Drive To Retain Power

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman, opening the Democratic Party's 1948 campaign, said last night the paramount issue was "progressive liberalism" versus "conservatism."

"This is a year of challenge," he said. "I propose that we meet the challenge head on.

"The people will again decide whether they want the forces of positive, progressive liberalism to continue in office, or whether, in these challenging times, they want to entrust their Government to those forces of conservatism which believe in the benefit of the few at the expense of the many."

'Reactionary' Forces Assailed

Addressing his cohorts at a $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner in the Mayflower, Mr. Truman hailed his own Democratic Party as "the party of progressive liberalism in the United States."

He did not mention the Republican Party when talking about "conservatism." So far as his audience was concerned, he didn't have to. Neither was it necessary to use a label when he struck out at the "reactionary quarters" that criticized his state of the Union message.

"These men who live in the past," Mr. Truman said, "remind me of a toy I'm sure all of you have seen.

"The toy is a small wooden bird called the 'Floogie Bird.' Around the Floogie Bird's neck is a label reading: 'I fly backwards. I don't know where I'm going. I just want to see where I've been.'"

The Chief Executive denounced such people as "timid men with little ideas."

The speech, which an overflow gathering in the Statler followed by television, was billed in advance as "conciliatory" from a party standpoint, and so it was.

Mr. Truman, although he spoke of social justice, did not mention his 10-point civil liberties program aimed at Jim Crowism, which earlier had infuriated politicians in the South.

He did not mention Henry A. Wallace either, and thereby seemingly left the door open for the Wallace third-party people if they ever care to return.

Silent on Candidacy

Mr. Truman continued to remain silent on the question of his own candidacy in '48, but all those on hand apparently took it for granted that his hat was in the ring.

The President, the First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman first went to the Statler part of the night's double-header. There they had dinner, and later went to the Mayflower.

Miss Truman had agreed to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the Statler. However, she begged off, saying she had the "bane of singers—laryngitis."

After the diners, at her suggestion, sang the anthem themselves, Margaret said:

"Thanks. That's much better than I could have done."

Miss Truman wore an emerald green gown of taffeta; the First Lady a black lace dress with a white orchid at the shoulder.

Truman Warns Against 'Bunch of Reactionaries'

By The Associated Press

President Truman said last night that conditions are too grave to turn the Government over to a "bunch of reactionaries."

The President, speaking extemporaneously to Jefferson-Jackson Day celebrants, told them it was up to the workers of the Democratic Party to see that the country goes in the right direction to get world peace.

The President said that if the voter knows the truth, he will "not turn the Government over to a bunch of reactionaries who will take the country back to 1896."

We must make the United Nations work, he said at one point. At another point he asserted that "I can't trust these reactionaries."

Soviet Trains U. S. Traitors, Bulgar Says

America No. 1 Target Of Reds, Dimitrov Tells House Probers

Post Reporter

American "quislings" are being trained in Moscow to take over the United States, "target No. 1" of the Communist totalitarians, an exiled Bulgarian political leader told Congress yesterday.

George M. Dimitrov, head of Bulgaria's Agrarian Union, who fled from that country in 1945, after the Communists took over there, warned against "the Bolshevist conspiracy" in testimony before the House Committee on un-American Activities.

America, rich and sturdy "fortress of democracy," is the inevitable, eventual target of the Reds, Dimitrov said, because while this country maintains its form of government the Soviet government cannot control the world.

Soviet Official Quoted

Even before Germany was defeated, the former Bulgarian leader declared, the Soviet government was preparing to turn against its present allies.

He quoted a Soviet representative as telling him:

"The end of the conflict with Germany means the beginning of another one with the western plutocrats. Can it be that we should wait until they have entrenched themselves in Europe again, and have deprived us of it once more?

"Nothing really will have been accomplished, and no victory will have been won by us, until the heads of the British and American imperialism have been smashed."

Before Dimitrov fled from Bulgaria he lived for three months under the protection of Maynard

Empty Table Is Reminder of Southern Anger

By Merriman Smith
United Press Reporter

President Truman opened the 1948 Democratic campaign Thursday night under clouds of a revolt by Southern conservatives and loss of the left wing to Henry A. Wallace's third party.

As Mr. Truman spoke before Democratic hosts at the Statler-Mayflower dinners, directly in front of his rostrum was the sole empty table at the main dinner—a silent reminder of the Southern threat. It bore the notation, "Table 23; reserved for Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) and party."

Johnson said earlier the empty seats would serve as "monuments" to the Southerners' injured feelings.

[Mrs. Johnston, a vice chairman of the dinner committee, announced Wednesday night that she was cancelling her reservation because of a "no segregation" policy at the dinner. She said other Southerners were doing likewise.—Editor's Note.]

The President was billed for a

"harmony" plea, and high-placed Democrats saw plenty of need for more harmony than the party has shown in recent weeks if it is to re-elect Mr. Truman and win back control of Congress next November.

Aside from the Southern rebellion, the Democratic high command is squirming over the trouncing that a Wallace-backed American Laborite handed the Democratic candidate in Tuesday's special congressional election in New York's Twenty-fourth District.

The Dixie revolt turned into a virtual boycott of the Washington dinners. While the Southern Democrats here refused to admit there was any such concerted movement afoot, a United Press poll showed a lot of them stayed away.

But national Democratic headquarters said it had no evidence of any flood of cancellations.

Some of the Southerners merely said they had other plans, were attending their own State dinners at a later date, or just hadn't arranged to go under any circumstances.

Others were more blunt. They

Tamm Defends Kansas City Probe by FBI

Court Nominee Takes Responsibility for Any 'Shortcomings'

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Edward Allen Tamm yesterday stanchly defended FBI handling of the Kansas City vote fraud case, but took personal responsibility for any "shortcomings and derelictions."

Tamm was the sole witness in a three-hour Senate Judiciary Subcommittee hearing on his nomination to be associate justice of the District Court here. The hearing will continue at 7 p. m. Monday when Tamm's opponents—including spokesmen for the District and American Bar Associations and Federation of Citizens Associations—are to be heard.

Through most of yesterday's hearing, Tamm was under cross-examination by Subcommittee Chairman Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) on his agency's role in investigating reported violations in the Kansas City primary election of 1946. Tamm is assistant to the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Sitting with the subcommittee part of the time was Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) who had been selected by Senate Republican leaders to probe further into the Kansas City case this year as chairman of a Senate Expenditures Subcommittee.

Ferguson Praises Tamm

Ferguson told reporters he did not want his presence at the hearing to be interpreted as critical of Tamm. "I'm interested in Tamm's appointment," he said. "I've always considered him an efficient, high grade, reputable man."

At the same time, Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) told reporters that the Senate Expenditures Committee, of which he is chairman, will decide whether Ferguson's subcommittee is to look into the Kansas City case. No such committee decision has been made, he said, and the case is in the air. He pointed out that Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) has moved to reconsider Senate allotment of $125,000 for the work of the Ferguson subcommittee. Lucas, now out of town, is expected back Wednesday, and Senate action on

India Accepting Gandhi Death In Spirit Free of Violence

By Margaret Parton

New Delhi, Feb. 19 (NYHT).—The people of India have accepted the death of Mohandas K. Gandhi in a mood of atonement and soul-searching, rather than revenge.

The searchlight of interest has swept on toward the future, toward memorials which would preserve Gandhi's teachings, toward ways in which the people of India can prove they have accepted his principles.

In general, the public has accepted the abstract concept that a spirit of religious hatred, rather than a single individual, was responsible for Gandhi's death.

The police have banned news of the investigation of the slaying. For the press and people, Nathuram Vinayak Godse, the alleged assassin has become a forgotten man. This attitude has not only been encouraged by the authorities, who do not want the young man to become a publicized martyr, but is deeply in keeping with the present mood in India.

Two days ago The National Call reported that "nearly all the men behind the conspiracy to assassinate Gandhi are now in custody."

Aside from a few similar items during the last two weeks, there appears to have been a blackout on news about Godse, and the country-wide conspiracy to kill top Congress Party leaders.

'One in Million' Circumstances

Fumes of Car Parked Ahead Blamed for Unusual Death

A chain of circumstances that "could have happened only once in a million years," caused the strange death on February 6 of John L. Sprague, Indian Head, Md., tavern keeper, police asserted yesterday.

Sprague, 39-year-old former District police detective sergeant, was found dead in his parked car in the 1200 block of Good Hope rd. se., about 6:30 a. m. Death at first was attributed to natural causes.

Yesterday, however, Lieut. Edgar E. Scott, of the homicide squad, reported Sprague's death resulted from exhaust fumes seeping into his car from a taxi parked bumper-to-bumper in front of him. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald's findings were the same.

Lieutenant Scott explained the "once in a million years" chain of circumstances this way:

Cab Driver Norman B. Muddiman, 40, of 827 53d st., Hillside, Md., parked his vehicle in front of Sprague's Buick about 4 a. m., raced his engine to increase the heater's warmth, and fell asleep.

Then, Scott said, ensued "many

Judge Explains Statement

Fay Demands Scott Produce 'Facts' in Criticism on Bonds

United States Attorney George Morris Fay yesterday asked Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott for "facts" in the judge's accusation that his office "schemed" to protect a bondsman.

In a hotly worded letter, Fay also demanded that the jurist retract "calumny" voiced against two members of the district attorney's staff.

Judge Scott quickly commented that he has "no idea of retracting . . . statements made Monday," but he added he never intended to "impugn the integrity of these two men."

Judge Scott early this week angrily refused to approve the Government prosecution's dismissal of four of five charges against a bonded defendant who failed to appear for trial. Quashing of the charges would save the bondsman $800.

"The district attorney's office is not only protecting the bondsman, but indirectly is aiding the absconder," the judge declared. He refused, he said, "to be a party to

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Dr. George M. Dimitrov

Dr. George M. Dimitrov, 45-year-old Bulgarian political exile who yesterday told the House Un-American Activities Committee that Communists have marked the United States as their No. 1 target, qualifies as a genuine democrat.

Dimitrov

The proof? When Fascists seized control of Bulgaria in 1934, he was denounced as a Communist and twice sentenced to death. When Communists took over in 1945 he was labeled a Fascist and again condemned to death.

Dr. Dimitrov, a physician and X-ray specialist, once served in the Bulgarian Parliament and is former secretary general of his country's Agrarian Party. He escaped the most recent death decree with the help of a United States diplomat.

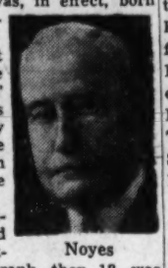
Exiled in the Near East during the war years, Dr. Dimitrov returned to Bulgaria in September, 1944. He was arrested in April, 1945, after the Communists had gained control of the government.

He escaped and was given refuge in the home of Maynard Barnes, United States diplomatic representative in Sofia then. He reached this country early in 1946.

The Dimitrovs, who live at the Cathedral Mansions, 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., had to leave their two children, Alexander, 13, and Sophie, 10, behind them. Now the Communists will not allow them to leave.

Frank Brett Noyes

Frank Brett Noyes, only surviving founder of the world's largest news-gathering agency, the Associated Press, was, in effect, born into The Evening Star.



Noyes

In 1855, eight years before Frank Noyes' birth here, his father, Crosby S. Noyes, came to Washington as editor of The Star.

When President Garfield was assassinated in 1881, Frank, then 18, was selling copies of the news across the Star's business counter.

When he was named this week as chairman of the Evening Star Co's board of directors, after nearly two-score years as president of the company, Frank Noyes' proudest claim was that he was still "a newspaperman."

Some of his views are summed up in such statements as, "A newspaperman is first a gentleman before he is a newspaperman. If the two conflict, he should give up his journalistic activities."

And: "News must be nonpartisan in its highest sense; must have no tinge of bias, whether political, economic or religious. It must neither advocate nor oppose causes . . ."

George Morris Fay

Chief law-enforcement officer for Washington, a resident of Maryland and a legal voter in Pennsylvania—that is George Morris Fay's geographical paradox.

Fay

Fay, native Pennsylvanian, Georgetown University graduate, former Justice Department attorney and former Navy officer, became one of the Nation's youngest United States attorneys with his appointment in 1946.

Today, at 38, he appears almost as youthful as when he was running the telephone switchboard at Georgetown to work his way through law school.

A native of Pittston, Pa., he came to Washington in 1927.

His law career began as executive assistant to Attorney General Tom C. Clark. During the war he served with the Navy and also worked with the Joint Congressional Pearl Harbor Committee.

He married Dorothy M. Donovan, daughter of a prominent Washington attorney, William H. Donovan, in 1936. With their three children, they live at 7124 Closter rd. nw., in Montgomery County.

'Voice' Soon Will Add 8 Languages to Its 23

The Voice of America is going to start speaking in eight more languages soon.

Officials let this be known yesterday after learning that Congress appears likely to put up at least 30 million dollars to meet Russian and other anti-American propaganda.

The Government's official short-wave radio now broadcasts in 23 languages.

The new ones to be added will be mostly those of the Middle East and northern European "critical areas" bordering Russia. They are Arabic, Turkish, Iranian, Finnish, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish and Dutch.

the investigating money is likely next week.

The vote fraud case arose from the Democratic primary in Kansas City when Enos Axtell defeated former Representative Roger Slaughter but then lost the election to Representative Albert L. Reeves, jr., (R., Mo.). President Truman backed Axtell over Slaughter.

Memorandum to Hoover

While Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) launched a drive to probe the Justice Department handling of the case, a grand jury indicted 72 persons, but 66 were freed when ballots held for evidence were stolen. The other six are waiting trial.

In quizzing Tamm, Senator Donnell hammered hard at the question of why the FBI failed initially to carry out the instructions of the Attorney General covering the investigation of the Kansas City elections.

Donnell cited the memorandum of October 21, 1946, from Attorney General Tom Clark to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover requesting that the FBI interview the four members of the Kansas City election board, two reporters for the Kansas City Star and "such other" employes of the newspaper as took part in the investigation.

Donnell then charged the FBI took it upon itself not to follow the Attorney General's instructions by failing to interview the "other" newspaper investigators.

Tamm said the "others" were later interviewed and gave no information beyond what was in the newspaper files. He cited the January 6, 1947, memorandum to the FBI from Assistant Attorney General Theron L. Caudle saying, "The investigation in this case was thorough, and we concluded that there was no certain basis for prosecution of anyone for election fraud conspiracy . . . We are closing our file, and informing you that no further investigation is desired."

When Donnell asked for Tamm's opinion, as lawyer and candidate for the bench, on whether the FBI investigation was full and complete, Tamm declared only that it complied substantially with the Attorney General's request for a preliminary investigation.

Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) took up the same line of questions. At one point Tamm declared that in the light of later developments he would have made a further investigation than was made in Kansas City, if he had been there. But, he added, it would not be fair to the agent in charge in Kansas City "to say now what I would have done then."

Tamm said, "It was my responsibility to see that the Attorney General's instructions were carried out."

If he had known the "other" newspaper investigators were not interviewed before the report was made, Tamm said he would have brought it to Hoover's attention.

"I feel a personal responsibility for certain shortcomings and derelictions which have been brought to light by subsequent developments," said Tamm.

"I feel I am personally responsible for embarrassment to Mr. Hoover which shouldn't have been his."

Atomic Project Easy to Enter, Army 'Spy' Says

New York, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Norbert Gagen, a former soldier, said today in Varsity Magazine that he broke into Oak Ridge in 1943 every day for a week and stole atom bomb papers each time.

Using a gold badge he bought in a pawn shop to get past guards, he stole documents, took pictures, prepared maps, compiled notes, asked questions and wrote a report on Oak Ridge a half-inch thick, he said.

Gagen was an Army Counter Intelligence Corps agent. His job was to break into Oak Ridge to test security precautions. He did it so often the guards began to salute him, he said.

Gagen said that in the summer of 1945 he and another CIC agent delivered the atom bombs that were dropped on Japan to the West Coast.

"There were just two of us riding the boxcar carrying the bomb—just an ordinary-looking boxcar," he said. "A horde of armed soldiers would have caused attention—and attention might have attracted saboteurs."

factors which had to be just as they were: for instance, the wind had to be just right, vents through which the carbon monoxide passed had to be open, Sprague had to have all his windows closed, and so on."

Muddiman, who had no idea what had happened, woke about 5:30 a. m., walked to a nearby restaurant for breakfast, returned about an hour later and discovered Sprague. He then notified police.

Scott said the tavern keeper, who retired from the District Police Force in 1944 after eight years service, operated the Club Maryland in Indian Head. In Washington on business, he had apparently parked that morning for a nap before returning to the Maryland town.

Coroner MacDonald's report was based on a two-day series of "atmospheric analysis" tests conducted by industrial hygienists under the direction of Peter J. Valaler of the District of Columbia Health Department's bureau of public health engineering.

Detective Sergts. Richard J. Felber and George W. Cook, in charge of the police investigation, called the hygienists in when an autopsy revealed Sprauge had died of carbon monoxide. The tests re-enacted the cars' positions and circumstances of Sprague's death, conclusively proving the police theory, Scott said.

Maternity Pay Bill to Cover Unwed Cases

Unmarried expectant mothers will be included in a bill now before Congress providing maternity leave with pay for women employes of the Government.

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) yesterday said he would so amend his bill after hearing several witnesses approve the suggestion at a hearing of the Senate Civil Service Committee, which he heads.

Langer introduced the proposed law a year ago today. In it, he asked that expectant mothers be allowed 60 days' maternity leave—apart from any annual or sick leave—on presentation of a doctor's certificate and at full pay.

Langer said he wrote the bill without covering unwed women because he thought it would be more acceptable that way. After hearing the favorable testimony, however, he announced he would add an amendment.

Dr. Herbert P. Ramsey, professor at the George Washington University medical school and an American Medical Association official, said he thought there was a great social need for the law.

Truman Says Campaign Issue Is Liberalism Vs. Conservatism

laughter when he talked of Republicans as "specimens" and outlined methods of dealing with them. He told how the Department of Agriculture helped develop an insect eradicator called DDT.

Dose of "HST" Recommended

Then he recommended a good dose of "HST," certain to be lethal to all Republican hopefuls. He added: "This product we guarantee: To control the GOP, use HST, for HST is Harry S. Truman."

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas of California brought the Statler gathering to its feet, yelling, when she said: "In this year of our Lord, 1948, one of the great parties will select a President.

"The President must come from the Democratic Party.

"That President will be Harry S. Truman."

Amid the cheering, one bull-voiced Democrat yelled, "Don't forget New York!"

This was a reference to Tuesday's victory of a Wallace-backed candidate in the Bronx, due largely to the fact that many Democrats failed to vote.

Historical Review

In a historical review, "Democracy Through the Years," the Justine Lawrie quartette sang a lot of old-time melodies. One of them was "Oh, Susanna," which was Alf Landon's theme song in the GOP campaign of '36.

The review ended with a roll of drums, a flourish of trumpets and the sudden appearance of a troupe of men and girls carrying campaign placards.

Another read: "Georgia—Don't change horses now."

Still another proclaimed: "New Jersey—2 to 1 for Harry Truman."

In his 2500-word speech at the Mayflower, Mr. Truman made it clear that he and the Democratic strategists think that the "Hoover panic," as the lat Charley Michelson used to call it, is good for one more unveiling as a campaign issue.

He mentioned the 1929 crash several times, always against the background of the fight that Jefferson, Jackson, Wilson and Roosevelt made against "the forces of selfish wealth and privilege."

He pictured the American worker in 1932 "either unemployed or expecting to be unemployed," with his home saddled with debt, his children being drawn into the sweatshops, and left only with the "hope that somehow the American system would find a way to lif him out of the depths of despair and desolation."

Increase Wages Cited

The President insisted that "that way was found, under the leadership of the party of progressive liberalism—the Democratic Party," and he pointed to the increase in the employed from 39 millions in 1933 to a peak of 60 millions in 1947. He added, too, that average weekly earnings in manufacturing rose from $15 a week to $51 a week in the same period.

He went on:

"Yet, when I say that we should enact a 75-cent minimum wage now; when I say that we can reach 64 million jobs within the next 10 years; when I say we can lift our standard of living by another 27 per cent in that time—when I say these things, again we hear the same old refrain, 'It can't be done.'"

As for business, Mr. Truman referred to what he said had happened to it "under the tender custody of a ractionary administration, which some of the elder statesmen of the stock exchange politely called 'conservative and prudent.'"

Business Earnings Pointed Out

"I know that a small minority of businessmen, who are profoundly mistaken, harbor the thought that a liberal-minded Government is hostile to them," he said. In contradiction he declared that "in 1933, corporations went into the red to the tune of 400 million dollars, after taxes. By 1940, they were earning 6½ billion dollars, after taxes. By 1947, they earned 17 billion dollars, after taxes."

"Looking at the record," he said, "I should think businessmen would want more of that kind of hostility."

The President denounced Republican policies in the dozen years following World War I, saying the GOP "in their reckless pursuit of immediate profits encouraged economic policies that drained off so much in profits at the top—and allowed so little in wages to run out at the bottom—that the whole system broke down in 1929."

Those experiences, he said, teach that:

"Government run for the benefit of the few will inevitably destory all.

"Government run for the good of all will benefit all."

He made little reference to the wave of high prices but said at one point:

"In the interest of business as much as any other group, we must win the fight against inflation to avoid disaster. In the interest of business as much as any other group, we must make the next 10 years a period of extraordinary achievement.

"The timid people say that this can't be done.

"I say that it can be done, and we of the forward-looking faith must dedicate ourselves to the proposition that it will be done."

Ten-Year Program

He concluded:

"The 10-year program that I have outlined for American prosperity is founded on our faith in the ability of the American people to plan their future boldly and to move forward steadfastly toward their goals.

"If anyone chooses to call this politics, then it is the politics of Jefferson and Jackson, Wilson and Roosevelt—and it is good enough for me."

W. M. & A. Bus Rerouting Is Protested

More than 20 members of Bradbury Heights Citizens Association, protested yesterday against proposed rerouting of Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines' local buses in their area.

They told the Public Utilities Commission they oppose W.M.&A.'s plan to run buses to Southern ave. and Hillside rd. se. by way of Bowen rd. instead of via Ridge rd., Alabama ave. and Hillside rd.

If the change is granted, they asked that Capital Transit Co. extend its Ridge rd. line to serve their area.

R. A. Chew, W. M. & A. traffic manager, said the new routing would provide better service to the shopping center at Southern ave. and Marlboro pike and housing developments in nearby Maryland. The company showed an operating deficit of about $12,000 for the line during the first 11 months of 1947, he added.

PUC deferred action until all-day traffic counts along the present routing are made.

Meanwhile, the Interstate Commerce Commission announced it will hear today a proposal of fare changes involving 5-cent increases on W. M. & A. lines between Washington and Coral Hills and Hillside, Md.

Citizen-Army Setup Urged for Defense

Proposal of Reserve Officers Head Would Include World War II Veterans

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Compulsory enrollment of America's 16 million World War II veterans into armed home defense forces was proposed yesterday to Defense Secretary Forrestal's special reserve policy board.

Col. William H. Neblett, national president of the Reserve Officers Association of the United States, urged the action as part of a sweeping revision of national military policy and revamping of the armed forces advocated by the group.

As presented to the board, headed by Assistant Army Secretary Gordon Gray, the ROA plan calls for the immediate, almost complete mobilization of the American people for compulsory war training. It would abolish the present organization of our armed services into regular and reserve components and set up a "citizen military force" somewhat on the same basis as Switzerland has had for years.

Undeclared Emergency" Seen

Neblett declared such drastic steps are required by what he called the existing "undeclared emergency" now facing the United States. He said the plan had been previously submitted in "semiconfidence" to congressional committees on behalf of the ROA's 105,000 members.

The ROA head contended that World War II veterans, though discharged, legally are still liable for reserve service, under Section 3 (c) of the Selective Service Act. They should be enrolled in "local citizen units," he said, which "by a system of shifts and rotations (would) be kept ever ready to perform their missions 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

Such home defense units would be an integral part of the "one military force" proposed by the reserve association. It would include the present Army, Navy and Air Force, and remove all distinction between the Regular Services, National Guard and Reserves. The only difference between members of this "citizen force" would be whether they are on active or inactive duty.

"A citizen military force so organized, equipped and trained, in which force all of our people would take some part, regardless of age," said Neblett, "appears to us to be the only practical method of meeting the menace of atomic weapons and bacteriological warfare.

"These are the only weapons with which we can be attacked now or at any foreseeable time in the future."

Universal Training Urged

Colonel Neblett urged the abolition of all volunteer service in the armed forces and approval of universal training.

"The plan contemplates training in all of our schools and colleges in methods of defense against atomic weapons and bacteriological warfare," he stated. "All of our workers, farm and industrial, would have their assignments long before the attack came.

"All of our people would have some assignment. If we needed forces for occupation, units of our citizen soldiers could be rotated for that purpose."

Other witnesses before the Gray Board suggested less drastic changes in readying our reserve forces for an emergency. Comdr. John P. Bracken, president of the Reserve Officers of the Naval Services, critized the Navy Department for not giving reservists an "M-Day" assignment.

Hitting naval authorities for not "taking the reserves into their confidence," he challenged the Navy chiefs to tell the board in closed session "whether or not they know what they'd do with the reserves if war broke out tomorrow."

The Navy's contention that changing conditions requiring new plans is "wearing thin as an excuse for indecisive action," Bracken said.

John C. Williamson, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, declared that proposals to merge the National Guard with the Reserve under Federal control, are "dangerous to our form of Government." The VFW, he said, believes the present organization of armed forces reserve components to be satisfactory, and that better administration only is required.

He suggested creation of skeletonized home guard units of older men to replace the National Guard in wartime.

Coast Guard Reserve

Anthony J. Caliendo of the Coast Guard League, urged that funds for training the Coast Guard Reserve for its wartime duties be provided under the national defense budget. The Treasury Department, which operates the Regular Coast Guard in peacetime, is concerned largely with its normal duties and provides no training for reservists, he said.

Col. H. Walesby, representing the Navy League of the United States, warned against the "mass hysteria of economy." Efficiency should be the test, he said, declaring that joint use of armories, airfields and facilities between the Army, Navy and Air Force reserve units is impracticable, as their training needs differ.

'Untrue,' Ruhland Calls Patients' New Food Complaints

Complaints by patients that poor food again is being served in Gallinger Hospital's tuberculosis ward were branded as "wholly unjustified" last night by Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

He said the complaints were made in letters to Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate District appropriations subcommittee, and Commissioner Guy Mason.

Dr. Ruhland said he visited Gallinger yesterday afternoon and interviewed "all concerned." All of them (including Dr. Sol Katz, chief of the TB section, who made the original complaint against improper food last month) agreed the present fare is "very good," he reported.

U. S. Plans in Alaska Are Called 'Staggering'

Representative Crawford (R., Mich.) yesterday said the Government was making "staggering plans" to build up Alaska, especially its defenses.

Crawford gave no details, saying he could not disclose the plans until they reached a public lands subcommittee that he heads. He indicated at a hearing that would be within a few weeks.

Hinting that Canada might figure in the plans, he said that Alaska, Canada and the United States were "the buffer states between Russia and the rest of the world."

House Inquiry Blocked on La. Income Taxes

By The Associated Press

A congressional inquiry into income tax returns of leading Louisiana politicians was blocked temporarily yesterday.

Supporters of Sam Jones promptly laid the responsibility for the delay on backers of Earl K Long; the two men are candidates for Governor. Long is a brother of the late "Kingfish" Huey P. Long.

The investigation, outgrowth of charges that Earl Long had agreed to pay "fraud penalties" on his income tax returns for 1938 and 1939, was ordered yesterday morning by the House Rules Committee.

The House leadership had scheduled it for a vote yesterday afternoon. Representative Domengeaux (D., La.), a Jones supporter who made tax evasion charges against Long, had told newsmen the inquiry would be under a full head of steam by nightfall.

But a parliamentary "gentlemen's agreement" against consideration of anything controversial this week, coupled with the death of Representative Robsion (R., Ky.), upset the plans. It is traditional to suspend business when a member dies.

Representative Hebert (D., La.), a Long backer, notified the House leadership that he would demand a roll-call vote of the House on the resolution to create the special seven-man investigating committee.

House Majority Leader Halleck (R., Ind.) then took the resolution off yesterday's calendar and rescheduled it for early next week.

Domengeaux accused Hebert of "wanting to delay action until after next Tuesday's election."

"Hebert knew that when he demanded a roll call it put the resolution in the controversial category which would block action," Domengeaux added.

U. S. Reduces Oil Export Quota Again

In an effort to relieve the household fuel shortage further, the Commerce Department yesterday cut another 599,000 barrels from its first-quarter export allotment.

The slash is the second to be announced, the first having been ordered on February 12. Taken together, the two cuts mean a reduction of 24 per cent of the entire quantity of petroleum set aside for overseas shipment during the first three months of this year.

The complete embargo on oil shipments from East Coast ports will remain in effect until March 1.

Meantime, in another action which will help orderly buying of petroleum products, Defense Secretary Forrestal set up a single agency to purchase all fuel and oil for the three armed services.

The agency is a three-man board, with one representative each from the Army, Navy and Air Force. A six-man planning board, operating under the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will settle questions on which service gets priority in filling its fuel orders.

School Problems Talk

Dr. James A. Gannon, chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Education, will discuss problems now before the board at a meeting of the District of Columbia Public Schools Association tonight at 8 o'clock in the Board Room of the District Building.

Czech Reds' Allies Vote Split

Prague, Feb. 19 (AP).—The Czechoslovak Social Democratic Party, linked with Communists in the past, voted tonight to join parties fighting Communist attempts to run the National Front coalition.

The decision provides a coalition block of 62 per cent in Parliament against 38 per cent for the Communists. Before the Social Democrats switched, the Communists counted on their support for a 52 per cent leftist margin. A cabinet meeting is scheduled for tomorrow.

Paper Attacks Plans

The newspaper Svobodne Slovo devoted a complete front page to an attack on what it called Communist plans to control the national Security police force.

Communist Premier Klement Gottwald charged the right-wingers are preparing to overthrow the government and establish a cabinet of career officeholders.

In answer, the National Socialists accused the Communists tonight of keeping the country in turmoil with a climax to come in a peasant demonstration February 29.

Vaclav Mikulas—National Socialist head of the Peasant Union who often lined up with the Communists—said his union did not order the demonstration. The orders, he said, came from Communist Party headquarters.

Growing tension is gripping Czechoslovakia in a preelection campaign, although the date has not been chosen.

The Social Democrats declared their independence last November and have been acting as if they meant it. Their newspapers say Communists threaten factory workers and their families in an effort to win the election.

Fay Demands Scott Produce 'Facts' on Bonds

this scheme to save a bondsman's bail."

The following day, Fay admitted his office erred in judgment in dropping the charge, but struck at the accusation with the statement that his assistants did not know, at the time, who had signed the defendant's bond.

The defendant in the case was Daniel Singleton, 23, of 1144 4th st. ne., charged with five counts of false pretenses in promising he could aid five persons in obtaining veterans benefits.

When the case came up for trial with Singleton missing, Assistant United States Attorney James F. McKay announced the nol pros action. McKay said later he was acting for Assistant United States Attorney J. Warren Wilson who subsequently defended the action as "justifiable and proper."

Case Continued

Bond of $1000 was posted by professional Bondsman William J. O'Neil, who is responsible for only the $200 bond on the one charge still pending against Singleton. Judge Scott continued the case until Monday "to find out if I can order the whole $1000 bail forfeit."

Yesterday, Fay directed a 500-word letter to Judge Scott, forwarding copies to Chief Judge George P. Barse and to United States Attorney General Tom C. Clark—"to whom this office is answerable."

"I am satisfied from my investigation," the letter from Fay declared, "that you placed the worst possible construction on acts which were more susceptible of an inoocent interpretation and the slightest investigation of which would have convinced a fair-minded person that these two reputable gentlement were not guilty of dishonesty or corruption."

Challenged on Facts

He asserted the judge's statements "have, in my opinion, done irreparable damage to the reputation of perfectly decent and honest persons whom you yourself should know to be such."

The letter contained a challenge to show "any facts which could possibly form the slightest basis for the charge of cooruption . . . against my office.

"If, as I believe from my investigation, you have no facts and can obtain none, it is your duty and common justice to retract publicly the calumny which you so publicly voiced and make such amends as may now be in your power," Fay's letter concluded.

Judge Scott's Reply

Judge Scott said:

"I feel I have done my duty as a public servant in calling this matter to the public's attention. There was no rhyme or reason in nol prossing these cases when it was only to the benefit of the bondsman.

"However, I never intended to impugn the integrity of these two men in criticizing the dropping of these cases. I believe they are honorable men.

"I shall continue to criticize any effort to nol prosse cases where the person or persons have absconded. It is the practice which I denounce and not the integrity of the officials involved."

Soviet Accused By Dimitrov

Barnes, then U. S. political representative in Sofia.

The Communists, he said, pronounced an official death sentence upon him when he would not cooperate with the Communist regime established in Bulgaria by the help of the Soviet government and armies.

The "basic error and tragic delusion" of modern democracies, Dimitrov told the committee, is in looking at communism as a political organization.

Instead, he said, it is an international conspiracy to seize world control and establish "an absolute dictatorship for a power-mad clique" under Marshal Stalin.

He pointed out that the quislings and traitors of every nation who have paved the way toward Communist overthrow of their governments have been Moscow-trained.

Training Charge Emphasized

"Would it be your guess that American quislings are being trained for similar duty in the event Communists take over here?" queried Representative John McDowell (R., Pa.).

"I feel absolutely sure they are," responded Dimitrov.

The committee has had considerable testimony at various times from former members of the Communist Party of this country, both Negro and white, who told how they were trained in streetfighting, sabotage, etc., in the Lenin school in Moscow.

"The Bolsheviks," Dimitrov said, at present are opposed to war for the very good reason they are not yet prepared for it, and because they prefer to rely on civil wars and revolutions. For them, however, the conflict between themselves and the 'old capitalistic world' is inevitable and, as Lenin put it years ago, 'war is the best ally of Bolshevism.'"

Stalin Reveals Plans

For the best source on the plans of the Communist conspiracy, Dimitrov advised the committee to look to the speeches and writings of Stalin, specially his "Questions on Leninism." Just as Hitler did in "Mein Kampf" Stalin has spelled out his plans for the world, the Bulgarian leader said.

Dimitrov told the committee that Bulgarian Reds have set up an organization in this country and are even publishing a newspaper in Detroit.

McDowell demanded that the Postmaster General examine "some of these papers that are spreading pure treason in America."

Outlawing of Party Urged

Charles S. Sullivan, jr., representing the District Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, urged that the Communist Party be outlawed as a continuing conspiracy against the United States.

James Burnham, a member of the faculty of New York University, and a well known writer on totalitarian movements, said he believed the Communist conspiracy would have to be outlawed.

The only question, he said, was whether it would be done now, or wait until some future date when only civil war could decide the issue.

The first trial of the 10 Hollywood writers and directors for contempt of Congress because they refused to say whether or not they were Communists won a two-weeks' postponement because of the illness of Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. The trial of Writer John Howard Lawson was changed from February 24 to March 9. He want to call Thomas as a witness.

Ex-Communist Tells Of Russian Orders

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—The American Communist Party continued to get instructions from the Communist International in Russia after 1940 although it had announced a break with the International in that year, a former party official said today.

GEORGE M. DIMITROV
"America is Communist target number one"

George Hewitt, one-time member of the Communist Party national committee, made the statement in testimony at an Immigration Service deportation hearing for a Greek-American newspaperman.

Man Named "Eisler"

He declared the party announced it had broken its affiliation with the International so "the American people would be allies of Russia" in the event both nations were drawn into World War II.

The instructions from the Soviet Union sometimes were brought by a man named "Eisler," Hewitt testified. He possibly meant Gerhart Eisler, described by a House committee as America's "No. 1 Communist." Eisler now is held at Ellis Island on a deportation warrant.

Hewitt also told of seeing 300 Communists practicing "warfare and how to set up demonstrations and barricades" in exercises at party headquarters in New York.

The witness appeared for the Government at a hearing on charges against Peter Harisiades, staff writer for the Greek-American Tribune, a New York weekly publication.

Harisiades, a resident of this country for 32 years, is accused of belonging to an organization advocating overthrow of the United States Government by force. Immigration service officials have said the organization is the Communist Party.

1374 in India Die of Cholera in Week, 116 at Allahabad

New Delhi, Feb. 19 (AP).—The health department said today 1374 Indians died last week of cholera from 2572 reported cases.

Dr. Jivaraj Mehta, public health director general, said the outbreak was coming under control. He said three fourths of the cases were in the big province of Madras. Other epidemic spots were Calcutta and Bihar.

Some 293 cases and 116 deaths were reported from Allahabad, where three million persons had gathered for a religious ceremony and remained for the commital of Mohandas K. Gandhi's ashes to the rivers a week ago. Mehta rejected a suggestion the epidemic there might have been caused by Hindus drinking river water. He said the waters were not cholera carriers.

Mehta said the Allahabad outbreak was due to carriers among the millions crowded into miles of fly-infested tents and thatched huts with sketchy sanitation.

President Starts Drive

announced flatly that they were staying away in protest against Mr. Truman's new civil rights and anti-Jim Crowism program.

A headquarters spokesman said the two Washington dinners were a "sell-out." He figured on 2900 celebrants attending.

"Free" to $100 Contributors

The dinners were "free" to all those who contributed $100 or more to the party campaign chest. Even in the face of the Southern boycott, the committee could hardly fail to raise more than a quarter of a million dollars on the two Washington meals.

How much would be forthcoming from 75 other local dinners across the country, where tickets range upward from $5, was conjectural. Some of the Southern dinners were cancelled. Sponsors of some others talked of withholding their receipts from the national committee.

A group of Southern Governors is scheduled to meet here next Monday with National Chairman J. Howard McGrath to discuss the revolt. They may work out some agreement then on splitting the dinner proceeds.

Rebels Plan Own Dinners

Representative John Bell Williams (D., Miss.), gave a preview of the kind of local dinners which the rebels planned.

"You'll find most of us having our own Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners in gatherings in which white supremacy is the order and segregation is the rule," he said.

Among other Southern Democrats who said they were staying away from the Washington dinners were Senators William Fulbright and John L. McClellan of Arkansas; Johnston and Senator Burnet Maybank of South Carolina; Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell of Georgia; Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana.

Still others included Representatives John Rankin of Mississippi, James Domengeaux of Louisiana, and Sidney Camp and Stephen Pace of Georgia.

The office of Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) said that he and Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.) were speaking at a Richmond, Va., dinner Thursday night and would be "returning the shot fired at Fort Sumter."

New Building Urged for Laboratory

Razing of the presently "impossible" main laboratory of Gallinger Hospital and its replacement with a new structure was urged yesterday by lay advisers.

Describing the laboratory facilities as "highly inadequate," the Board of Visitors to Municipal Hospitals yesterday called on District Commissioners to press for construction of a new building.

The laboratory is designated to perform all the major clinical diagnostic functions of the hospital, conducting tests where speed and accuracy may often mean a patient's life.

"It is needless to dwell upon the inadequacies of the building and its state of utter disrepair to the point where it is impossible to expect anyone to rehabilitate either the building or its facilities or to properly carry on its functions," the board members officially reported to the Commissioners.

The sentiment was echoed by Gallinger Superintendent Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, who admitted the laboratory's deficiencies. Dr. Sweeney explained that $190,000 was appropriated for a new structure in 1944, but construction was held up by wartime needs and building material shortages.

The report was submitted by Attorney Renah F. Camalier, chairman, and Mrs. C. Ashmead Fuller and Mrs. William North Sturtevant, board members.

Nazi Cooperation Alleged in Trial

Sremska Mitrovica, Yugoslavia Feb. 19. (U.P.).—Mrs. Emma Debljak 32, who claims she was born in the United States, admitted today she was active in the Ustashi, a group which allegedly cooperated with the Nazis.

Mrs. Debljak and five other minor Ustashi leaders are charged with sheltering an "enemy of the state."

Mrs. Debljak said she "enjoyed the full confidence" of Ustashi Leader Djuro Djurkovich, "whom I've been hiding for a long time in my house."

She said she was born in 1916 in Farrell, Pa.

Dr. F. J. Ready Is Dead at 62; Rites Monday

Dr. Francis Joseph Ready, 62, physician and member of an old Washington family, died yesterday at Bethesda Naval Hospital after an extended illness.

Dr. Ready, who lived at 3325 N st. nw., retired from active practice 14 years ago. His wife, the late Mary E. Ready, died in 1942.

He was a member of the staff of Georgetown University Hospital and was for many years associate professor of clinical medicine at Georgetown University Medical School.

A native of Washington, he attended St. John's College and obtained his medical degree at Georgetown University. He served in the Navy as a medical officer in World War II.

Dr. Ready is survived by his father, Morris J. Ready; a daughter, Mrs. John W. McGovern, jr., and a brother, Earl P. Ready, an attorney, all of Washington.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, Knights of Columbus, Elks, Modern Woodmen, American Legion and Holy Name Society.

High requiem mass will be said at Holy Trinity Church, 36th and O sts. nw., at 10 a. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mout Olivet Cemetery.

Minimum Wage Bill May Be Sent to House

By The Associated Press

Representative Landis (R., Ind.) said yesterday the House Labor Committee is about ready to change its mind and approve a bill to raise the minimum wage.

Landis predicted a boost from 40 to 60 cents an hour.

Last year the committee kept a wage increase bill bottled up.

"This year," Landis told reporters, "it may be more popular politically. I've talked it over with several committee members who were opposed to the bill. Now they say they have changed their minds and will support it."

Red Label Put On Christoffel From Hearsay

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A Milwaukee former Communist swore yesterday that Harold R. Christoffel was a Communist, too, but he admitted that was only what he was told, that he didn't know himself.

Christoffel told the House Labor Committee he was no Communist and didn't know Fred Blair, the Communist chairman in Wisconsin. Claiming he lied, the Government has put Christoffel on trial in the District Court for perjury.

Called as a witness against him yesterday was Farrell Schnering of Milwaukee. Schnering told the court he joined the Communist Party in 1930 and quit it at the end of 1935. In 1934, he said, he met Christoffel, then a rising young labor leader, who became president of a big local of the CIO auto workers.

Schnering said that twice in 1935 he saw Christoffel in the Communist headquarters in Milwaukee, and that twice he saw him in a hamburger stand with Blair. From time to time, Schnering said, he saw Christoffel with other Communists, or with persons he linked to the party.

Is Eager Witness

Schnering was an eager witness, often blurting out his answers before Defense Counsel O. John Rogge could make the objections—which were upheld about half the time. At last, when Rogge asked him to, Justice Edward M. Curran told Schnering to wait until the court could rule.

"You pleaded guilty to criminal libel, didn't you?" Rogge shouted when he got his chance to cross-examine Schnering. The former Communist said he did not.

Justice Curran asked Schnering whether he was charged with libel. He said he was. The justice asked whether he was tried. He said he was. The justice asked whether he had a lawyer. He said he did. And was he convicted?

"I don't know," said Schnering.

"You know what convicted means?" Justice Curran pressed.

"Yes, sir, it means 'found guilty.'"

"And were you found guilty?"

"I guess so."

Testimony Recalled

Then the justice told Rogge to go ahead. Defense counsel then brought out that when Schnering was a witness in the Harry Bridges hearing he testified that he had no lawyer in the libel trial.

Schnering told Rogge he had nothing against Christoffel, even though he blamed him for items in CIO newspapers that said Schnering was a company stooge, a union buster and a Red baiter. One item told of CIO members refusing to work with Schnering. For six years he said, he has belonged to an AFL union and has worked in the International Harvester Milwaukee plant.

Justice Curran struck the defense a heavy blow yesterday, when he ruled out Rogge's efforts to show there was no quorum of the House Labor Committee when Christoffel took the stand. Rogge claims there had to be 13 members on hand for the committee to be lawful, and that the Government has not proved there was. Records show there were 13 members present when the session began, two hours before Christoffel was sworn.

Curran said unless some committee member had made a point of no quorum—which none did—he would take it for granted there was a quorum all afternoon.

Six Congressmen took the stand yesterday and said they were on hand when the session began. They were Representatives Edward O. McCowen (R., Ohio), Max Schwabe (R., Mo.), Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.), Wint Smith (R., Kans.), O. C. Fisher (D., Tex.) and John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.).

Heated Wires Provide Power

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—New kinds of wire that change heat into electric current were proposed today as possible power plants of tomorrow.

Wires hung out in sunshine would deliver electric current.

Equally well, such wires hung in a furnace, or even in front of a hot stove, would deliver electric power.

The report was made to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers by B. D. Cullity, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

This might be one answer to changing atomic energy into electricity without dangerous radioactivity.

Cullity uses the principle of the thermocouple, a loop of two different kinds of wires. If one end of such a loop is warmed and the other is cool, electricity flows from the point that is warmed.

Oyster Culturist Will Survey Crop In Tangier Sound

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—Ralph Hammer, State shellfish culturist, will make a survey of the oyster crop in Tangier Sound tomorrow.

He will take samples to measure the number of legal and undersized oysters.

The Tidewater Fisheries Commission has received complaints that 50 to 60 per cent of the catch from Tangier Sound is illegal.

As a result, the undersize oysters are being thrown into shell piles at the packers' plants after they have been found illegal by commission inspectors.

John E. Clark, commission chairman, said the State had no power to close the sound to oystering.

Strike Order Voted By Packers Union

100,000 Members of CIO Seek 29-Cent Pay Increase; Demand Called Preposterous

Chicago, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—The United Packinghouse Workers Union (CIO) announced today that its 100,000 members had voted 20 to 1 to strike against the Nation's major meat packers to support demands for a 29-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The union's strike strategy committee has approved plans for the walkout and a strike date has been set, Union President Ralph Helstein said. He said the date would be announced later.

The strike would affect the "big four" of the meat packing industry—Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Wilson—and other "major independent packing companies," union officials said. John Morrell & Co., would be one of the major independents struck, they said.

They said some smaller plants involved in negotiations also might be struck.

A spokesman for Swift described the strike action as "unfortunate."

Helstein said the packers could afford the wage increase and that such a boost would not push meat prices higher.

Spokesmen for the big packers have termed the union's wage demand "preposterous."

The rival AFL Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen's Union, which claims 40,000 members in the "big four" packing plants, recently settled with the companies for a nine-cent hourly wage increase.

7 Arrested in Garment Strike in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP).—Police reserves were ordered to duty today in the garment district where violence during mass picketing by AFL Ladies Garment Workers Union resulted in seven arrests.

One woman was injured yesterday in disorders which brought arrests of three women and four men. They were booked on suspicion of assault.

The Garment Workers Union began mass demonstrations Tuesday in a campaign to organize non-union shops.

1500 Laundry Drivers Strike in Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP).—A strike of 1500 drivers at 85 major laundries began today in Philadelphia.

The drivers, members of local 187 of the AFL-Teamsters Union, voted the walkout following a collapse in negotiations for a five-day week, a two per cent increase in commissions and $3 more pay a week.

The men now have a 14 per cent scale on commissions and have a basic weekly wage of $13. Their average weekly pay was not immediately available.

Southern Bloc To Meet on Civil Rights

By The Associated Press

A group of Southern Congressmen yesterday called a meeting for today to organize opposition to President Truman's civil rights program.

Representative Colmer (D., Miss.) said representatives from "about a dozen" Southern States have indicated they will attend.

A resolution already has been drafted pledging the group to cooperate with the Southern Governors' conference in opposing the President's program. Mr. Truman recently asked for antilynching, antipoll tax and antisegregation legislation.

To Resist Program

The resolution already has been approved at separate meetings of some State delegations, including those from Arkansas and Alabama.

Colmer and Democratic Representatives Cox of Georgia and Hobbs of Alabama headed a group of Southerners arranging the meeting.

The purpose of the meeting, one organizer told a reporter, "is to serve notice on the Administration that we will oppose the so-called civil rights program and that we will resist inclusion of any of its provisions in the platform of the Democratic Party."

Representative Harris (D., Ark.) said the Arkansas congressional delegation voted to take part in the meeting. He told a reporter:

"The entire civil rights message from the President will be considered and we will see what, if anything, is to be done about it. The whole delegation will go along with the other Southern States."

Harris said only one member, Representative Trimble of Berryville, was not present. He is en route home because of illness in his family, Harris said.

Arkansas Democrats Threaten to Bolt

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 19 (U.P.).—The Arkansas Democratic Central Committee voted unanimously today to "withdraw our support" from the party unless national Democratic officials revise their stand on anti-Southern legislation.

In a surprise move here, the committee voted to treat as a resolution a petition being circulated in the State by National Committeeman R. B. Robins of Camden indorsing Gov. Ben Laney's stand against President Truman's civil rights program.

Roosevelt-Congress Rift Told by Garner

Began With Failure to Denounce Sitdown Strikes, He Is Quoted in Article

By the United Press

The late President Roosevelt began losing his grip on Congress early in 1937 because he refused to denounce sitdown strikes, according to former Vice President John Nance Garner.

The split was widened, Garner said, by the subsequent Supreme Court enlargement fight and Mr. Roosevelt's attempt to purge Senators who opposed it.

Garner's views on the 1937-38 events were published in the second of a series of articles in Collier's magazine by Bascom N. Timmons, veteran Washington correspondent and friend of Garner.

It revealed that the sitdown strikes not only opened the breach between Mr. Roosevelt and Congress but provoked the only real angry discussion between the President and Garner during the eight years they served together.

The breach also was widened by Mr. Roosevelt's spending program and unbalanced budget and his interference in a contest between the late Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, for Democratic leadership of the Senate.

Timmons said Garner reviewed the sitdown situation with him shortly before the retiring Vice President left Washington at the end of his second term.

The sitdown technique, it was recalled, first was employed by the CIO United Automobile Workers who then were under the leadership of John L. Lewis.

Garner felt that the unbalanced budget and the sitdown strikes were a far greater threat to the Nation's welfare than the Supreme Court enlargement plan. He argued the sitdown question with Mr. Roosevelt long and bitterly at a White House conference in January, 1937.

"It was the hottest argument we ever had," Garner recalled. "I told him that I regarded the sitdown srikes as a seizure of other people's property in brazen defiance of the law; that the strikers were in illegal possession of the plants; that it was not a strike for better wages and working conditions but a step in the fight of John L. Lewis for personal and political power; that Lewis was arrogantly expecting the backing of the Democratic Party in his sitdowns undertaking as a payoff for his support and campaign contributions."

Garner quoted Mr. Roosevelt as feeling the sitdowns were neither right nor legal. But, according to Garner, he claimed he couldn't get the strikers out of the plants without bloodshed.

"Then John L. Lewis is a bigger man than you are if you can't find some way to cope with this," Garner is quoted as telling him.

The late Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, then Senate Democratic leader, finally broke up the argument. Mr. Roosevelt later told Garner, according to the article, that he was right about Lewis' aims.

The Supreme Court fight and the Harrison-Barkley contest came together. Mr. Roosevelt lost his attempt to add six more justices to the Supreme Court bench. His personal influence handed the Senate leadership to Barkley but made more enemies in Congress. Garner felt that it was "an encroachment on the prerogatives of members of the legislative branch no President of the United States ought to engage in."

Finally, there came the attempted purge in the Democratic congressional primaries of 1938. Garner tried to talk Mr. Roosevelt out of the purge attempt. He failed, but so did the purge. Nevertheless, the Republicans made gains in the 1938 elections.

"It is not the business of the President of the United States to choose Senators and Representatives in Congress," Garner said. "He won't succeed. The peoples of the States will regard it as presidential arrogance. These men stand well in their party. Their standing is an accumulation of many years of work for their party and their constituents—recognition for the things they have done."

As for the so-called liberal party movement, Garner had this to say:

"It is not a question of making the Democratic Party the progressive party. It has always been the more progressive one. It is a question of the Democratic Party or a personaly party—Roosevelt party.

"It's risky business. When you build around a personality instead of a party program and principles, then your party is up Salt Creek when that personality is off the ticket."

Aspirin Consumption Up 400% Since 1929

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP).—Note on the State of the national headache:

Consumption of aspirin is up almost 400 per cent since 1929, the American Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association was told today. Dr. E. C. Merrill, vice-president of Rexall Drug Co., said it a little more technically:

"Acetylsalicylic acid consumption has grown from 2,500,000 pounds in 1929 to 5,300,000 in 1939 and 9,926,000 pounds in 1946."

5 Cattle Killed as Truck Burns

Three beef cattle were burned to death and two others had to be killed in Alexandria early yesterday when hot brakes set fire to the truck, taking them to market.

Henry M. Taylor, 30, Charlotte Court House, Va., told police he was taking a load of 40 calves and 6 beef cattle to Baltimore when he smelled something burning.

He stopped at a filling station on Route No. 1, near Custis dr., and found the rear right tire ablaze. This in turn set fire to the canvas top of the double-decker truck.

Taylor moved his truck away from the filling station and managed to free the cattle in the lower deck. The flames prevented him from getting the others out.

Fireman soon put out the blaze.

Two animals broke legs in jumping from the truck and had to be shot. Taylor recovered two of strays in a yard a mile and a half away. Six others were still roaming Alexandria last night after Taylor finally left for Baltimore in another truck.

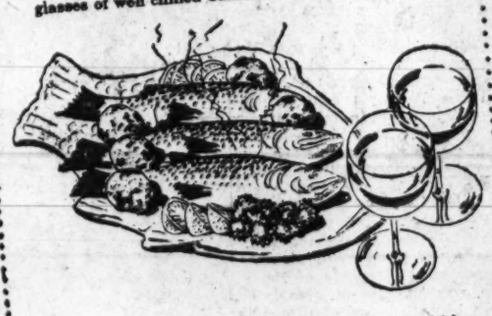
Brush small whole fish or thick fish slices or fillets with oil; season. Broil, basting occasionally with California Sauterne wine. When brown on one side, turn fish and, as it cooks, baste again. Serve with glasses of well chilled California Sauterne



To step up the flavor of soup

Add an equal amount of water to a can of tomato soup. Then stir in ⅓ cup of California Sherry wine, heat and serve. A wonderful start to any meal

Bake beans this easy tasty way

To your favorite recipe for baked beans, add 1 cup California Burgundy or Claret wine when you add other seasonings. (If you like, press a peeled whole onion into top of beans.) Cover and bake according to your usual method. Serve bubbling hot along with glassfuls of the same good kind of wine

California Wines are made from the pure juice of fresh, ripe grapes. They are made to go with food. You will find they go particularly well with the foods you are serving often nowadays.

With fish, for example, try a California white table wine like Sauterne. White table wines are made light and delicate so as to blend with the flavor of fish and to bring out its full goodness. Try the recipe suggested at left.

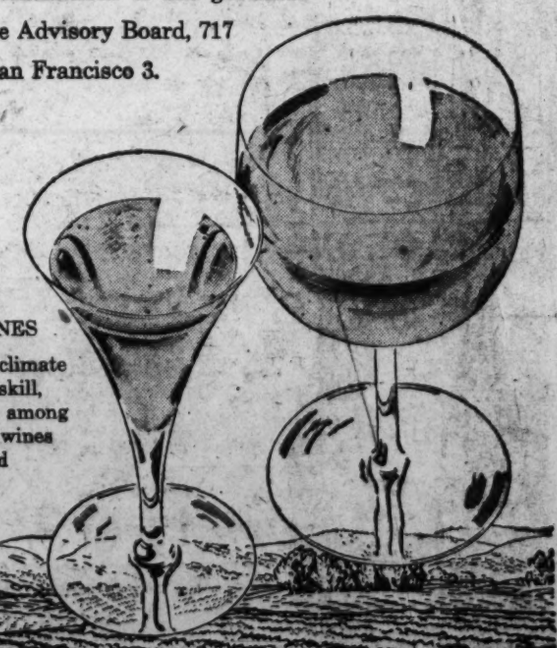
When you are serving a heartier food such as baked beans you will likely prefer a more robust wine. The kind to choose is a California red table wine like Burgundy or Claret.

With soups, the nutlike flavor of California Sherry tastes wonderfully good. Sherry is also a favorite with appetizers before dinner.

In fact at today's wine prices it is possible to use many wine-and-food combinations to add goodness to your dinners. Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market Street, San Francisco 3.

CALIFORNIA WINES

Due to favorable soil, climate and the vintners' skill, California Wines are among the highest quality wines in all the world



Field Marshal List Given Life for War Crimes

Nuernberg, Germany, Feb. 19 (AP).—An American military tribunal today sentenced Field Marshal Wilhelm List to life imprisonment for his acts as German commander in the Balkans.

Seven other high German military leaders also were convicted and sentenced. Two generals were acquitted.

The defendants were accused of being responsible for the killing of an estimated 63,000 hostages in Greece, Yugoslavia and Albania. Some of these killings, the court ruled, were mass murder.

The court conceded that most of the guerillas who harried German troops in the Balkans "failed to comply with the rules of war" and thus did not come under the protection of existing international law. Therefore those guerillas could be executed summarily. But the Germans, the tribunal's opinion said, committed excesses and killed many innocent persons out of sheer rage.

List Kuntze

The opinion sharply criticized the all-American character of the Nuernberg war crimes trials. It reproached the "statesmen of the world" for failing to establish truly international tribunals.

There now is room, the opinion said, for some criticism that defeated generals tried by one victorious nation face "bias and prejudice."

Other Sentences

List's close associate, Gen. Walter Kuntze, also was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Other sentences included:

Gen. Lothar Rendulic and Gen. Wilhelm Speidel, 20 years.

Gen. Helmut Felmy, 15 years.
Gen. Hubert Lanz, 12 years.
Gen. Ernest von Leyser, 10 years.
Gen. Ernest Dehner, seven years.

Maj. Gen. Kurt von Geitner and Gen. Hermann Foertsch were acquitted. All the defendants were charged with war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Escaped Monkey Gives Salisbury Exciting Moment

Salisbury, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—Charley, a pet monkey brought from Africa as a war souvenir, yesterday escaped and in practically no time had the whole neighborhood in a state between fears and laughter.

In his explorations Charley watched housewives sweeping, took a look at some babies sunning, and wandered into one house and pulled a table cloth covered with dishes onto the floor. Everyone screamed and ran.

He climbed trees, bit a dog, and caused a building and telephone crew to knock off work to watch the fun. Finally Mrs. Donald Smith, his owner, came to the rescue and returned him to his customary place, the attic.

Mrs. Booth was mystified by the whole thing. "All the doors and windows were closed," she declared, "I still don't know how he got out."

Airborne Infection Talk

Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, associate professor of epidemiology at Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health, will be guest lecturer at the Health Department's Conference on Control of Airborne Infections today. The meeting will be at 1 p. m. in Room 5023, Municipal Center, health officials announced.

Wholesale Price Index Has Declined 2½% in Week

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Wholesale prices last week suffered one of their sharpest breaks since the Bureau of Labor Statistics started its Weekly Index in 1932.

The BLS Index of 900 basic commodities dropped from 163.8 per cent of normal on February 7 to 159.7 on February 14—a decline of 4.1 points in seven days. (Normal is the 1926 price level, or 100 per cent.)

The drop represents a 2½ per cent decline in all commodities—being exceeded only by a drop of 4 per cent in September, 1946, when price controls on meats and a few other important commodities were put back after having been removed for two months.

Biggest drop was in farm products, which fell 7½ per cent in the week. Biggest factor among these was the slump of 16 per cent in grain prices.

In yesterday's commodity markets, butter was the star performer, registering a decline of 3½ to 5½ cents a pound in Chicago.

Wheat was ¾ of a cent to 2½ cents higher than Wednesday. Corn and oats flirted around the previous close. Steady selling near the close sent cotton skidding 85 cents to $1.40 a bale (500 pounds). Livestock prices were virtually unchanged.

Affecting yesterday's trading were two factors:

1. A favorable vote by a Senate Banking Subcommittee on a bill to ration grain for whisk making until October 31.

2. Pessimistic reports of dust storms and bad growing weather for the winter wheat crop in the Great Plains area.

The liquor restriction measure, which now goes to the full Banking Committee, would cut down the use of grain by distillers to not more than 2,500,000 bushels a month. Agriculture Department official say distilleries are now consuming at a rate of 6,500,000 bushels monthly, with some large companies still voluntarily holding down production. President Truman requested such voluntary action two weeks ago.

The vote by the committee caused a sharp but temporary break in the grain market. All grains dropped below Wednesday's close, but quickly recovered on reports of increasing damage to wheat in the Great Plains area.

Liberal, Kans, reported that top soil was blowing there with winds whipping up dust. The forecast was for a new cold wave in the area, which might also injure the growing wheat.

The Kansas weekly Weather Bureau report said: "Concern continues over possible thin stands and other damage to wheat in some areas resulting from the poor start the crop got last fall."

The report then added that "it is still to early to determine the outcome."

Liquor Restriction Bill

The liquor restriction bill, as it emerged from the subcommittee, provides:

1. That the Agriculture Department consider any failure by any distiller to observe the industry's voluntary 60-day shutdown last fall. Monthly grain quotas, the bill said, should be cut down for any distiller who failed to observe that holiday, or who has used in excess of his portion of 2,500,000 bushels a month since.

2. If the price of corn should go down for 30 days to below 90 per cent of parity, rationing should end. The law requires the Agriculture Department to support corn prices at 90 per cent of parity.

Although the measure was passed unanimously by the Senate group, Chairman Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking Committee, said he has "no plans for early consideration" of the measure. His committee pigeonholed the original extension bill after it had passed the Senate.

Government Warning

The need for the restriction law as well as all other conservation measures was emphasized by Charles F. Brannan, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

"The need to conserve scarce food will not end with the next harvest," Brannan told the Agricultural Insecticide and Fungicide Association.

"The European Recovery Program and other expected demands will need all the grain we can produce for several years. It appears now that it will be at least two years before we can even begin to move our wheat and corn acreage down toward the levels which good soil conservation practices would dictate."

Meantime the Agriculture Department reported that 373 million bushels of grain were exported to shortage areas in the first seven months of the crop year (from last July 1 to February 1.)

The Government's export goal for the year is a minimum of 520 million bushels.

Food Prices Hold to Same General Level

Another sharp drop in wildly fluctuating wholesale butter prices was recorded yesterday, but most weekend food prices here were unchanged at shopping levels.

Butter prices skidded 3½ to 4½ cents a pound in New York, and 3½ to 5½ cents in Chicago, to make the housewife's purchase of a pound of butter here akin to a small-scale market speculation.

The butter drop sent Chicago prices to the lowest point since November, wiping out rises on Monday and Tuesday.

Changes in local prices, however, will depend upon individual merchants' views about further market changes, plus the price level at which they made purchases. A butter price increase began here Wednesday.

Food shoppers yesterday found some prices up, others down, in comparison with last weekend.

Generally, the lowest prices of last week were not reduced further, and housewives found higher listings for normally cheaper cuts of meat such as chuck roast and plate beef.

Sidney Kolker, chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association's wholesale meat division, said this was "simply a case of normal supply and demand."

"Steak prices were high and steaks were not moving before the commodity market break," he said. "They would have come down even without a market break. The demand for cuts like chuck roast is very heavy—thus the rise."

Across the Nation, retail prices fell for the second week, the National Association of Retail Grocers reported yesterday. The association said that for the week of February 10-17 it found these new cuts over the previous week in independent stores:

Bacon, 4 to 20 cents a pound lower; pork chops, 4 to 10 cents a pound; ground round steak, 5 to 10 cents; flour, 5 pounds, 5 to 8 cents; lard, 4 to 10 cents; sugar, 1½ to 4 cents.

Man Sent to Jail On Son's Appeal, Hangs Self in Cell

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP).—Frederick Stange had the police come get his father last night.

He had taken his problem up earlier in the day with Police Magistrate Ruben Caplan.

Oscar Stange, 60, was on a drinking spree. He was causing trouble at home. His wife was critically ill. Couldn't he be examined by a doctor?

Magistrate Caplan explained the police couldn't force the father to do anything unless he was arrested.

So Frederick called the police three times. The officer finally took the father off to jail at 8:30 p. m. on a charge of disturbing the peace.

He was scheduled to appear before Magistrate Caplan this morning.

But the jailer found him hanging by a leather belt from the bars of his cell at 4:15 a. m.—dead.

Italian Parties Pledge Restraint During Campaign

Rome, Feb. 19 (AP).—Italy's leading political parties promised today to refrain from strong-arm methods during this spring's election campaign.

They also said they would respect their opponents' rights to freedom of speech. Christian Democrats, Communists and pro-Communist Socialists signed the truce.

The parties said they would not hold uniformed demonstrations or conduct rallies which might lead to incidents. They pledged themselves to refrain from disturbing meetings of their rivals.

Violations will be referred to a central committee made up of representatives of the various parties.

Turkish Protest To Bulgaria Reported

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 19 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight Turkey has sent Bulgaria a sharp note protesting the shooting down of two Turkish planes, February 9, over Bulgarian territory. A Turkish sergeant was killed and a lieutenant was captured. The sources said the note demanded the immediate return of the lieutenant.

Spring Near: Here's Freshet Of Tax Yarns

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

Ah, spring, sort of.

Mother saw her first robin yesterday morning. Father saw his first income tax man.

With these signs, can income tax day—March 15—be far behind?

You may be trying to forget it, but the Bureau of Internal Revenue isn't. And the thoughtful people over there have collected a few anecdotes to cheer you up while you struggle through your blanks.

Take the Detroit income taxpayer. He had everything figured out. Knew exactly what he spent each week:

Rent	$15.00
Food	22.00
Heat, lights	3.00
Incidentals	2.50
Entertainment	1.00
Total	$43.50

"And what's your take-home pay?" asked the income tax man.

"Thirty-eight dollars a week," was the reply.

"You make $38, and you spend $43.50. How do you live?"

"Man, I don't know what I'd do," confessed the taxpayer, "if I didn't hit those numbers once in a while."

Glad to Pay, Boys

And this actually happened, too:

Fellow showed up at tax office. Drunk but happy. "Glad to pay off, boys. Like to pay taxes. Ever'body ought be glad to pay taxes. Ever'body."

Paid taxes, in cash.

The next day the income tax man noticed the same man, same line. He was horribly undrunk.

"What are you doing here?" asked the surprised tax man.

"Came to pay my taxes," he said sadly.

"But you paid them yesterday. I made out the forms myself."

"Holy smoke!" said the former drunk. "I knew I had a dandy on, but I didn't know it was that dandy."

Where's That Refund?

This letter came in recently:

"Haven't yet received my refund. What's the matter? Is this a one-way track? It went over there. Can't it come back?"

They are rugged individualists up in Vermont, even when they are taxpayers.

On the income tax blank there is a space that says:

"Do not write in this space."

And a Burlington (Vt.) man had angrily written across it:

"I will write where I damn please." Thereby proving it.

And the Des Moines old maid. One tax blank question: "Were you married in 1946?"

She answered:

"No, darn it!"

Senate Unit Plans to Combine Three War Claims Measures

A new bill to settle claims against former Axis powers, combining features of three bills now before Congress, probably will come out of current hearings before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee.

Chairman Cooper (R., Ky.) of the subcommittee, said last night he believed only a subcommittee bill could accomplish the ends sought in the single House bill and two Senate bills now under study. Hearings, he said, probably would be concluded next week upon his return from the funeral of Kentucky Representative John M. Robsion at Barbourville, Ky.

The subcommittee yesterday heard testimony in support of the section of the House bill which would provide benefits for soldiers who were starved and mistreated as prisoners of the Japanese. The bill provides that such claims would be paid from German and Japanese assets frozen in this country.

Maj. Gen. Edward P. King, jr., now retired, who surrendered United States forces on Bataan, told the subcommittee many of those men were discharged without disability benefits. He predicted that, although these men showed no physical defects on discharge, defects would appear later as a result of their experiences.

He said the prisoners were starved diliberately after he was assured when arranging the surrender that "the Imperial Japanese Army were not barbarians." Often, he said, food was allowed to spoil rather than be given to the prisoners and was thrown away.

George Ijams, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, asked that the bill include provisions for soldiers captured in the Far East at the beginning of the war. Many have developed disabilities, he said, and cannot obtain benefits from the Veterans Administration.

Yacht Master Approved

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—Guy Andrews of Cambridge has been approved as master of the State yacht Potomac by the Tidewater Fisheries Commission. He has held the position for some time, but had not been officially approved.

Sears Engineer Talks To Management Men

Douglas Valentine, industrial engineer for Sears Roebuck & Co., Philadelphia, led a discussion on "Potentialities of Work Measurment" at a dinner of the Washington chapter, Society for the Advancement of Management, last night in Barker Hall, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

Members of a panel group which explored the applications of work measurement, in particular to clerical operations in government and industry, included Edward J. Hlackey, associate chief, retirement division, United States Civil Service Commission, William Howard, chief of program evaluation, Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Navy Department, and L. Thomas McKillop, industrial engineer, Rual Electrification Administration.

U.N. Given Warning Korea May 'Blow Up'

Commission Urges Union of Two Zones, Says Nation Has Had 'Raw Deal' Since War

Lake Success, Feb. 19 (AP).—The Korean Commission today warned Korea may "blow up" if the United Nations fails to unite the Amerian and Russian zones.

The commission also said Korea has had a "raw deal" since the war ended and that Koreans of all opinions had told it the U. N. "is our last hope."

K. P. S. Menon of India, commission chairman, said:

"If this last hope, too, is shattered, Korea may blow up; and it may be the beginning of a vaster cataclysm in Asia and the world."

Tells of Efforts

Menon told 48 delegates of the Little Assembly about the commission's fruitless efforts to enlist Russian cooperation in Korea.

He said the commission was unwilling to acknowledge inability to carry out the orders of the U. N. Assembly.

The Assembly established the commission last November to facilitate and expedite independence for Korea. Russia boycotted the commission because, the Russians said, truly elected representatives of the Koreans were not present for the discussions in which it was created.

The Americans countered they had been unable to agree with Russia on just who were truly elected representatives. Secretary of State Marshall put the Korean problem before the Assembly in his opening address last September.

Menon Quotes Hodge

On the question of civil liberties in the United States zone, Menon said Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, United States commander, had told him "such restrictions as there were in south Korea were necessary, and inevitable, precautions against a continually recurring Communist conspiracy to subvert law and order in the south and to establish a Communist regime." He added:

"While General Hodge dismissed the charge that south Korea is a police state as sheer nonsense,' the chief justice of Korea described as 'exactly right' the following interpretation of the existing state of civil liberties:

"'Any individual Korean is at the mercy of the police. He may be arrested at any time without a warrant of arrest, kept in jail for indefinite periods of time and without any law providing for his imprisonment to be reviewed by the court.'"

The commission voted 37 to 1 (Ecuador opposed) to adjourn so delegates could study the report. The next meeting was set for Tuesday at 11 a. m. (E. S. T.).

Hodge Demands Penalty For 'Insult to Army'

Seoul, Feb. 19 (AP).—Lieut Gen. John R. Hodge today disclosed he had demanded punishment of Korean and Soviet army personnel involved in the manhandling of two United States officers in northern Korea, February 8.

His protest, sent to the Soviet commandant, Lieut. Gen. G. P. Korotkov, called the abuse "an insult to the United States Army" and demanded "adequate assurance that such incidents will not happen again."

Yemen Ruler, 3 Sons Dead; Coup Believed Family Fight

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 19 (AP).—Yehia Hamid el Din, 82-year-old ruler of Yemen, 3 of his 16 sons, and a chief adviser are dead and a new King and government proclaimed, a dispatch from that Arabian kingdom said today.

The dispatch gave few details, but Yemenite circles here believe the five had been killed as the result of one of the recurring plots among the King's sons.

A cablegram received by Dr. Muktar Abdel Latiff, who has commercial dealings with Yemen, said Sayed Abdulla Bin Ahmed el Wazier, one of Yemen's religious leaders and former minister, had been elected Imam (Islamic leader), replacing Yehia.

The message added that Emir Seif el hak Ibrahim, one of the sons who has been opposing the old King, had been chosen head of a "constitutional government."

There was no word of the eldest son and heir presumptive, Saif Islam Ahmad, Emir of Hajja and commander in chief of the realm's forces.

Dispatches from Aden, the British protectorate to the south of Yemen, said word of the Imam's death reached the crown prince at Taizz, in the southern part of the country. He started with 180 soldiers for Hajja and Sana'a, the capital, but before he reached the Hajja post it had been occupied by forces of the new Imam, said the Aden dispatches.

The country was described as "quiet" now.

Naguib el Rawi Pasha, Iraqi delegate to the Arab League, said 60-year-old El Wazier had notified all Arab rulers of his succession as a result of an election by an assembly of Yemen's religious chiefs and prominent citizens.

Sana'a is a walled city of about 25,000. The land, of 75,000 square miles and about 3,500,000 population, faces Eritrea across the Red Sea.

Unrest has been reported as a result of the lack of progress. Yehia, who was elected 45 years ago, was quoted as saying: "We inherited the country this way and shall rule it this way."

The son who became Premier, has been in revolt against his father for the past 12 months.

About 14 years ago, the Imam imprisoned three of his sons for two or three years for political plotting. Four years ago he imprisoned his son Ismail for political reasons. Ismail broke a leg in trying to escape and later was pardoned.

British Board Jewish Ship Unresisted

Jerusalem, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—British sailors boarded the Jewish illegal immigrant ship Gallantry in the Mediterranean tonight without resistance from its 700 passengers. However, 13 persons were killed, including an uncle of a New York rabbi, in Holy Land violence.

Joshua Wohlgelernter, 35, of Toronto, Ontario, a former student at Yeshiva Unviersity, New York, and three other Jews were slain by Arab bullets as their bus passed an Arab taxi stand in Haifa.

Wohlgelernter is brother of the chief rabbi of Toronto and an uncle of Rabbi Morris Wohlgelernter of the Inwood Jewish Center, New York.

The Jewish underground shot four Britons, killing two, in presumed reprisals for the deaths last week of four members of the Jewish Hagana.

Reliable sources in Haifa said British headquarters in Palestine had ordered the withdrawal of Trans-Jordan King Abdullah's Arab Legion from the entire north Palestine area.

Hearing on Higher Fares Concluded

A continued hearing on the petition of the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., for a higher fare between Washington and Coral Hills and Hillside, Md., was concluded yesterday as one opponent cross-examined a company official.

Interstate Commerce Examiner Henry C. Lawton took the case under advisement and will later report his recommendation.

Tobias E. Levow, Patent Office examiner, representing himself and the Hillside and Coral Hills Citizens Associations, questioned James W. Tenner, secretary-treasurer of the W. M. & A., on the proposed increase from 10 to 15 cents between the District and the two Maryland points.

Although fare boxes on the buses do not take pennies, Levow established that a fare of between 10 and 15 cents could be handled by using tickets or tokens. He also brought out the fact that a passenger would pay a 15-cent fare to [illegible] the District and the first stop in Maryland, under the proposed increase. The distance is less than half a mille, Tanner admitted.

The W. M. & A. has pending before the District Public Utilities Commission a petition to raise cash fares within the District from 10 to 15 cents and sell tokens at two for 25 cents instead of three for 25.

BAKING HINTS
by Martha Logan
Before you bake a cake, take eggs out of refrigerator and let stand. They will beat more readily at room temperature. And here's another important tip! Always use Swift'ning*. Blue Plate Mayonnaise —First for FLAVOR
FISH VINAIGRETTE
One of the nice things to do with a small amount of leftover baked or boiled fish is to make this tasty salad. Also makes a fine sandwich filling.
For each cup of leftover cooked fish, use:
4 tablespoons minced celery
2 tablespoons minced green onion tops
1 teaspoon prepared mustard, if desired
3 tablespoons Blue Plate Mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
Flake fish and remove bones. Add chopped greens to fish. Mix Blue Plate Mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard together, then stir into fish. Chill well. (Blue Plate Mayonnaise is seasoned to be just sweet enough—just tart enough. Made with the finest salad oil, blended vinegars, selected eggs, and spices.)

Va. Assembly Gets School Referendum Bill

Richmond, Va., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—A referendum bill to determine whether the State should take over operation of its public schools was introduced in the House of Delegates today by Delegate Robert Whitehead.

Under his proposal, a State-wide referendum on the issue would be held November 2.

Voters would be asked whether the State should take over operation of public schools and, with the exception of buildings and grounds, the cost of financing them.

So important a question demanded a specific expression from the public, Whitehead said.

Other Actions Listed

Other actions in the General Assembly today included:

1. Action in the "battle of annexation" between the counties and cities as three bills to make annexation more difficult were killed in a House committee, and the "1885 Bill" advanced to its third House reading, 46 to 40.

(2) A special House bill authorizing the Arlington Commissioner of Revenue to make a "continuous assessment" of county real estate in addition to the present four-year survey.

(3) A House bill to close registration books in special elections and referendums six days prior to the day of election.

(4) A conference between Arlington County delegates, Governor Tuck and Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson in which delegates were tentatively promised State aid on extension of the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

(5) The third House reading of a bill to increase hunting and fishing license fees to provide funds for the propagation of game and fish.

Tuck Program in Senate

(6) Receipt in the Senate of bills to carry out Governor Tuck's reorganization program—to streamline all State departments, commissions, and agencies into 11 departments and six staff agencies.

Delegate Maynard Magruder, who joined Delegate George Damm to launch the "continuous" real estate assessment in Arlington, said the step-up probably would "procure more revenue" for the county.

Magruder pointed out that the county board would be required to report all rezonings to the commissioner of revenue, who would then reassess the property.

Also reported would be exceptions to zoning ordinances granted by the board for changes in the use of property.

Delegate Damm said the State-wide measure to deadline closing of registration books would prevent last-minute "confusion" at the polls such as existed during Arlington's school referendum last May.

Parkway Discussion

Both Arlington delegates, in their discussions on the George Washington Memorial Parkway extension, were joined by Senator Charles R. Fenwick.

They reported that Highway Chief Anderson gave his tentative approval to an amendment to the State budget bill which would set aside $125,000 for acquisition of rights-of-way on unit 3 of the proposed extension.

Arlington County will be expected to raise a like sum, with the Federal Government providing $250,000 for the extension, which exentually will run from Mount Vernon to Great Falls.

The House also advanced to third reading a bill to increase the legislators' pay from $12 to $18 a day. It accepted an amendment to continue the rate of pay for a special session—pay for 30 days regardless of length.

Patron of the pay bill is Delegate C. C. Louderback of Page, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

The game and fish bill also divides the receipts from fishing licenses and hunting licenses. Recommended by the Crockett commission, it provides that receipts from hunters be used to propagate game and receipts from fisherman be used to increase the amount of fish.

If Charter Wins

Committee To Pick Slate In County

The Montgomery County charter committee yesterday announced that it would indorse candidates for county council if the proposed charter carries in the November election.

In a policy statement approved by the board of directors and released by Col. Norman B. Ames, the committee said:

1. It will actively campaign for election of candidates to the council provided for in the charter.

2. It will welcome suggestions from county groups and individuals on candidates.

3. The charter committee will not approve any slate until after the November election.

4. The committee will approve only seven candidates and will concentrate its efforts on the election of that group.

5. The charter committee will not attempt to secure from candidates supported any favors or benefits for members of the committee.

Democrats Organize At Silver Spring

Organization of a new political group in Montgomery County—the Silver Spring Democratic Club—was announced yesterday.

The announcement said the group will attempt to arouse interest in local planning, county government, population trends and allocation of tax money.

Under its constitution, it will not indorse candidates for primaries, but, will support individual candidates for State and county elections. The club will represent the nine voting precincts in the Thirteenth Election District, and there will be one member on the board of directors from each precinct.

William F. Theis, 1201 Woodside pkwy., is president. Other officers are Hogarth Colston, Joseph Parkhill, John R. Gohegan, George Bond, Warner L. Hoffman, Ercle Herbert, Irving Gessford, John Montague, Clifford Haynes, Frank DuBois, Frank Daniels, Alfred Padmatier, Lauman T. Faulconer, Edwin A. Sheehan, Earl Houck and John Wexler.

Fredericksburg Takes Option on School Site

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—The City of Fredericksburg took an option today on a 30-acre tract of the George Benoit "Snowden Farm" as the possible site of a new high school. The price of the property, just within the western municipal limits, is reported to be $100,000.

A new high school has been discussed for months. It is still to be decided whether the school will serve Fredericksburg alone or one or more nearby counties under a proposed centralization plan.

Employes Aid Creighton in Fight To Get Job Back

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—The Maryland Classified Employes Association opposed today lessening of authority of Capt. Amos S. Creighton over the Tidewater fisheries fleet.

Creighton was shorn of his command over the enforcement fleet personnel by the Tidewater Commission. Now he wants his old job back.

In his fight for the job, George T. Harrison, Tilghman packer and a member of the commission, is leading the way.

Support for Creighton came today from the employes' association when its counsel, Chalres D. Harris, issued a statement.

Harrison at a meeting yesterday sought to have Creighton reinstated, but his motion failed for want of a second.

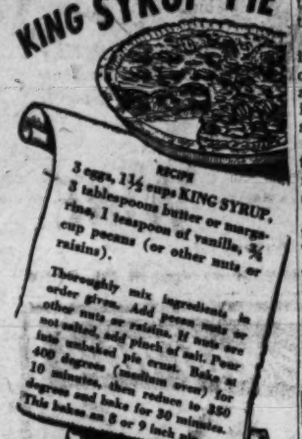
Creighton's duties as immediate head of personnel were taken over by Mason Shehan, a former Navy flier, who came to the department 19 months ago.

Phone Cable Damaged

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 19 (AP).—A stretched and mangled 200-foot section of the five-inch Norfolk-Portsmouth telephone cable was found today to be the cause of disrupted service between the two cities.

The extensive damage apparently resulted from the hooking of a ship's anchor under the cable.

It's Easy to bake.. KING SYRUP PIE



RECIPE
3 eggs, 1½ cups KING SYRUP, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, ¾ cup pecans (or other nuts or raisins).

Thoroughly mix ingredients in order given. Add pecan nuts or other nuts or raisins. If nuts are not salted, add pinch of salt. Pour into unbaked pie crust. Bake at 400 degrees (medium oven) for 10 minutes, then reduce to 350 degrees and bake for 30 minutes. This bakes an 8 or 9 inch pie.

Joint Md.-D. C. Hearing Urged On Capital Transit Rate Rises

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP).—The Public Service Commission was told today Marylanders working in Washington would get a better transportation deal if the PSC and the District Public Utilities Commission held joint hearings on rate increases for the Capital Transit Co.

A. E. Conradis of Bethesda, public utility agent for Montgomery County, made this statement at a hearing before the Maryland PSC. Capital Transit is asking rate increases in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties.

Conradis and Gregory Hankin, appearing for Prince Georges groups, protested the rates.

"The District line is a very artificial line," Conradis said. "I understand the company may go before the PUC soon to ask for another District fare increase.

"Caught Between Fires"

"Montgomery County is caught between the two fires, since most of the residents work in Washington.

"I agree the company may be losing money on its Maryland operations. But all the Montgomery lines are feeder lines into the District, where we commuters spend another fare," Conradis said.

Under cross-examination, Conradis said he paid about 15 cents for three miles' travel in Maryland and 10 cents to travel about eight miles in the District.

Conradis testified in behalf of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, two Kensington women's clubs and various individuals. He said most of them would settle for a rate increase, if necessary, provided there is some sort of uniform reduced fare for school children.

Puts Boost at 67%

Conradis said the proposed rate increase, making the fare 5 cents per 1½ miles, raises the bus fare to Kensington 67 per cent.

A straight 5-cent school fare was proposed. People's Counsel Philip Dorsey interrupted involved statistical testimony by J. E. Heberle, company vice president, to ask what the stockholders' dividend was for 1947.

"A 50-cents-per-share quarterly dividend," Heberle said.

"That's one of the highest in company history, isn't it," Dorsey asked.

"Yes," said Heberle, "but it's an inadequate and low return."

The hearing was adjourned until next Wednesday.

Polish Dance Tomorrow

The Polish Club of Washington will hold its monthly social dance at 8:45 p. m. tomorrow at the Stansbury Lodge, 5832 Georgia ave. nw. Polish and American music will be played.

Through Monday

Washington's Birthday Rites Listed

Ceremonies already under way commemorating the 216th birthday of George Washington will continue through Sunday and Monday in the Nation's Capital and near-by Virginia and Maryland.

Federal employes will begin a three-day holiday tomorrow, taking Monday off because Washington's Birthday falls on Sunday. Most downtown stores will close at 1 p. m. Monday.

On behalf of President Truman, who will be on his way to the Virgin Islands, Attorney General Tom C. Clark will lead memorial services in Sunday observances at Mount Vernon.

Under sponsorship of the American Legion, the Attorney General will deliver the day's principal address over a Nation-wide hookup beginning at 1:30 p. m. A few minutes before the broadcast, Clark and District, Virginia and Maryland Legionnaires will place wreaths on Washington's Tomb. Music will be furnished by the United States Army Band.

S.A.R., D.A.R. to Celebrate

On Monday, District chapters of the Sons of the American Revolution and Daughters of the American Revolution will hold their thirty-fourth joint celebration of Washington's Birthday in Continental Hall, 17th and D sts. nw., beginning at 10:30 a. m.

Chief Justice Marvin Jones of the United States Court of Claims will address the group on "The First President's Part in Framing the Federal Constitution."

Later, a wreath will be placed at the foot of the Washington Monument, followed by a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel at 12:30 p. m. at which Justice Jones will again speak.

Tomorrow night the Mount Vernon Citizens' Association will hold a George Washington Birthday ball from 9 to 12 p. m. in the Collingwood mansion on Mount Vernon Memorial highway.

Members of the organization, many of whom live on sections of Washington's original land holdings, will be dressed in appropriate costumes. The ball, open to the public, will feature a grand march and pageant led by Association President Robert J. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson. A minuet and Virginia reel will be part of the evening's entertainment.

The Dupont-Stoddard Recreation Center Community Hall, Ridge rd. and C st. se., will be the scene of a neighborhood birthday celebration at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department, the party will be highlighted by dramatization of an old English ballad, "In Biberley Town," by a 22-man chorus and cast.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) will speak at 11 a. m. Monday before the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District at its Washington Birthday program in the Old Union Engine House, 19th and H sts. nw.

Alexandria Parada Planned

Alexandria will hold its annual George Washington Birthday parade at 2 p. m. Monday as part of a three-day observance sponsored by Russell Mitchell Post No. 609, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Celebrations tonight include the State Council of the Daughters of America costume ball at 8 p. m. at Almas Temple and a party at 7:30 p. m. in the gymnasium of the Episcopal Home for Children, 5901 Utah ave. nw.

Other Washington Day observances today include three parties at Georgetown House, 3224 N st. nw., for children of different age groups. A dance is slated for 8 p. m. at the Georgetown branch of the Boys Club of Washington, 2726 M st. nw.

The annual George Washington's Birthday Communion Service and fellowship breakfast of Episcopal laymen and boys will be held at 8:15 a. m. Monday at the Church of the Epiphany. Later, at the National Press Club, Jennings Randolph, former Congressman from West Virginia, will give the principal address.

Catroux Resignation Confirmed in Paris

Paris, Feb. 19 (NYHT).—The resignation of General Georges Catroux as French ambassador to the Soviet Union is confirmed in official quarters here.

His successor has been selected but Soviet acceptance of the nomination has not yet arrived. General Catroux is expected to remain in Moscow for at least another month.

Arlington School Board Hits Predecessor

Arlington's new School Board yesterday criticized the "unsound financial policies" of the old board, and scheduled a March 4 public hearing to explain its expected two million dollar-plus budget.

Fiscal operations of the old board, which left office last December 31, have put the new group "in a very difficult position," present chairman Barnard Joy said.

He said that on July 1, 1946, there was a balance of about $600,000 to operate Arlington schools until December 5, when local taxes were collected.

However the rate of expenditure was "so much higher" than the 1946-47 income that by July 1 1947, the balance was down to $350,000, Joy stated.

He said the old board had been forced to meet the increasing cost of education "but did not provide income to pay the cost."

To underscore his point, Joy said it cost 56 per cent more to operate Arlington schools in 1946-47 than the average annual cost in the five preceeding years. But, he added, local source school income was only 25 per cent higher for that year than it had been in the same earlier period.

To operate Arlington schools in 1948-49, Joy said roughly $300,000 more than last year's $1,726,375 will be required.

In a recent budget estimate, School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp asked a record $2,044,258 budget for the coming fiscal year.

Joy said the public hearing on the 1948-49 budget will be held at 8 p.m. on March 4 at the Thomas Jefferson unior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st.

Meanwhile seven county-wide school committees will report their needs and findings in a public meeting next Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Claude Swanson High, with the remaining seven reporting at 8 p.m. Friday, February 27, at the Thomas Jefferson School.

Flier Saved From Sea In Daring Maneuver

With U. S. Naval Force Off Puerto Rico, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—A daring helicopter rescue was credited today with saving the life of Lieut. (jg.) D. B. Edge, Spencer Iowa, whose plane crashed into the sea during final training maneuvers in the Caribbean.

Edge crashed off the bow of the carried Philippine Sea yesterday. Within three minutes a helicopter dropped a rope and hauled Edge into the cabin just as his own plane sank. Lieut. (jg.) W. C. Schaufler, of Newark, N. J., handled the helicopter.

The Capacity To Do The Job

IMMEDIATELY following the war steel companies began planning one of the largest expansion programs in industrial history ••• This expansion program now is more than 60 percent complete and in operation . . . It added 3 million tons of steel ingots to the industry's capacity in 1947 ••• Another 2 million tons will have been added when the program is completed at the end of next year ••• This expansion will have cost American steel companies more than $1,600,000,000 ••• Which is more money than the entire industry earned in profits during the last five years.

Two Agriculture Aides Hurt In Head-on Trolley-Auto Crash

Two Agriculture Department officials were injured yesterday when a streetcar collision head-on with the automobile in which they were traveling to work, at Idaho and Wisconsin ave. nw.

In serious condition last night at Georgetown Hospital was Dr. Whitney B. Stout, 46, of 4704 Langdrum lane, Chevy Chase, Md., driver of the car. A marketing technologist with the Office of Experiment Stations, Dr. Stout suffered multiple fractures, including a possible skull fracture.

The condition of Dr. Abner K. Kuttler, 57, of 4721 47th st. nw., chief of the tuberculosis eradication division of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, was said to be "pretty good" last night at Emergency Hospital. He received six fractured ribs and numerous lacerations and contusions.

Police said a street car driven by Mario Belliny of 4840 Crescent st. nw., was traveling north on Wisconsin ave. and had just turned into a loop near McLean Gardens when the smashup occurred. The automobile was wrecked.

Dr. Stout was freed from the wreckage by First Rescue Squad firemen. Police said no one on the streetcar was injured. No arrests were made.

Mrs. Kuttler said the two men, together with three other Agriculture Department employes, shared a car pool, alternating in use of their cars. She said she didn't know where the three other men were yesterday.

In another accident, John J. Carniello, 21, of 652 Massachusetts ave. ne., was injured internally early yesterday when his auto struck a parked car. The vehicle, police said, was owned by Maceo Sims, 32, of 3730 Hayes st. ne.

Truman Acts As Floods Hit Delta Farms

By the United Press

Flood waters washed over rich cotton-growing areas of the Mississippi Delta last night as President Truman ordered the Federal Works Agency to aid flood victims.

Threats of serious floods in the Ohio River Valley had diminished, but in Mississippi 300 convicts, national guardsmen and volunteers volunteered to reinforce earthen levees south of Greenwood on the Yazoo River.

Army engineers said that 411,000 acres in the delta area were inundated and estimated that a total of 700,000 acres would be under water throughout the Yazoo Basin by Sunday.

The Yazoo still was within its banks, one foot short of a predicted 40-foot crest. But the Tallahatchie, Yalabousha, Yocona and Coldwater rivers were flooding lowland areas.

The Ohio River had fallen to 53 feet at Cincinnati, after a drop of six inches in 12 hours. Observers expected it to fall below flood stage of 52 feet by early today.

School Improvement Demanded by Jury

Frederick, Md., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—An improvement in public school standards has been called for by the February grand jury. In a report submitted to Associate Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer yesterday, the jury said that students graduating from local schools cannot meet college entrance requirements and are unable to compete with students graduating from other schools in other counties.

The jury also recommended that the county delegation to the Legislature seek a State law regulating public solicitation.

Frederick Annex Area Urges Tax Reduction

Frederick, Md., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—Property owners from the area recently annexed by Frederick last night urged the city council to cut their taxes because of a lack of services.

Residents jammed city hall to protest lack of sewers, lights and mail delivery. Mayor Lloyd C. Culler told the delegation that some of the necessary improvements would be put in as soon as materials became available.

Dabney Named

Symphony Criticism

Though it is too early to tell with any certainty how well the all-or-nothing campaign of the National Symphony Orchestra is proceeding, response so far has not been overwhelming. The apathy in some cases undoubtedly stems from dislike for the orchestra leadership. Mr. Kindler has evoked hostility as well as friendship. Who doesn't? But whatever legitimate ground there may be for criticism, surely this is not the time to level it. The present issue is not one of personality. It is simply whether Washington is to have a symphony orchestra at all.

It would be a great pity, in our opinion, to permit any anti-Kindler feeling to destroy the work of 18 years. Theoretically it might be possible to salvage some sort of organization from the wreckage of the National Symphony if the drive for $165,000 were to fail. But this could hardly be done without a great loss in cohesion, prestige and service to the public. Washington desperately needs to keep a symphony orchestra, and instead of talking about what can be done if the campaign flops, citizens ought to consider ways of weaving the orchestra more closely into the city's cultural life—for example, through more school concerts—after they have sent in their checks.

As to the question of improving the caliber of the present symphony, there is room for argument. Certainly the Symphony Association ought to take seriously any manifestations of dissatisfaction. But the time to thrash this out and to make any changes found desirable is at the meeting of the Symphony Association. The main problem now is to make sure that the National Symphony is continued as an entity.

Farm Support Prices

Last week Senator Taft told a group of grain and livestock men that he thought the farm-price support program should be fixed much below the present 90 per cent of parity level. (In case of cotton the support level is 92½ per cent of parity.) Until recently the majority of farmers have not been particularly concerned about these support prices, for the simple reason that the prices of most agricultural products within the scope of the program have been far above parity. However, the possibility that recent sharp declines in wheat, corn and cotton prices which are still above support levels might be the beginning of a prolonged drop has directed public attention increasingly of late to these governmental price support measures. We are glad that Senator Taft tackled the ticklish question of our farm price policies at this critical juncture. For if it turns out that the peak of farm prices has been reached and passed, Congress will be under strong pressure to perpetuate the exisiting rigid system of parity price supports.

That system was originally intended to bolster prices of a limited number of farm commodities at a time of deep agricultural depression when farm surpluses were acting as a price depressant. Price supports were extended during the war, however, to encourage an expansion of production, and have been retained during the postwar period for similar reasons. The defects of the system are glaring: rigid parity prices weaken or often destroy the incentive for farmers to shift from the production of crops for which demand is declining to other crops for which there is an increased demand. The Government's unhappy experience more than a year ago with potato surpluses that had to be taken over under the loan support program and actually destroyed affords a case in point. Moreover, the parity base periods of many products are the five years preceding the First World War (1909-13). Since then costs of production of farm products, both absolutely and in relation to one another, have changed enormously. So have food eating habits.

Constant adjustments are needed to take account of changes in the character and amount of demand for farm products. A system of price supports based on the relationships of more than 30 years ago is certainly not adapted to present day needs. In recent years our problem has chiefly been one of stimulating production to meet high demands resulting from the war and the abnormally heavy food requirements of the postwar period. But that situation cannot be counted upon to last indefinitely. Moreover, as experience has shown, even under these favorable conditions the system encourages wasteful rigidity of production patterns.

Revision and modification of the price support policy, rather than a mere lowering of support levels as suggested by Senator Taft, are greatly needed to prepare the way for a freer system of agriculture that will not be based on the delusion that the prosperity of the farmer and of the country depends upon clinging to an outdated system of price relationships. A good many proposals for affording farmers some protection against the violent price fluctuations of an entirely free market and the present rigid system of parity prices have been suggested. All of them are complicated and offer a choice of difficult solutions. But for that very reason, Congress ought to give the subject the "prompt and thorough consideration" for which Secretary Anderson called more than a year ago.

Turning On The Light

No. VIII

Congressional inquiries should be dedicated to enlightenment and not to persecution.

Congressional investigations are public business, and they ought to be conducted as such. A vicious practice has grown up of hearing witnesses in secret, digesting the testimony thus taken and then asking the witnesses to repeat in open session so much of their testimony as the committee wishes to go into the record. The effect is frequently to give the public a distorted view of what the witness has to say. Such screening of testimony is more in line with totalitarian methods than with democracy.

There are, of course, confidential matters which cannot be properly aired in public. National defense secrets must be protected by Congress no less than by other branches of the Government. But these are the exception. The necessity of safeguarding defense secrets in no way justifies secrecy in the general run of congressional investigations. In our opinion, investigating subcommittees should operate in the open no less than do the legislative committees. Of course, they will need some means of determining what testimony is worth the attention of the committee. But screening for this purpose can be done by the staff, without any reliance upon star chamber methods. When the staff has done its work properly, no excuse remains for incurring the extra expense or the odium of secret committee hearings. We think each investigative subcommittee might well be required to get special approval from the full committee of which it is a part before being allowed to examine a witness in secret.

In some instances information obtained in secret hearings has been made the basis of charges or conclusions released to the public before the individual in question has had a chance to testify openly. That foul practice has nothing more to recommend it than the sentencing of an accused prisoner before he is tried. It is so utterly out of keeping with the democratic concept of fair play that no rule against it should be necessary. In the face of many recent examples of condemnation before hearing, however, we are forced to conclude that Congress ought to set up a rigid rule against it.

A corollary rule should prevent the issuance of any report by an investigating committee until it has been approved by majority vote. Too often the investigative power has become a tool in the hands of a biased chairman or member—a tool employed for personal or partisan purposes. The aim to be sought through the rules here suggested—open hearings, the drawing of conclusions only after the evidence is in, and majority approval of all reports issued by the committee—is nothing more or less than the good old concept of justice. It seems to us that Congress itself should be first to insist that committees acting in its name should adhere to methods in keeping with this objective.

Exit De Valera

After 16 years of well-nigh plenary power Eamon De Valera has been deposed as the Prime Minister of Eire. The Dail Eireann elected as his successor John A. Costello, a member of the chief opposition party of Fine Gael, and a former attorney general of the Irish Free State under the Cosgrave government. This denouement had been scarcely foreshadowed in the results of the recent elections, in which Mr. De Valera's party, the Fianna Fail, lost its majority in the Dail, but nevertheless retained enough seats to remain the largest of the Irish political parties. Until the very eve of the opening of Parliament, it was believed that Mr. De Valera would pick up enough strength among the Independents and the National Labor Party to enable him to organize a coalition government with himself at its head.

It now appears that in the post-election maneuvering Mr. De Valera was outmatched by General Richard Mulcahy, leader of the Fine Gael. The general, after announcing that under no circumstances would he support any government that included Mr. de Valera, managed to persuade the leaders of the lesser parties that they had more to gain by collaboration with Fine Gael than with Fianna Fail. It is even possible that Mr. De Valera helped to defeat himself by his characteristically stiff-necked statement shortly after the election that he would not seek to organize a coalition but would allow himself to be approached by other party leaders.

The opposition of the smaller parties to Mr. De Valera appears to be economic rather than personal, as is probably the case with the leaders of the Fine Gael. The interesting thing is the willingness of the two labor parties which have obtained increased strength by the elections to ally themselves with the Fine Gael, which has hitherto been conservative in its economic program. On what basis the alliance has been made is not clear at this time. For that matter, not much is known in this country about the views or qualities of Prime Minister Costello, although he has been described as a brilliant parliamentarian.

Antarctic Theatrics

All the elements of a comic opera plot are to be found in the imbroglio brewing in the remote island areas off the southern tip of South America. His Britannic Majesty's cruiser Nigeria has been dispatched to protect British interests in the Falkland Island Dependencies against interlopers. Chile has asserted rights to the territories off Cape Horn, and President Gabriel Gonzales Videla personally has landed on Greenwich Island, one of the South Shetland group claimed by Britain on which Chile has installed a weather station. The Chilean President has warned, somewhat presumptuously, that any attempt to seize land she regards as her own will be considered an act of aggression "against all the nations of the Americas." Meanwhile Argentina, which has never ceased to contend that the Falkland Islands rightfully belong to her, now plans to send an expedition to those islands.

Actually there are three separate problems. First is the dispute between Argentina and Great Britain. Argentine claims to the Falkland Islands, which lie off her southeast coast, are based on onetime Spanish possession, plus an interim settlement by the Republic of Buenos Aires in the 1830s. In the general area known as the Falkland Island Dependencies, Britain claims the Falklands themselves plus the South Georgia and South Shetland groups and large hunks of the Antarctic continent. She contends that the islands are hers by right of discovery and possession—she has exercised de facto government over the islands and the few Scottish sheep raisers who populate the Falklands since 1833. The British-Chilean controversy centers around the Chilean dogma that the northern tip of Antarctica is really a geographical extension of South America and that she is hence the owner of the islands in between. Finally, of course, there is the over-all problem of claims to Antarctica itself—a muddle, incidentally, in which the United States recognizes no contender.

Britain's position is enhanced by the fact that she has offered to submit the dispute to the International Court of Justice, an offer which Chile and Argentina have declined. Britain in turn has rejected the Argentine proposal for an international conference over one of the contested group, Deception Island. Now the British intimate that they will turn the whole affair over to the United Nations. That, in our opinion, is the proper place for it—and along with it the welter of claims over Antarctica as well. What is now much ado about very little is of potential significance if bad feelings are allowed to fester. And certainly the regions concerned are too cold to get very hot about.

Jumping Bail

There can be no doubt that the quashing of four out of five charges against a defendant when he failed to show up for trial in Municipal Court on Monday was, as United States Attorney George Morris Fay so conservatively put it, an error in judgment. It was so grievous an error as inescapably to evoke a suspicion of gross impropriety and to warrant Judge Armond Scott's castigation of it as "an immoral precedent." Mr. Fay's second-thought outraged innocence expressed in his letter yesterday demanding a retraction from the judge proves nothing save that, as the judge put it, "he has a lot of nerve." Judge Scott was eminently correct in condemning the quashing of these charges when he found himself unable to prevent it.

The effect of the quashing, whatever its motive, was to save a bondsman $800 of the $1000 he had posted for the appearance of a man charged with defrauding former servicemen by posing as an agent of the Veterans' Administration. Apparently, when the man failed to appear in court, the United States attorney's office decided that $1000 was an excessive forfeiture to inflict on the bondsman, the case itself involving no more than a petty sum. But it is not the function of district attorneys to set or to reduce bail; this is a job for judges. In Federal Courts, charges can be dropped only when the presiding judge consents. Municipal Court procedure ought to be reformed to bring it into line with this sound rule.

PICTURE PUZZLE

Child, you who place the bright, the jagged bits of board
Into the shape of tree or sky or shimmering waterfall;
Frowning, absorbed, utterly lost in your picture world
Beyond the flight of hours, beyond any voice's call;

You who piece the last small fragment into its place,
Magically rapt in wonder at the scene made whole, intact,
Know that this scene is brief: Another day another hand
Will sweep the picture world away, cloud, cliff and cataract.

And know that this too will happen to your actual world,
The minute fragments bit by bit assembled by the heart,
The sum of hours, bright shape of laughter or dark grief,
All, all on some swift day and unannounced will fall apart.

Symphony Praise

You have opened your columns to publish a few letters from people who tried to detract from the achievements of the National Symphony Orchestra and its conductor, Hans Kindler, thereby making our task very much more difficult. In justice to the workers of the campaign now under way, may I now ask you to quote from your own reviewers regarding the work of the orchestra and its conductor throughout the season:

"The National Symphony Orchestra is playing brilliantly this season." (Paul Hume, February 8, 1948.)

". . . a memorable experience . . . Without benefit of the usual soloist attraction, Dr. Hans Kindler and the orchestra reached new heights in a superb performance of both the Beethoven Eighth and Brahms First Symphonies." (Donald Engle, November 24, 1947.)

"Kindler and the orchestra deserved full share in the thundering applause. The orchestra supported Pinza with brilliance and polish, while Kindler led with true authority." (Paul Hume, January 15, 1948.)

"All evening the orchestra played with a tone of real radiance . . . drew forth a lustrous sound not surpassed by any orchestra." (Paul Hume, November 20, 1947.)

"Above all, to Hans Kindler goes greatest acclaim for truly patrician guidance of a subtle program . . . A wondrously beautiful evening in every way, thanks to Hans Kindler." (Paul Hume, October 30, 1947.)

Certainly an orchestra and a conductor who are thus able to satisfy the exacting tastes of your reviewers throughout the season in works comprising the entire literature, as one of your reviewers said, "make the . . . drive for a sustaining fund for this orchestra a matter of real opportunity for Washington's music lovers."

Home Rule Inadequacy

Bil' Gold relates in his column of February 12 an amusing story by Abraham Lincoln as told to his Cabinet members. Their discussions were leading nowhere and the point of Lincoln's story was that you cannot give a cow five legs by calling her tail a leg.

That story is particularly applicable to our current public discussion of the Auchincloss home-rule bill. Home rule doesn't become such by changing the technique of obtaining expression of public opinion. After having gone through the motions, and the expense, of electing 12 good men and true, and telling them what we District citizens want, we then reach a dead end. There is no one responsive to our wishes to carry the message further.

As a native of Michigan, who by circumstances has lost the right to vote there, I should like to vote here, but only as a full-fledged citizen. What a travesty to vote here, then have to go begging to friends from the States to "use their influence in Congress" on our behalf in order that District legislation might not suffer because it has "no friend at court"!

It is my belief that despite the bill's so-called safeguards to insure nonpartisan elections and to prevent politics in local government, these will be honored more in the breach than in the observance. Furthermore, it is reasonable to suppose that limited suffrage may attract public-spirited persons of short vision and selfish aims, but that those of high caliber and long vision will seek public advancement via State government.

Surely a way can be found if the will is present to give the citizens of the District their full rights of citizenship. The present bill only grants the responsibilities. Surely, also, an amendment can be devised which will fully protect the necessary prerogatives of the Federal Government in the National Capital and at the same time give us what we deserve as American citizens.

President's Salary

I suggest that you print editorials showing the need to raise the salaries of Government officials such as the President to $150,000 a year; the Vice President to $75,000; Cabinet members to $50,000, and Supreme Court Justices to $40,000 a year or more.

If the president and other high officials of comparatively small companies whose responsibilities are nowhere near those of these Government officials can be paid from $100,000 a year to $500,000 a year, why should not our top Government officials be paid more?

We do not have to stress the importance or responsibilities of the above officials, who have the responsibilities of handling the welfare and resources of the entire country. Why, getting honest, qualified officials even at the suggested salaries are bargains compared with their responsibilities.

Good Carrier Service

During the five years that I have been a home subscriber to The Washington Post, there have been three or four instances in which I have been forced to complain about the delivery service. Since I don't hesitate to inform you when I am displeased with the service, it is only fair that I also tell you when the service I receive is exceptionally fine.

To my knowledge I have never seen the boy who is currently making delivery of The Washington Post to me. But the service I am receiving is by far the best I have ever experienced both in Washington and in the other parts of the country in which I have lived.

The paper is always neatly folded, it is right in front of the door instead of on the porch roof or on the lawn or in the shrubbery, and on rainy or snowy mornings it is placed so that it is dry and readable when I pick it up. My sincere thanks to your delivery boy.

Clean Cabs

It is noted that the hack inspector, who states he was following a regulation issued by the Public Utilities Commission which requires cabs to be clean, inside and out, at all times, has warned 100 hackers to clean up their cabs "or get off the street."

It would be interesting to know if there is such a regulation applicable to streetcars and buses of the Capital Transit Co. If so, why have the proper authorities not been diligent in requiring the cleanup of streetcars and buses?

"Drift And Defeatism"

Your February 11 editorial, "Drift and Defeatism," is excellent as a summation of the acquiescent ineptitude which seemingly afflicts the present management of United States foreign policy. The United States has spent the past two years attempting to extend its influence in an enormous area of political anarchy until the resources and facilities of the Nation have reached the point of overextension; yet, the Nation is faced with the realization that nothing concrete has been accomplished. As you state, "It is clear . . . that the burden of international decisions is so great that this country cannot shoulder them alone."

It is submitted that the basic reasons for our "drift and defeatism" are attributable to the methods by which we approach world problems. For the past two years we have attempted to secure our Allies and our outposts principally by purchase. We have pumped money and material into Greece, Turkey, China, Great Britain and France, to secure them as bastions against communism; and it is on this basis that the ERP is being "sold" to Congress and to the people. Certainly this is anything but a positive approach to the problems which confront us; rather, it is an attempt to continue mechanics of international relations directed toward the preservation of peace through balance of power. As a consequence we have plunged into a struggle with the Soviet Union, a cold war.

But it is the program, not its management, which deserves criticism; for it is the inherencies of the program which have led us into the morass of confusion with which we are faced. We cannot hope to regulate the affairs of a large area of the globe solely by the extension of our influence; nor can we expect to guarantee the peace of the world solely by unilateral action.

In community management, it is axiomatic that the peace of the community is dependent upon the establishment and enforcement of law. Enforcement of community order by individuals is not generally acceptable. The extension of this principle to world affairs should be equally apparent.

Need for the application of this principle is certainly apparent in the instance of the Palestine crisis. While you state that the Palestine peace might be obtained, "if backed by all the powers of enforcement (including conciliation) that the U. N. can command," it should be only too obvious that the United Nations has no powers of enforcement. Actually, any enforcement of a decision reached by the United Nations is dependent upon the willingness of the member nations to implement such decisions. If such implementation is to interfere with the influence which a member nation wishes to exert over a given area, it is difficult to see how enforcement of U. N. decisions can be accomplished.

Accordingly, it would appear proper to suggest that if the United States is unable to fulfill its unilateral commitments; if our present foreign policy is such that it cannot be fully nor properly implemented, then the time has come to change that policy. Would it not be more realistic to do this by using our influence toward revising the United Nations Charter to make of that organization a governmental structure, equipped with such powers as may be necessary to enforce decisions and to preserve peace, rather than to preserve the present United Nations Organization as an advisory body?

It would appear that the adoption of this type of policy would permit the United States to participate in positive programs looking toward the sound reconstruction of the world on a joint basis, without the futile expenditure of the Nation's resources. Is it not time for the United States, as a Nation founded on the right of government to maintain order, to actively advocate the extension of these principles to the preservation of peace and order throughout the world?

"Gallinger Hospital"

I should like very much to refer to your editorial of February 13, entitled "Gallinger Hospital." Not only is it the desire to thank The Washington Post for the editorial in its reference to the hospital itself, where indeed so much excellent work is being done by faithful and loyal employes, but we should like also to take notice of the tribute paid to the superintendent. We are indeed grateful for such a testimonial coming from such a high and responsible source.

The hospital does have its difficulties and perhaps will continue to have them, but it is certainly very heartening and encouraging to those of us who are trying to do a good job in making Gallinger into the leading hospital of its type in this country.

Atomic Scientists

THE TYPE that best sums up our perplexed civilization in this moment of decision is the scientist. He has given into the hands of a society just struggling out of the new stone age the supreme power over life and death on this planet, and his conscience is deeply troubled.

The hundreds of scientists working for the United States Atomic Energy Commission are not precisely happy. The ratio of AEC money and effort going into the military end of the program is about 97 per cent to 3 per cent for peacetime uses. That, at any rate, is the rough approximation that the scientists arrive at.

Members of the commission say that no such arbitrary breakdown is possible. Work that is being done to develop and improve the atomic bomb will contribute also to peacetime development and understanding of atomic energy.

The chief complaint of the scientists comes over what is known as the reactor program. With the vast quantities of radioactive material available from the atomic project, it is possible to study secrets of nature hitherto beyond the range of man's most powerful instruments. Thus it may become possible through reactors to learn how plants store up food for man and animals. With such knowledge, basic food could be easily manufactured in the laboratory.

But the scientists say that AEC is not attacking this new frontier with anything like the vigor and the thoroughness that such a stirring potential should call forth. Here, of course, you get down to something pretty fundamental in a world such as ours, where money values determine what is done or not done.

ONE OF the top atomic physicists put it this way:

"What should be done is obvious enough. Twenty, 30 million dollars—a big enough sum—should be turned over to scientists working on the reactor program. They should be told: 'Here is the money. Now get to work. If you come up with something in the next few years, fine. If you don't, then we will understand that you did your best and failed'."

Government, however, doesn't work that way, and neither does business. There are such things as budget bureaus and cost accountants who want to know how money is spent and what are the results. In wartime such procedure was possible. But our peacetime habits can hardly encompass such a bold indifference to budgets and accounting.

Bureaucracy, whether of Government or business, is a stumbling block to the creative mind of the scientist—and he grumbles. A scientist of the Oak Ridge laboratory has a brilliant idea. He puts the outline of it down on paper, and then weeks or months go by before someone in authority makes a decision.

THE GENERAL Advisory Committee to AEC, created under the law, prepared a report on the peacetime uses of atomic energy, with special emphasis on a timetable for the future. This committee is made up of seven scientists and two businessmen, with J. Robert Oppenheimer, one of the Nation's top physicists, as chairman.

The report set a date for the development of peacetime power from atomic energy considerably in advance of estimates made earlier, when civilian control was an issue. The report has been held up for three months, although some pressure has been brought to release it. The commissioners say they feel it is unwise to fix a time schedule in the public mind when an unexpected development may completely upset it.

But in spite of some differences, relations with the scientists have vastly improved. This was attested in a letter sent to AEC on January 1, which said in part:

"On the occasion of the first birthday of the Atomic Energy Commission, the Council of the Federation of American Scientists sends its congratulations on the excellent progress the commission has made in reorganizing the atomic project on a peacetime basis. At this time last year, morale in the laboratories was low and the prospect of adequate progress in the field of atomic energy seemed poor. Since that time, the laboratories have been put on a firm basis, and good arrangements have been made for cooperation with university scientists and with industrial firms whose specialized experience is necessary in the development of atomic power."

What really troubles sensitive men of science is that their creative energy should be going foward bigger and better weapons of mass destruction. But the fault lies not with them. It lies with the sick and disjointed nature of the time in which we live.

European Federation

A Communication

THE OUTSTANDING feature of Mr. Bevin's now famous speech of January 20 was the precision with which he pointed at the central problem confronting the establishment of a European union.

"No one disputes the idea of European unity," he said. "That is not the issue. The issue is: If European unity is achieved, can it be done without the domination or control of any one great power? That is the issue that has to be solved."

One of the few instances where such an attempt was ever made was in Germany. There, the great power of Prussia was united within the framework of one federation with a number of small states with the inevitable result that what was nominally Germany was eventually nothing but Great Prussia.

In a federation, this was the only logical development. Since no federal law could have been enforced on powerful Prussia over Prussia's objection, federal laws could technically be executed only by Prussia herself, which alone was powerful enough to enforce them on all member states, including Prussia. Thus, the German federation of free and independent but unequal states was bound to be eventually dominated by Prussia—even if there had never been a Prussian desire for domination.

THE SAME inevitable consequence would arise if the European, or western European, states should decide, as now suggested, to unite in their present shape. We would have a handful of small countries such as Luxembourg, Belgium or the Netherlands, joined with a great power like France, or a potentially great power like Italy. On the basis of the present distribution of power in western Europe, the laws of such a federation could be forced on Belgium or Luxembourg, but never on France if that country should object.

No genuine great power ever agrees to comply with provisions that are not to its taste, and will veto or obstruct international or federal provisions even if it is bound to acceptance by constitutional or treaty obligations. An illustration of this point occurred only a few days ago when Frence refused to abide by the solemnly signed provisions of the International Monetary Fund.

A western federation, built on the present power patterns, thus could exist only if it would entrust its executive authority to its most powerful member. That, in turn, would mean that the federation would become a mere instrument of domination in the hands of that member, and would thus foster what Mr. Bevin hopes to prevent: the control of the federation by any one power.

BUT DOES this mean that no European, or western European, federation could be established with a chance of successfully resisting such a domination? By no means. It merely signifies that it cannot be established with such guarantees on the present power pattern of small and large states.

But it could be established on the basis of a new pattern, a pattern which would solve the problem of great-power domination simply by the elimination of great power, any great power, in the territory to be united. In other words, the members of the successful European federation cannot be Luxembourg, Belgium and France, for example, but Luxembourg, Belgium, and a number of regions now constituting France, such as Normandy, Brittany, Burgundy, Lorraine, Alsace, Piccardy and so forth. These historic regions on French soil, being of approximately equal size, are the only ones that are federable with small states like Belgium of the Netherlands.

An arrangement of this kind would still unite what ought to be united, and yet would eliminate the obstacle to all federal unions, the fear of domination by larger units, by eliminating the larger units. Nothing else can ban that fear; neither promises nor treaties, because the possession of power will, in the end, corrupt even the best.

The only way to solve the problem of successful federation is thus to cut the units to be federated down to a size in which none will have a measurable preponderance over the others. This, by the way, must have been Churchill's idea in his famous speech in Zurich in September, 1946, when he suggested a European union in which the German states should participate, not as a unit, but individually. There can be no question that he had the same in mind also with regard to the French and Italian states and regions, and that this was the part of the plan which he left unpronounced because, as he said, he thought he had shocked the world sufficiently for one afternoon by suggesting that Germany should be brought back into Europe.

FOR SOME mysterious reason, however, the idea of first cutting existing nations before welding them back into larger units, seems fantastic to our political theorists. This is mysterious because the principle of dividing unequally large into equally small units is not only a principle of federation, but the principle of successful federation. It is the reason behind the success of the American federation which knows no great power within its frame. The same is true of Switzerland, where we have not a federation of three, unequally large, nationalities as is so often believed, but of 22 equally small states, the cantons.

The small-unit principle, however, is not only the principle of federation, but also the principle of centralization and is thus the basic principle of government as such. When France was created as a centralized state, its handful of unequally large and ungovernable duchies were cut into more than 90 equally small departments which could as easily be managed from Paris by laws as it was difficult to keep the duchies subdued by power.

An identical process occurred in Great Britain where the unequally large and ever-feuding Scotch, English, Welsh and Irish nations could be united only by eliminating all four of them as political units and cutting them into so many small countries that none of them retained the power to veto the peace of the whole. And Hitler did the same with Germany when, to strengthen his dictatorial grip without having to strengthen his power, he divided the unequally large historic states into equally small Gaue, thus preceding the Allies by 15 years in the destruction of the state of Prussia as a political unit of the Third Reich.

IT THUS seems an inescapable conclusion that, if a European federation is to be created, it can succeed only if the participants dare to apply the principle of division to their pattern of union. France or Italy, in their present shape, are not more federable than Germany was previously. If Mr. Bevin's hopes are to materialize, our leaders have no alternative but to unite as federal units, not the present unequally large, ever suspicious nations, but, like the two successful federations of the United States and Switzerland, equally small cantons or states. For that reason, the participants in such a federation cannot be France or Italy, but Burgundy, Savoy, Tuscany or Lombardy.

This is not political theory, but administrative mathematics and human philosophy which tells us that only small states are modest, wise, and, above all, weak enough to accept an authority higher than their own—which is the most elemental prerequisite in any federation.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Horns Are Sharp

THERE IS a simple measure of the alarm and despair into which the Palestine crisis has plunged the White House. Last week, President Truman canvassed his advisers on the possibility of naming a bipartisan commission to study the Palestine question and recommend American action in 60 days.

Of course the President's advisers were forced to point out that a decision on Palestine could not be deferred for two months. It was also obvious that no Republican or even Democratic leaders would wish to share the President's grim responsibility for decision. After this brief wriggle, the President was forced to sink back upon the horns of his dilemma.

Two events this week have shown how cruelly sharp those horns are. According to all seasoned political observers, it was the Palestine issue that gave the victory to Leo Isacson, the Henry Wallace-American Labor Party candidate, in the special congressional election in the Bronx. This overwhelming upset of the strong Bronx machine of Edward J. Flynn indicates what political dynamite there is in Palestine, for a President now eagerly seeking reelection and clearly dependent on carrying such States as New York.

On the other hand, the report of the United Nations Palestine Commission firmly brushed aside the optimistic half-measure which have been so far chiefly urged by the American Zionists. The commission flatly told the U. N. Security Council that there was no hope of enforcing Palestine partition without an international army to do the job. It is believed impossible to recruit such an army, unless it is headed either by a large American, or by a large Soviet contingent. The latter alternative is not even being considered. Yet the foreseeable consequences of asking Congress to send American troops to Palestine would also give pause to a far-bolder President than Harry S. Truman.

EVEN IF the American Palestine force is limited to only 20,000 or 30,000 men (the British are now using about 90,000) the armed service planners assert that partial national mobilization will be needed to guard against trouble. A Middle Eastern outburst is so much feared that plans have already been made for evacuating American oil men and other American citizens from the neighboring Arab countries, in the event that a Palestine expeditionary force is sent. It is questionable whether Congress would approve the sending of such a force. And it is deeply feared that the mere proposal to send American troops to Palestine would cause a sordid and hideous outbreak of racial feeling in this country.

These are terrible but practical facts. But the present problem is so grave primarily because the President until now has followed the vicious system of hoping for the best without preparing for the worst—hoping that the Arab masses would not oppose Jewish immigration; then hoping that the British would not lay down the mandate; then hoping the Arab states would accept the U. N. verdict, and always without facing the fact that these hopes might turn out to be baseless and delusive.

From the first, it was evident that the present need might arise for this country to assist in imposing Palestine partition by force. But even the President did not face up to this. Since he was deluding himself, he naturally failed to prepare the country. None of the dangers listed above would now exist, if the facts had been faced, and the country had been prepared.

AT THIS writing it seems quite probable that the Administration will consent to lift the embargo on arms shipments to Palestine, provided the U. N. Palestine Commission so requests. But this will not answer the commission's demand for an impartial, international enforcement army in Palestine.

To this demand also the Administration must answer, "yes," or "no" or "maybe." The Zionists are urging, and some members of the Administration have been tempted by, the plan to recruit the American component of such a Palestine army from volunteers. The cooler heads in the Administration consider this project grossly impractical, for three reasons. A volunteer contingent could not be trained and equipped in under eight months to a year. It would involve the United States just as much as a contingent of regular American troops. And it would almost certainly be utterly uncontrollable, either by the American Government or the U. N. Palestine Commission. Yet this idea of the volunteer contingent is the only easy way for Truman to say, "maybe."

What is needed now, in short, is a clear decision between the horns of the dilemma. There are strong arguments for both courses now open—offering to send American troops to Palestine, and retreating from a policy which was made without preparing for the possible consequences. In the Government, a bare majority seem to view the former alternative as preferable. But all the more honest policy-makers concede that there is no argument at all for continuing to hope for the best without preparing for the worst, which is simply a way of inviting all the grim consequences of both alternatives.

Ginger Rogers' $292,159 Tops Film Incomes

By the United Press

Blonde Ginger Rogers yesterday took top billing among Hollywood stars on a new 1945-46 Treasury list of big salary earners.

Miss Rogers replaced shapely Betty Grable—another blonde—in the "leading lady" in salary position. The list also put red-haired Greer Garson ahead of Miss Grable.

At the same time Miss Rogers' total 1945 salary of $292,159 gave her the eighth place among the "Big Ten."

Her rise helped edge out Darryl Zanuck, 20th Century Fox vice president; C. W. Deyo, president of F. W. Woolworth Co., and Theodore Seltzer, president of Bengue, Inc., Union City, N. J.

The list is an addition to a similar compliation put out last August.

It covers salaries and other compensation paid to individuals by corporations during the calendar year 1945 and the corporate and fiscal year ending in 1946.

On the first list, the $208,000 paid by the 20th Century Fox to Miss Grable put her in the number one spot. On that list Miss Rogers was an also-ran.

All the figures are before taxes.

Charles P. Skouras, president of the Fox West Coast Agency Corp. and the National Theaters Amusement Co., topped yesterday's and last summer's lists with a salary of $568,143.

Louis B. Mayer, head of the MGM studio, moved into the third position with $502,571, replacing Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines Corp., who got $425,548.

Universal Producers Walter Wanger's $282,899 eased G. R. Fink, president, Great Lakes Steel Corp., and National Steel Corp., down to tenth place. Fink received $275,400 from both corporations.

Dennis Morgan Leads Men

Miss Rogers got her record-making salary in two bites. MGM paid her $175,000 and Vanguard Films shelled out $117,159 for her services.

Edna Mae Durbin, known to movie fans as Deanna, was next among Hollywood figures with $262,875, and Stanley Morner, Dennis Morgan on the screen, was third with $261,000. He was also the top male star on the list, passing Clark Gable's $229,687, Brian Donlevy's $227,834, Robert Montgomery's $226,333, and Errol Flynn's $214,000.

Donlevy's checks came from Paramount, which paid him $227,834, and from Universal, which paid him $99,708.

In the three, four and five positions among female stars were Barbara Stanwyck, who got a total of $256,666 from Paramount and Universal; Lana Turner, with $226,000; and Bette Davis, with $221,000.

The listings are not an index to wealth. Many of the country's largest fortunes are not reflected because some of the richest persons get most of their income from investments. And while the law requires the Treasury to publish corporate salaries, commissions and bonuses of $75,000 or more each year, there is no compilation of income from dividends, proprietorships, partnerships, rents or royalties.

Nor does it give the complete Hollywood picture. Many big name stars set up corporations to make a single picture; they get their compensation in the form of dividends, dissolve the corporate entity, and take what is left as a capital gain.

CIO to Troop Back Into ADA At Convention

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The first annual convention of Americans for Democratic Action, beginning tomorrow in Philadelphia, will see the CIO trooping back into the fold.

The event is of major—almost critical—importance to the young anti-Communist liberal organization; for its effectiveness, like that of any semi-political, social action group, depends on mass support or cooperation. The labor movement supplies that basis.

The return of the CIO will be manifest by a caravan of seven vice-presidents, attending as delegates. One of them is the CIO's Director of Organization, Allan S. Haywood. Another is Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, who will be a featured speaker.

Their appearance is significant because it evidences a reversal in previous CIO policy. Last winter, shortly after ADA was founded, CIO President Philip Murray and his executive board ordered all union officials to refrain from participating in outside political organizations.

PCA Also Affected

The ruling also affected the Progressive Citizens of America, the Wallace-supporting organization in which Communist influence is heavy. But the adverse effect was considerably greater on ADA. PCA already had considerable mass support, having inherited the organization of the former Independent Citizens Committee and the Citizens Political Action Committee.

Murray's order was seen by some as a death blow to ADA. It survived, however, and enjoyed the support of the AFL and the Independent Machinists. Last week, A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, joined ADA.

At present, then, ADA is supported by all branches of labor except the CIO's left-wing groups. Some 17 international union presidents will attend the Philadelphia meeting.

The return of the CIO leaders reflects a change in Murray's thinking. A year ago, Murray strove to minimize the left-right friction in his organization. But in recent months, he has shown active support to the anti-Communist elements in a series of critical decisions.

Position of CIO Fank and File

The newest step, in permitting the attendance of top union figures, is not seen as meaning that CIO rank and filers will flock into ADA local chapters. The CIO will almost certainly continue to act through its political adjunct, the Political Action Committee.

But the move nevertheless appears to be a full CIO indorsement to ADA, and an indication that ADA and PAC will cooperate on common aims, working among separate groups, however.

The annual convention will be opened by ADA's two top officers, Leon Henderson and Wilson W. Wyatt. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be chairman of the convention dinner.

Speakers at various convention sessions include Senators Morse (R., Oreg.), O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), Myers (D., Pa.), AFL President William Green, Minneapolis Mayor Hubert Humphrey, William H. Davis, Reinhold Niebuhr, Arthur M. Schlesinger, jr., and Presidential Economic Adviser Leon Keyserling.

The Gallup Poll

Truman Is Strong in South Despite Threats of Revolt

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 19.—The Southern Democratic revolt against President Truman will have to go a long way before it affects voting sentiment in the South. President Truman is as popular with Southern voters as Franklin D. Roosevelt was in the early days of his Administration, and more popular than Roosevelt was during his last term of office.

When Southern voters were questioned during January and February on their preference in various "trial-heat" races for the Presidency, the vote for Truman ranged between 74 per cent and 76 per cent. This compares with a vote of only 69 per cent for Roosevelt in the South in 1944.

A number of Southern Governors have threatened to withhold electoral votes from Truman unless he modifies his demands for civil liberties reform in the South. It is possible that these threats may influence Southern voters against Truman. But a somewhat similar revolt in 1944 against the Roosevelt Administration fizzled out long before election time, except in Texas, where an anti-Roosevelt movement known as the "Texas Regulars" polled approximately 12 per cent of the vote.

The problem facing any anti-Truman movement in the South can be seen from the following indications the President's popularity there in "trial-heats" against Thomas E. Dewey, Harold E. Stassen, and Senator Robert A. Taft, and against Henry A. Wallace on a third ticket.

Truman	74%
Stassen	19
Wallace	2
No opinion	5
Truman	75%
Dewey	19
Wallace	1
No opinion	5
Truman	76%
Taft	16
Wallace	2
No opinion	6

This compares with recent elections as follows: In 1944 the Democratic presidential vote was 69 per cent in the South, in 1940 it was 73 per cent and in 1936 it was 76 per cent.

In other words, President Truman's popular standing in the poll shows him as strong as the party ever ran in recent elections.

Many Southern leaders have deplored the one-sided party situation in the South, claiming that the South would be better off if it had two strong political parties. It would then be in a better position to bargain for favors in Washington, runs the argument, whereas now the national heads of the Democratic party tend to take the South's support for granted.

On several occasions in recent years the Institute has polled Southern opinion on the idea of two strong parties. Widespread support was expressed. In 1939 57 per cent of all eligible voters with opinions said they thought the South would be better off with two effective parties. In 1943 the percentage rose to 59, and in 1944 to 64.

However, the second party would have to carry a different label from that of the Republican Party. Except in border states such as Oklahoma and Kentucky and parts of Tennessee, most Southern whites will usually not vote for anything that is called Republican.

The name for a new party which would have the most popular appeal in the South, judging by a 1943 survey, would be "Southern Democratic Party," with "Jeffersonian Party" and "Independent Democratic Party of the South" close seconds.

Florence Eldridge Says She's Not a Communist

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP).—Actress Florence Eldridge is not a Communist, has never been one, and does "not intend to become" one, she told a State Senate committee.

Testifying before the California Legislature's Committee on Un-American Activities yesterday, Miss Eldridge, wife of Actor Fredric March, said in response to a question, that she resigned from the board of the American Congress of Women more than a year ago. "Principally because of the pressure of other work."

Committee Counsel R. E. Combs said the committee has learned the Congress is "one of the most potentially dangerous of Communist front organizations."

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Anshan Falls to China Reds

Shanghai, China, Feb. 19 (U.P.)—Communist Gen. Lin Piao's troops smashed into Anshan, Manchurian steel center 65 miles south of Mukden, today. Government military reports admitted the city was lost.

Anshan was the last southern Manchurian bastion guarding Mukden. The tremendous power unleashed by the Communists, who just a year ago failed to capture the city, indicated the government's tottering position in the northeast might collapse entirely by spring.

The Communists, who surrounded Mukden, then stalled their offensive possibly to await the outcome of the Anshan battle—now were expected to attack Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Manchurian capital.

The nationalists in Mukden were reported in a slightly improved position. Dispatches said the First and Second Communist Armies, were driven off, leaving behind large amounts of supplies.

China Needs Good Purge, Stuart Says

Nanking, Feb. 19 (U.P.)—United States Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart told the Chinese people today no amount of American aid could help them unless they ousted corrupt and incompetent elements from the national government.

In a "personal message to the people of China," the 71-year-old Ambassador, who has spent more than half his life in China as a missionary, professor and university president, called upon students and intellectuals to lead the "common people" in reform of the government.

He charged reactionaries and radicals placed "their partisan or individual interests far above those of the suffering people."

"No amount of American material assistance or any number of skilled American technical advisers can accomplish what is required to bring political stability and economic recovery to China," Stuart said.

"The major effort must be Chinese," he declared.

Neither the Kuomintang nor the Communists were named but Stuart asserted the people need "peace and productive activity under a government that cares for their welfare."

Soviet Zone Inspection Asked by U. S., Britain

Berlin, Feb. 19 (AP).—The United States and Britain demanded the right today to inspect all phases of demilitarization in the Soviet occupation zone of Germany.

The demand was in answer to Russian insistence on the right to examine naval bases in the British zone.

Kept for 'Historical Interest'

Arnold Solves Dilemma Of What to Do With Photo Wallace Cozily Inscribed

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SMART, TOPNOTCH Washington lawyer, Thurman Arnold, has lined his office walls with photographs of prominent gents, friends, acquaintances, clients. Among them is a handsome picture of Henry Wallace inscribed somewhat humorously with the inscription, "From one neo-Veblen to another."

Since the former Secretary of Commerce came out as third party presidential candidate, his political views are at wide, practically bitter variance from Mr. A's. So what to do with the photograph? To take it down would ruin the symmetry of the neat rows, to turn it to the wall would be childish. So Arnold pasted a strip of Scotch tape across the frame, wrote on it "This photograph preserved as historical interest."

Down in New Mexico mustachioed Pat Hurley is working hard patching his political fences, getting ready to run again for a Senate seat. Meanwhile New Mexico's former Governor, John Dempsey has been in town. He's pushing a Federal judgeship for his State's Senator Hatch, whose Senate stint ends this year. If Hatch becomes judge, then Dempsey will run against Hurley, and there'll be lots of fun.

Bachelor Arrives

WITH Leap Year hard upon us it's handy to know there's a new, attractive, unattached man in town. He's Jean Daridan, Minister-Counselor at the French Embassy. Dark, bespectacled, young looking, early fortyish, he's rated one of France's rising diplomatic stars. At the Sorbonne he specialized in art and was a member of the group of brilliant students who gyrated around the late Henri Focillion.

On the relaxing side, M. Daridan can sing politely wicked songs in an effective, tight-lipped way. He's wonderful paired with gay, pink-checked Capt. Pierre Lancelot, the French Naval Attache, especially when they sing "Le Pauvre Aveugle"!

Musicale by Mariquita

ONE of the pleasantest musical events this winter was a musicale given at the Netherlands Embassy to launch a remarkable young songstress, Mariquita Moll. Last year the Netherlands Ambassadress happened to attend a performance given by pupils of New York's Juillard School of Music. Mariquita sang the leading role in "Die Freischutz," and so impressed was Mme. van Kleffens that she determined to meet the singer and help launch her career.

At the musicale Mariquita sang a beautifully chosen program of French, German and American songs with extraordinary poise and, to this strictly nonmusical department, delightful range.

In spite of her unusual name (her mother visited Mexico, liked the name Mariquita), the 23-year-old songstress is 100 per cent American, never gave a thought to a professional singing career until after her marriage. Her husband is an engineer and has turned down several lucrative jobs to stand by Mariquita until her voice is completely trained and she's on her own.

Sleight-of-Hand

WE'VE mentioned before that serious-minded William Draper, Undersecretary of the Army, is a crack prestigiditator. In rare moments General Draper can sometimes be persuaded to display his impressive series of tricks. Usually guests are both impressed and amused. But on one occasion, when he was on military duty in Germany, his skill at palming cards, knotting colored scarves, plucking rabbits out of the air, almost caused international repercussions.

One evening General Draper showed his prowess in magic to a group of officers, including a number of high-ranking Russians. The following day the American command, at an important meeting, tried to persuade the Russians toward a certain course of action. The United States officer undertaking the difficult job of convincing the Russians quite thoughtlessly used such phrases as "all our cards are on the table—we've nothing up our sleeves."

When he finished there was a notably cold silence. The Russian faces were unusually deadpan. Looking over the group for an explanation of this reaction, the American realized the key Soviet officers had all been present at Draper's demonstration!

Military reticence draws a curtain over the conference's outcome. But we'll bet our Russian allies haven't been entertained with sleight-of-hand since!

Crusader With Market Basket

Ideal American Woman Seen as Brisk Organizer

By Genevieve Reynolds

The heroic American woman has a market basket on one arm, a smart bag slung over the other shoulder. She's brisk, well organized. And she never, no never, dawdles over her morning coffee in a kimono. When she uses the telephone, she states her message simply instead of holding up the lines for hours.

This ideal woman sees the market basket as part of the world economy, knows it's tied to ERP and FAO. She buys oleomargarine and tongue instead of butter and bacon. Remembers to write her Congressman to abolish the tax on oleomargarine. Then she finds time to cover important sessions of U. N., takes her son to broadcasts on world affairs. In that smartly tailored bag flung over her shoulder she carries neat packets of League of Women Voters broadsides on world trade, ERP, displaced persons and other subjects pertinent to domestic and international politics.

The verbal picture was painted by Mrs. Harold Stone, vice president of the National League of Women Voters, in a panel discussion on the "Shifting Status of Women" at the conference on "The American Woman—Her Changing Role as Worker, Homemaker and Citizen," which was sponsored by the Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor.

'New Look' Legislation

Senorita Minerva Bernardino, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women and the Dominican Republic's representative to the U. N., another panel participant, said, "The granting of civil and political equality to women constitutes a 'new look' of the world. A principle established by the United Nations Charter, surely it is the most important political document of our times."

She said that the Inter-American Commission of Women at the Conference of the American States in Bogota next month will ask for the adoption of a "Convention on Equal, Civil and Political Rights"—an agreement in treaty form, which, when ratified by the American governments, would provide equal political as well as civil rights for women in those Republics where they do not yet exist.

She cited the fact that the Inter-American Commission of Women was responsible for the adoption of the equal nationality convention at the Montevideo Conference of American States in 1933, which gives to women married to foreigners the right to keep their nationality and transmit it to their children.

Judge Dorothy Kenyon, United States representative to the U. N.'s Commission on the Status of Women, another speaker on the panel, said that the commission hoped to pick up the Montevideo Treaty, referred to by Senorita Bernardino, and extend its principles to women of all countries.

Lebanon Invites Conference

Judge Kenyon said that she thought the "commission should be peripatetic" and not a New York one . . . that it should go to the regions of the world where people need most help in education and fight for political and civil rights. Then she revealed that Lebanon had invited the commission to meet there in the spring of '49, plus an offer to pay necessary expenses of the delegates.

Other panel participants included Mildred Fairchild of the International Labor Organization; Maida Springer of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and Harrison Smith, associate editor, Saturday Review of Literature, as moderator. Pauline Newman read a speech for Elizabeth Christman, outstanding leader in the National Women's Trade Union League, who this month was appointed on the executive committee set up by the Federal Security Administrator to develop a national conference on the state of the Nation's health.

"Trade unionists accept women to a degree in 1948," said Miss Springer of the Garment Workers Union, "Some still think that women work for pin money, others consider us unstable labor supply. Whereas, actually we work because of necessity."

Miss Fairchild visualized the future woman as sharing increasingly economic responsibilities with her husband and predicted a greater number of American women entering the labor market.

Olive Heu.ton, speaking for the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, said that she would like women to have greater political awareness. "We train leadership in clubs and the past president merely sits back and criticizes. And we let her. She should be entering the broader political arena."

March of Dimes' Coat Modeled at Fashion Show

THE straw colored, silk worsted costume coat that was a spectacular success at the March of Dimes fashion show in New York a few weeks ago was shown in Washington yesterday. It was part of the coat and suit collection for spring displayed at Woodward & Lothrop during two shows at 11:30 and 3 p. m.

Nichola Lalli, designer of the coat, was commentator during that part of the shows that featured his designs. He showed several versions of the March of Dimes coat, all done in the new, stiff silk fabric that resembles bengaline and is lined with contrasting shades of taffeta. The silhouette remained essentially the same throughout—small, fitted bodice with smooth, rolled lapels, the skirt sloping out sharply at the hip line with padding underneath and covered buttons fastening the coat from collar to hem.

Softly tailored suits and coats, with emphasis on plaid fabrics, dominated the collections of other designers. Represented were Philip Mangone, Weiner, Edith Small and Charles of California and Molly.

Included also were raincoats and accessories by Sherbrooke.

St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Laurel, Md., was the scene of the marriage on February 11 of Miss Margaret Lee Aitcheson to Dr. Robert C. Reisinger. The Rev. Reginald F. Hall officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whiteney J. Aitcheson of Laurel. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Reisinger of Miami, Fla.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore ivory brocade satin with a hooped skirt and full-length train. A narrow headdress of orange blossoms held her veil and she carried calla lilies.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Maurice Griffith, who wore yellow marquisette with matching cap and mittens and carried oriental iris and acacia. Miss Jane Aitcheson, maid of honor for her cousin, wore gowned in periwinkle blue marquisette and carried a bouquet similar to the matron of honor's. The bridesmaids, Misses Weems Hawkins of Jacksonville, Fla., and Patricia Libby of Colombia, South America, wore pale green gowns and carried iris.

William Reisinger was best man for his brother and the ushers included Charles Oursler, Conrad Shamel, Morris Warren and Charles LeVenture. A reception followed.

On return from their honeymoon in Bermuda, Dr. Reisinger will leave for Ethiopia on an assignment with the ministry of agriculture of that country.

Rogers—Edwards

Miss Dorothy Brewster Edwards and Col. Nathaniel R. Rogers were married on February 7 at East Washington Heights Baptist Church, the Rev. M. P. German officiating.

marriage and she was attended by Mrs. Michael Ihre. John Booth of Rocky River, Ohio, served as best man.

Colonel Rogers met his bride during the war in England while serving with the Eighth Air Force Headquarters. She arrived from England aboard the Queen Mary just four days before the ceremony.

Gibberman—Szojchet

Miss Sylvia Szojchet became the bride of Stanley A. Gibberman on February 15 at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Sabina Gutwerk. Rabbi Henry Segal officiated.

The bride's costume was a white satin gown with an orange blossom crown holding her fingertip veil. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley on her Bible. Mrs. Gutwerk, matron of honor for her cousin, wore green satin and carried American beauty roses. Miss Toby Gutwerk, wearing a blue gown and carrying a basket of rose petals, served as flower girl.

Women's Place in Politics and Labor

of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, pointed out that very few women know how to go about going into politics. "I'd like to see the Women's Bureau take on a new job," she said. "I'd like for it to assemble all possible information about women who have been elected to office, their techniques, etc., and distribute it to others who are interested but do not know how to go about it."

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women, said that the greatest challenge before today's woman is to work for peace.

Miss Frieda Miller, chief of the Women's Bureau, who planned the conference to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Seneca Falls convention of 1848, gave brief greetings.

Undersecretary of Labor David Morse closed the three-day conclave with a summary of the conference.

Tips on Buying, Storage and Cooking

Lenten Recipes Offer Fish in New Ways

The first week of Lent, which ushers in our foremost fish-eating season, finds markets well stocked with a variety of fresh and frozen food from the sea this year.

Few people realize just how many kinds of fish are available on the United States market. Only about seven species are well known to the average citizen from coast to coast. Actually, there are about 160 varieties sold in this country.

It's smart for the homemaker to buy fish in the way that will mean least work in the kitchen. This is easy, because fish are sold as steaks, dressed, and as fillets.

FISH STEAKS are cross-section cuts of fish ready for cooking as purchased—fresh or frozen—and always make a good dish. Steaks from cod, salmon, halibut and swordfish are familiar standbys, while steaks of fresh tuna, striped bass, pollock and carp are available in some shops, too. Remember, the hard work is all done for you when you buy a fish steak, and there are few or no bones to detour. One pound of steak makes two or three servings.

DRESSED FISH mean it has had entrails, tail and scales removed. The head may or may not be removed as requested. Fins should be completely removed or trimmed along the outer edge. They should not be sheared off next to the body. Allow ½ pound a serving when buying dressed whole fish.

FISH FILLETS are boneless solid pieces of meat, with no waste, cut away from the sides of fish. Fillets are ready to place on the broiler 10 minutes before dinner. Fillets of flounder, fluke, haddock, hake, pollock, lemon and grey sole are filleted right on the fish boats and are available all year. Any of your favorite fish may be filleted on request.

Storage of Fish

Fish is one of the most perishable foods on any shopping list, so make the fish counter your last stop when marketing. Make it the first item stored in the refrigerator when you get home, too.

Never let fish, fresh or frozen, stand in water. Don't drown fish in running water or natural flavor will be lost. If you feel fish must be washed, do so quickly by dipping it in salted, cold water. When you take it from water, dry it quickly with a damp cloth or drain dry on absorbent paper.

Fish Cookery

Fat fish, such as salmon or shad, are preferred for baking, broiling, and planking because their fat content will keep them from becoming dry. Lean fish, such as cod and haddock, are preferred by some for boiling and steaming as their flesh is firm and will not fall apart easily. Both fat and lean fish are suitable for frying.

THIS boned whitefish was baked on a plank for 40 minutes in a hot oven and basted several times with a sauce of cooking oil, lemon juice, and Tabasco while it was cooking. The outer ring of mashed potatoes brushed with beaten egg was added when the fish was done, then put under the broiler for a minute to brown. The other vegetables—asparagus and tomatoes stuffed with corn—were added just before serving

The most important thing to remember in cooking fish is that it is too often overcooked. Just enough cooking to enable the flesh to be flaked easily from the bones will leave the fish moist and tender and bring out its delicate flavor.

PAN FRIED FISH

2 pounds fillets or steaks
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg
1 tablespoon milk or water
1 cup bread crumbs

Cut fish into serving size portions. Sprinkle both sides with salt and pepper. Beat egg slightly and blend in the milk. Dip fish in the egg and roll in crumbs. Place fish in heavy frying pan which contains about ⅛ inch melted fat, hot but not smoking. Fry at moderate heat. When fish is brown on one side, turn carefully and brown the other side. Cooking time is about 10 minutes, depending on thickness of fish. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve immediately on hot platter, plain or with sauce.

HALIBUT CHOPS

2 cups cooked halibut
Salt and pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
3 eggs
½ cup sifted bread crumbs
Chopped parsley

Flake boiled halibut into small pieces. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and let stand. Melt butter in saucepan. Add onion and green pepper. Cook until tender without browning. Add flour and stir two minutes over fire. Add milk, 2 eggs, well-beaten, and fish. Mix well; cook and shape into chops. Dip in crumbs, then in remaining egg, blended with 1 tablespoon water, and again in crumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat (380 degrees F.). Sprinkle with parsley and serve. This recipe makes 6 to 8 portions.

Market Memo

SIGNS OF SPRING are multiplying on the market. All sorts of greens . . . collards, spinach, kale, turnip greens . . . will be more plentiful and cheaper this weekend. Spring lamb is included among the meats, and eggs are about a third less than at their winter peak. New red potatoes from Florida are selling at prices not much higher than Maine potatoes.

WINTER FAVORITES are still abundant on the market, too . . . notably apples and pears. Some stores, we hear, are selling apples at 10c a pound . . . the lowest price in several years. Fine Bosc and d'Anjou pears are comparatively low in price. Supplies and prices of juicy, flavorful grapefruit and oranges continue about the same. Pork is still one of the best buys in the fresh meat line . . . and such items as smoked hams and picnics are a good food investment.

BRIGHTER WEATHER is bringing increased sales of fresh fruits and vegetables, merchants report . . . and this quickened turnover means that the produce on the market looks fresher. Small to medium-sized heads of green cabbage from Florida are nice and cheap. Lettuce prices are low, too, for this time of year. Tomato prices, while still high, of course, have fallen a bit.

Mrs. Carter Speaks On European Aid

The European Recovery Program will stimulate trade in western Europe and thereby contribute to expansion of world trade which benefits us all, Mrs. Margaret R. T. Carter, chief of the public liaison division of the State Department, said yesterday.

Mrs. Carter, guest speaker at the Women's City Club banquet, discussed their importance of ERP to world economy.

Other guests at the banquet were former presidents of the club, Dr. A. Frances Foy, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Miss Marjorie Webster, Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss and Mrs. John T. Lucker.

Astonishing
BUT TRUE, SO TRUE!

We can't figure out, ourselves, how we can still serve a Prime New York Top-Grade Sirloin Steak for $2.25. We haven't gone up on our price since we opened our doors some years ago. Food experts say it can't be done in these times, but we keep amazing the experts—and ourselves!

Mary Haworth's Mail

Eldest Daughter, Reared Abroad by Father After Parents' Divorce, Rejoins Sisters When Mother Dies and Finds One a Problem

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My parents were divorced when I was seven years old; mother gained the custody of my two younger sisters and I went with father to live in England. There I led a rather sheltered life, spending much of my girlhood in restricted schools, and I wasn't permitted to go out much until I had finished college.

Father was lost at sea during the war and when mother died last year I came back to the States to make a home for my sisters, one of whom is widowed and the youngest (Ann) is a problem child. Ann is spoiled and willful and has a rather nasty temper.

She seems to have been permitted to do pretty much as she pleased from the time she was 11, and although she is only 19 now, she has had several affairs (sne makes no secret of them) and has been engaged several times.

Her latest engagement, announced last summer, was broken off by the man, a very nice chap, who wrote to her saying that their differences in religion and way-of-life were too great to be overcome. Although usually she is very emotional, this news had little visible effect on her.

Bids for Affair With Her Fiance

THEN several weeks ago she met my fiance, here from England for a visit, and she at once turned all her charms on him, trying to win him away from me, which annoyed him exceedingly. Later, when I was out of town, she rang him up to announce she was going to marry the young man next door.

The young man, though pleasant, is most unattractive, has no job, no money and no social status whatever; and naturally George was very upset and called me long distance about it. We set about trying to prevent elopement and gave up much of our precious time together to include her in our plans and try to interest her in going out with others.

After a few days she seemed to forget about the man next door and threw herself at George. Again he was most annoyed but to cure her elopement fever we decided to let the situation ride for a while. However, after she spent a fortnight trying to lure George into an affair, he now refuses to have anything to do with her and the problem is back on my hands.

In spite of the fact that she is my sister, I think her actions have been and are repulsive and indecent. George and I are returning to England to be married soon and we want to take my widowed sister with us; but feel the effect of leaving Ann alone would be disastrous. Yet the problem she presents is beyond our powers. Is a psychiatrist the answer? Please advise. W. F.

Girl Is Victim Of Her Rearing

DEAR W. F.: Dr. William Menninger, writing in the January issue of Atlantic Monthly on mental health in the U. S. A., remarks that psychiatrists are in agreement that healthy development of emotional adulthood depends very largely upon a childhood home situation which provides affection, good example and security.

He mentions the unfortunate fact that many individuals are not emotionally mature, speaks of the tragic mark left on children by the frustrated wife and mother and goes on to say that emotional immaturity expresses itself symptomatically in several major social problems—"for instance," he says, "the marked increase of nonmarital sexual relations."

The eight-page article, titled "Psychiatry Today," is good reading throughout; but the comment cited here seems specially relevant to Ann's case, giving perspective on what ails her.

She is pretty seriously disorganized at this point: anxious, unstable, synical and vindictive,—in consequence of hit-or-miss rearing by a distrait mother, I daresay, who probably regarded the youngest child as more of a nuisance than a blessing, arriving as she did on the eve of divorce.

Growth or Ruin: Girl Must Choose

IT'S certainly true that you can't help her, either by frantic cajolery or attempts at restraining action. At 19, she is beyond help unless she chooses to help herself, by starting from scratch with professional guidance to develop mature substance of character.

This she can do if she will, and she certainly should, to gain reprieve from the social disasters and final terrorizing confusion of mind usually incurred by the incorrigible "infant terrible" who loses his parents and won't grow up.

So for advice: Stay emotionally detached from the problem she poses. All must bear in mind that it's up to Ann to hang or save herself. Go back to England as per plan and marry George. Don't take the widowed sister on your shoulders either; but before you go, line up a specialist fo. Ann and let George (who has influence with her) talk turkey to Ann about whose problem this is, and point to the doctor as the man to cleave to while solving it. M. H.

Millars to Arrive in Spring

British Embassy Shifts To Bring Family Reunion

By Marie McNair

Joy reigns in the household of Jonkheer and Mme. Rene de Marees Van Swinderen since word came from London to expect their family here this spring.

Preceding the new British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, to Washington will be the new British Minister, Frederick Robert Hoyer Millar, son-in-law of Jonkheer and Mme. Van Swinderen. Mr. Millar served here as Counselor of the British Embassy two or three years ago.

Mr. Millar expects to leave the British Isles the end of the month, will arrive in the Capital early in March and be waiting for Mrs. Millar and the children when school holidays at Cornwall are over in May. A member of one of Washington's first families, Mrs. Millar is a cousin of Charles Carroll Glover, jr. Her father, once Netherlands Minister to London, is now retired from the diplomatic service and with Mme. Van Swinderen lives on a part of the Glover's expansive estate out on Massachusetts ave. Of the four Millar children—Elizabeth, Robin, Alastair and Annabel—the three eldest are in school. Elizabeth is a boarder at Eastfield; Robin and Alastair are students at Summerfield. Only Annabel, who is 5, stays at home.

The new British Minister had thought he wa going to Austria. Instead, it was decided that he would be of more value in the United States, to handle most of the routine work ordinarily undertaken by the Ambassador, leaving Sir Oliver free to devote his attention to Britain's role in the Marshall Plan.

JAEN GUARDIA, new Panama Ambassador, is winging his way northward today accompanied by Senora De Guardia and 3-year-old, Ernesto, "spittin' image" of his dad.

Senor Guardia can claim the distinction of having served as President of his country for a period of three hours. That was in 1940 when a coup d' etat removed the President, suspected of being pro-Nazi. Senor Guardia was then Second Vice President and as Vice President No. 1 was nowhere to be found, Senor Guardia was pushed into the job. He resigned the Presidency at the end of a three-hour term, asked the Cabinet to choose a new Chief Executive to serve until national elections were held.

Jaen Guardia is also a former Ambassador to the United States—from 1941 to 1943. It was here he met the charming Delores Haas. They were married in Texas when he had left his post here and was on his way back to Panama.

TOWN TOPICS:

Mrs. Frank Vanderlip, jr., who had such a time landing that 57-pound sailfish in Florida waters the other day, has decided to enter her catch in the thirteenth annual $15,000 Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament which runs from January 11 till April 18. It was while fishing off Whale Harbor in the Florida Keys that Betty Vanderlip came up with the struggling whopper.

Annexing a prize, citation or even a trophy in this annual angling contest is something of an achievement, according to old hands at the sports. The tournament is the world's oldest consecutive rod and reel competition, and is sponsored by the cities of Miami and Miami Beach.

PARTIES

March 1 for New York preparatory to going overseas, was the cocktail fete yesterday at which Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis were hosts. The guests were mostly from the service set and included only close friends of the Brytes.

A springlike touch to Mrs. Bryte's costume was the orchid lei which Mrs. St. Lewis had arranged to be flown from Hawaii, where she was a recent visitor.

MME VASCO GARIN, wife of the Counselor of the Portuguese Embassy in Canada, who is here to visit Mrs. John Paterson, shared honors with Signora Rosso, wife of the former Italian Ambassador to the United States, at a luncheon given by Mrs. Emil Hurja yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club.

Other guests, all close friends of the honor guests, included Mme. Rocheta, wife of the Counselor of the Portuguese Embassy; Mme. Prochnik, Mrs. John Paterson, Mrs. John Shields, Mrs. Peter Ansberry and her guest, Mrs. James Hedges, and Mrs. Lee Murphy.

Return From Nassau

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. James Franklin Mears have returned from their wedding trip to Nassau.

First to Come From Pardah

Rani Kaiser Arrives From Nepal

By Elizabeth Maguire

THE first Nepalese lady out of pardah to visit the United States is Rani Kaiser, wife of the Minister of Nepal. From a far-away kingdom of fertile valleys, big game and high mountains comes this soft-eyed beauty with black hair, olive skin and slender build. Her little daughter, Tani, who accompanies her, is 3½, and already speaks a little English.

Tani is as bright and carefree as a song bird and meltingly sweet. Her name in Nepalese means "something that pulls at the heart."

The Minister, Commanding General Kaiser Shumshers Jung Bahadur Rana, is very much the head of the family. He is a bright, quick-thinking man, who has traveled extensively and has an air of one to whom nothing is new or surprising. The ladies of the family, except for little Tani, are a sharp contrast in manner. They have the traditions of centuries to shed before they can adapt themselves to Western customs.

General Kaiser speaks perfect English, has many interesting things to tell of his country. Located at the southern slope of the Himalayas, Nepal is a friendly country but discourages travel. Mount Everest is one of its landmarks, and the people trade peacefully with Indians and Tibetans.

It was at General Kaiser's suggestion that pardah was lifted last August in Nepal. As a member of the ruling family, the minister urged the Prime Minister to allow women to appear in public, and before long the idea was a fait accompli.

Recalls Royal Hunts

He recalls the late King George V of England on a big-game hunting expedition in 1911. The King, he said, shot 21 tigers out of a total of 39 and about a half dozen rhinos. When he accompanied the then Prince of Wales and now Duke of Windsor on a similar expedition in 1921 he recalls the Prince shooting one tiger and one rhino. The Prince remarked, "It is not a question of my getting more, but of the other fellow getting a chance."

Rhinos in Nepal are prize game. With a single horn at the snout, they are extinct in practically every other part of the world. The Washington Zoo has a rhino from Nepal.

The word Nepal is pronounced with a short "e," according to the Nepalese. A pillar erected by Emperor Asoka 2000 years ago to mark the birthplace of Buddha is still standing. Hinduism is succeeding Buddhism today as the religion of the people. "We live in toleration and peace with the Buddhists," the minister remarked.

The people of Nepal are not directly affected by the present strife in India, "but our neighbor's house is on fire," said General Kaiser. He added that when an apostle of nonviolence like Gandhi meets with a violent end, then the "bells toll for everyone."

Nepalese ladies lead a retiring life. Asked what her interests or hobbies are, Rani Kaiser replied, "Gardening and reading."

Rani Kaiser,, who is not quite 24, wears a sapphire ring to avert the evil eye of Saturn, because, according to belief, everyone is under the evil eye of Saturn for 7½ years every 29 years.

With pardah lifted and bright little girls like Tani abroad, it will be interesting to note changes in the next generation of Nepalese ladies.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you tell me if there is something I can use to restore a gray artificial leather baby carriage that has cracked and is peeling? W. S. B.

Covering the buggy with a thin coat of quick-drying gray enamel will do much to improve its appearance. Be sure the leather is free from dirt and thoroughly dry. Brush it vigorously to remove any particles which are loose or peeling. Put up the top of the buggy and arrange other parts so they are as taut as possible. Use a good grade of quick-drying enamel and apply thinly. Place where it will dry quickly and thoroughly in a dust-free room.

All my mahogany veneer furniture is in varying stages of blistering and peeling due either to an inferior brand of furniture polish or improper application (insufficient elbow grease perhaps). (1) Can you tell me an inexpensive but effective method of restoring the finish? (2) Is there something about the application of furniture polish that I don't know? B. W. W.

Refinishing is the only way to restore furniture with a peeled and blistered finish. If done at home, this is not an expensive job. It is time-consuming and hard work, however. The old finish must be removed first. It can be taken off with varnish remover, but this must be handled very carefully when working on veneer. If it gets under the veneer, it will loosen it. Remove last traces of finish by sandpapering the surface satin smooth. A mahogany oil stain can then be applied, and when this dries, several coats of clear varnish. Sand each coat after it dries to give the piece a soft sheen.

When polishing furniture, always choose a good quality polish and apply only about four times a year. Be sure furniture is thoroughly clean before polishing. Apply with clean, soft cloth, rubbing in well. Then change to another clean, soft cloth and continue rubbing until there is no trace of polish left and furniture has soft sheen. If excess polish is left standing on surface, it might make the finish peel. Also, excessive heat from direct sunlight or nearby radiator will cause finish to peel. Buff furniture frequently between polishings.

Can you give me simple recipes for making pork chop suey the Chinese way and the American way? R. G. M.

A recipe for Chinese chop suey follows:

½ pound lean pork
2 tablespoons fat
1 cup diced celery
¾ cup sliced onions
1 cup chicken bouillon
¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 tablespoon corn starch
2 tablespoons water
1 can (No. 2½) bean sprouts, drained
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
¼ teaspoon sugar
3 cups boiled rice

Cut pork in small pieces and brown in fat. Add celery, onions, and bouillon. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Add mushrooms and paste made of cornstarch and water and cook 10 minutes, stirring until thickened. Add bean sprouts and seasonings, and heat thoroughly. Serve hot with boiled or steamed rice. If desired, 2 tablespoons soy sauce may be added to chop suey for additional flavoring. This recipe serves six persons. Since chop suey is a more or less "elastic" dish, this recipe can be altered to suit what you have on hand, using more of one ingredient and less of another if you wish.

The several recipes for American chop suey which I have all call for chopped beef. However, they could be altered so that lean pork could be used. Here is one. If you use pork, I think I'd leave out the cheese:

1/3 package egg noodles
1½ cup canned tomatoes
½ cup grated cheese
1 large onion, sliced
¼ cup oil
½ pounds lean beef, chopped
1 stalk celery
Soy sauce
Salt and pepper

Cook noodles in large amount of boiling salted water 10 minutes, or until soft. Drain and return to kettle. Then add tomatoes and cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Saute onion in oil until slightly yellow. Add chopped beef and stir until well browned. Add celery cut in thin long strips. Add to noodle-cheese mixture, season to taste with soy sauce, salt and pepper, and heat thoroughly. Serve with additional soy sauce if desired. This recipe serves six persons.

How do you prepare orange and lemon rind for grating? I want to use the grated rind for cake and cookies. V. M. C.

Washing and drying the outside of the fruit is the only preparation that's necessary before grating. If the juice of the fruit is also being used, cut fruit in half, squeeze out juice, then rub the outside of the rinds on the grater. Turn halves so as to get the best of the outer rind in your grated material.

Smoot May Be Candidate In Alexandria

Albert A. Smoot, Alexandria merchant, yesterday announced he would run for City Council if the at-large plan wins in the March 2 referendum.

Smoot

The referendum will determine whether the council will retain its present make-up of six members elected from wards and three at large or change to a seven-man council elected at large.

Other developments yesterday included:

1. The Alexandria League of Women Voters indorsed the enlarged plan, calling it "more democratic." A spokesman said the league would distribute pamphlets explaining its stand and urging a large vote at the referendum.

2. Ward Councilman Everett A. Hellmuth announced that owing to the pressure of private business he would not be a candidate for reelection to the council. A backer of the ward plan, Hellmuth has represented the Fifth Ward for six years. He is chairman of the finance committee and the architectural board of review.

3. Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) informed workers for the at-large plan that Government employes may take active part in the referendum campaign. Smith obtained a ruling on the Hatch Act from the United States Civil Service Commission, which stated employes of the Federal Government may be active "in connection with any question which is not specifically identified with a national or State political party."

In announcing his conditional candidacy, Smoot said, "I feel the best interests of all the citizens will be served by an at-large plan, which I consider to be more in keeping with the times, more democratic, more progressive, more truly representative, and more suitable for a city the size of Alexandria . . ."

Smoot, 43, is president of the Alexandria Community Chest, an original member of the Board of Public Welfare and past president of the Alexandria Chapter of the Virginia Cancer Society.

Fire Damages School

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP). — One wing of the Carver Vocational School was heavily damaged early today by a six-alarm fire. Police and fire department arson squad members are investigating.

Eby Admits Labor Chiefs Often Have Too Much Power

A CIO official said yesterday "there is considerable truth" in the statement that "labor leaders are too powerful and rank and file workers too subservient."

"There is similar truth in the assertion that political bosses, likewise, often have too much power," Kermit Eby, the CIO's research and education director, said in a statement submitted to a Senate labor subcomm'tee. He added:

"The remedy, furthermore, in both cases is the same—an educated membership or electorate stimulated to take their rightful part in the organizations of which they are members."

Eby and CIO President Philip Murray both urged passage of a bill to set up a government education program for workers.

Veteran Donors Contribute Blood

Daniel M. Clancy, 626 Highland ave. nw., yesterday gave his eighteenth blood donation—a routine affair for him, but a special occasion for the Red Cross Blood Center.

Clancy, a Bureau of Engraving and Printing employe, was the 1000th donor at the center, 1730 E st. nw. He was one of a group of Engraving and Printing employes, headed by Mrs. Frances Nadeau, which visited the center yesterday.

Although Clancy got the honors, he wasn't the only veteran donor in the party. Also giving up her eighteenth donation was Mrs. Frieda Vogel, 1810 Casadel ave.

The goal of the peacetime blood program, opened January 5, is to provide 30,000 pints annually for Greater Washington.

Historian Sees World Union From Atom Bomb

New York, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Arnold Toynbee, famous British historian, said today the atom bomb might bring about a political union of the world because no country can afford an atomic war.

The Oxford professor, who has completed six volumes of a nine-volume work covering 6000 years of civilization, will spend three months at the American Institute of Advanced Studies at Princeton, N. J.

"The only war at present could be an American preventive war, which I am sure America would not wage," the historian said. "There is plenty of room for both America and Russia in the world and we are not doomed to another World War."

They Call Ambulances For Injured Hogs Now

Decatur, Ga., Feb. 19 (AP).—Several hogs were injured severely when the truck in which they were riding overturned near here yesterday.

The price of pork being what it is, somebody in the crowd around the accident called an ambulance. In fact, two ambulances.

Neither of the ambulance drivers was perturbed on arrival. They said they understood the situation, but still were confined to carrying just people.

Costello Promises Eire Aid for ERP

Dublin, Eire, Feb. 19 (AP).—Prime Minister John A. Costello said his new five-party government would help the Marshall Plan by exporting more food to Europe.

The lawyer who yesterday broke Eamon de Valera's 16-year rule said the change in Eire's government would not affect relations with other countries.

[The United Press reported the coalition may end the compulsory teaching of Gaelic.]

U. S. Vice Consul Pleads Immunity in Lawsuit

London, Feb. 19 (AP).—Ernest Griffin, a United States vice consul, claimed diplomatic immunity today in a breach of promise suit. Mrs. Imelda Catherine Price, an English woman, is seeking damages.

Trial was adjourned for two weeks pending a decision by the United States State Department whether Griffin's immunity should be set aside.

On the Town

SAMMY Walsh at Club Cairo puts on a very funny show and keeps it clean . . . That has become an oddity in the clubs of late . . . Another newcomer at the Cairo is Jane Harvey, a lovely brunette songstress who gives no buildup to her songs—just stands up and sings . . . This miss is due for bigger and better things . . . (Note to Jane: Care to table-hop a bit?)

The Madrillon has announced that beginning Sunday it will be open every Sunday from 5 p. m. The Lazala Trio, featuring Miguelito and his songs, will play from 7 'til midnight. The accent will be on rumbas.

MIGUELITO

Pat Lane, known as a "Femcee," opens the Casino Royal show with a song or two the best of which is "Golden Earrings" with a little "Play Gypsy Play" mixed in for variety . . . Confusing on paper but pleasing to the ear . . . The Professor Ruloff Trio manages to massacre ballroom dancing by throwing one another around the stage in a most energetic manner . . . By clever manipulation of some zippers on their costumes they make their clothes appear well worn about half way through the act . . . One highlight was the appearance of a chorus girl who is the spittin' image of Mary Astor . . . Her only complaint on this comparison is that she'd rather look like herself, which isn't a bad thing either . . . Before any of you men break a leg getting up there you'd better remember she's very much married to Sid Slade of the Slade Trio . . .

MATT WINDSOR of the Windsor Room has acquired a new singer for his spot . . . She's Elma Santa, who back in November won one of Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scout contests . . . She has sung at the Latin Quarter in Detroit and has made a few discs for RCA. According to Matt, she'll be there for some time.

Judging from the crowds at the King Cole Room lately the local people are glad to see Donna Mason back in town . . . we don't blame them.

A lot of people have turned up their noses at Club Kavakos in years gone by, but of late they've had to bring them down a degree or two in order to see some of the Nation's top talent . . . In the past year Bill Kavakos has brought in Ray Eberle, Ray McKinley and many other top names. This week he's bringing in Sam Donahue and his orchestra.

Here's a bit of good news for you Pizza Pie lovers . . . Luigi, who might be termed King of the Pizza, has announced that instead of waiting until 5:30 or so to get your Pizza you can have it any time from noon on.

Hall's Restaurant, waterfront seafood spot, will be featuring Lenten specials on their menu throughout Lent.

Rumor has it that the Little Mexico is still packing them in every night . . . What better testimony for a good "South of the Border" dinner?

Recently the Normandy Farm advertised a Friday night buffet with the suggestion that you "wear your red flannel shirt" . . . Sure enough one prospective diner called to ask if he might be allowed to dine there without the benefit of the red flannel . . . Marjory Hendricks, the owner, also noted that several very new and very red shirts were in evidence.

BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR

ON May 3rd 1948, when the British Industries Fair opens, buyers from all over the world will have an opportunity of inspecting the products of 3,000 United Kingdom manufacturers.

This annual event is the world's largest national trade Fair. Such is its size and importance that you are urged to come yourself. You are assured of personal contact with actual manufacturers or sole selling agents and you will find exhibits carefully grouped by trades so that comparisons may be made quickly. Above all you will see new achievements, new methods of manufacture and new ideas all executed with superb craftsmanship.

This is your only opportunity in 1948 to review within a few days the achievements of 87 United Kingdom industries.

For information and assistance you should apply to the nearest British Embassy, Legation or Consulate.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Maybe Barnaby Can Answer the Jackpot Question

Malora R. Christman of 6700 Wisconsin ave., Chevy Chase, Md., tells me that four different quiz programs have recently asked the question:

"What two words are on every Government mail box?"

After the contestants fail to answer correctly, the quizmaster invariably says:

"Oh, I'm sorry, but I think you'll find that the words are 'pull down'."

Which leads Malora to point out that the mail box at Wisconsin ave. and Bradley blvd. omits the "pull down," and says only "U. S. Mail."

"And that," says our sharp-eyed District Liner, "raises a puzzling question. If all Government mail boxes have 'pull down' on them, and this box does not have those words—whose mail box is it?"

Maybe it's Mr. O'Malley's, Malora. They do things a bit different in Sylvania.

HELP WANTED

G. E. Roberts, librarian of the Interior Department's law library, needs some help. He writes:

"Our subscription copy of the December 2, 1947, issue of The Washington Post is missing, and I'm holding up our December file until I can replace it.

"I've hunted all over, but even your circulation department doesn't have a copy of that day's paper.

"Do you suppose that one of your District Liners can help us out? They seem to be able to do practically anything."

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mrs. W. E. Adkins of 1701 Massachusetts ave. nw. asks: "Can you tell me the name of the home for aged people which wants discarded neckties?"

I think, Mrs. Adkins, that you're referring to an item we carried on June 9 of last year. It said that Francis S. Browne of 1501 Farragut st. nw. collects neckties for distribution among the old folks at Blue Plains.

DEMOCRACY OR REGIMENTATION?

A teacher in one of our local public schools raises an interesting question.

It's probably old stuff to educators, but I've never had occasion to think about it before.

She suggests that all children attending public schools should dress alike; one uniform for the boys and another for the girls.

She says: "I know you'll be shocked by that suggestion, because it appears to be a plan for regimentation which would violate our democratic concept of freedom of choice.

"But it would accomplish two worthwhile purposes. It would eliminate the envy which some children experience because they cannot dress as well as their schoolmates.

"And it would give every child a sense of identification with his fellows. It would help to break down the many barriers which exist between various groups and tend to make the children feel that they're all part of one democratic community.

"I know that my suggestion won't be adopted; but it has always been one of my pet ideas, and now that I've gotten it off my chest I feel better."

"Why," asks Ruth Harkins of 1108 S st. nw., "don't we have any J, X, Y, or Z st. in Washington?"

I've been told that there's no J st. to avoid confusion with I st.

However that explanation doesn't appear to apply to X, Y and Z—so I wonder if any District Liners can answer the remainder of Ruth's question.

Gov. Tuck Signs Compact For Regional Education Plan

Richmond, Va., Feb. 19 (AP).—Gov. William M. Tuck today signed a compact to set up a Southern regional council on higher education.

At the same time he pointed out a State constitutional provision would prevent immediate appropriation of funds to the council, which would set up and operate regional institutions and hold title to them on behalf of the participating States.

Tuck was the eleventh of 15 governors represented in the Southern Governors' Conference to sign the document. The measure will have to receive congressional approval and be ratified by State legislatures before it goes into effect.

The Virginia Governor explained that the State constitution provides that public funds may not be appropriated for any school not owned or exclusively operated by the State. He said the section will have to be amended but that Virginia may be able to participate in the regional council through existing laws which permit payments to individual students to attend out-of-State institutions.

* * * *

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 19 (AP).—The South Carolina Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said today it opposed any regional education plan entered into by this State.

J. M. Hinton, conference president, wrote Gov. J. Strom Thurmond that, in the opinion of his organization, the regional education plan proposed by Southern governors did not meet requirements of U. S. Supreme Court decisions.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Degas lived in a cold, barren cell-studio in Paris. One day he was visited by Henri Bernstein, the playwright, and they discussed Forain, the painter-engraver. "I've seen him lately," Bernstein reported. "As a matter of fact, I understand that he has a telephone now." Degas replied, contemptuously: "You mean, they RING and he COMES?" . . . Degas taught classes at the Beaux Arts School, and told his pupils: "At the next session I shall expect each of you to paint a Jupiter." One of the art students asked him: "But, professor, where do you find Jupiter?" Degas told him: "Jupiter walks in the streets, and the REAL artists meet him."

When Russell Patterson was signed by Paramount Pictures he was ushered into his new office, with period furniture, an expensive desk, and pens and pencils. "This is all very nice," Patterson told the Paramount supervisor, "but I never used any of these in my work. I'm a painter" . . . The next morning he found that his desk had been removed and a larger desk substituted. "No, no," Patterson explained. "I don't need a desk. I'm a painter" . . . The following day the artist went to his office again and found that the desk had been removed and was replaced by a large painter's scaffold.

Diego Rivera, the Mexican artist and revolutionary, received many offers from industrialists to paint murals for their factories. "I know exactly why they make those offers to me," Rivera said. "Their workers are underpaid and slave under terrible conditions. Those industrialists hope that when the public sees Rivera murals there, they'll be fooled into believing that the factory owner is a true friend of labor" . . . "Then do you accept any of these jobs?" the shrewd Rivera was asked . . . "Of course. All of them," he confessed. "But only because I love to paint."

When Luis Quintanilla, the Spanish artist who now lives in New York, painted the frescoes at the Spanish consulate in Hendaye, a Basque farmer saw him sitting in front of his easel, studying the canvas. "I see you are resting," said the farmer . . . "No, I am working," the artist told him . . . Later in the day the farmer saw Quintanilla digging in his garden, and said: "I see you are working" . . . "No," was the artist's reply, "I am resting."

Notes on Thomas' Friend Cullum

By Drew Pearson

Ferguson

Memo to Senator Ferguson of Michigan:

Relative to the investigation of your colleague, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, here is some further information which I think is pertinent.

Earlier this week, Senator Thomas wrote you a letter stating that he did not want to be "bothered" any more or to have his assistants "bothered" by your investigators. At the very same time he wrote this letter, one of Mr. Thomas' long-time pals and unofficial assistants was up to his ears in a very peculiar deal which virtually cornered the dried-pea market. And there is considerable indication that he had inside information to the effect that the Government was going to buy 1,500,000 bags of peas.

The man who pulled this deal, the notorious Dyke Cullum of Texas, not only is in and out of Senator Thomas's office as if he owned it, but according to Thomas' own statement, has been acting as Thomas' broker in the commodity market.

Even more significant, when Senator Thomas, as chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, was probing the rye market with a view to heading off any price control of rye, it was Dyke Cullum who virtually acted as counsel for Thomas and his committee. Thomas permitted Cullum to sit at the table with other Senators and to cross-examine witnesses as if he had been elected to the United States Senate.

Mr. Cullum, your investigators will find, is a most versatile gentleman. He is equally at home when it comes to speculating in rye, cotton, or dried peas. And I believe that your committee owes it to both American farmers, who have been his victims, and American housewives, who have to pay higher prices as a result of his speculation, to probe thoroughly Mr. Dyke Cullum's sensational operations and his affiliation with Senator Thomas.

Corner on Peas

For instance, last October, Mr. Cullum cornered a considerable part of the American dried-pea market. Without putting up a single nickel, he purchased approximately 300,000 bags of peas. He did this through Wood-Baxter, Portland, Oreg., brokers, who purchased vast quantities of peas in the Northwest with the explanation that they were for commercial export and that payments therefore would be made only upon delivery. Thus, Cullum did not have to put out any immediate cash.

Since Cullum was selling for commercial export, his chief customer naturally would be the United States Government, buying for foreign countries. Under the law, however, the Government can buy only from an authorized dealer.

In November Cullum submitted a certificate to the Department of Agriculture, claiming that he was such an authorized dealer. The Department of Agriculture, investigating the matter, found that he was a speculator rather than a dealer. Accordingly, they disqualified him, refusing to buy any of his peas. This left Dyke Cullum with 300,000 bags of peas for which he was obligated at a price of around $1,800,000.

However, this did not seem to worry Dyke. Using powerful friends—which he seems to have in Washington—Cullum managed to have special investigators sent out to the Northwest to probe, not himself, but the Department of Agriculture official, Daniel McGarry, who had turned him down as not being an authorized dealer.

U. S. Army Rescues Dyke

Furthermore, Dyke used his mysterious influence to turn around and sell his peas to the Army. The Army had been working closely with the Agriculture Department, knew that Cullum had been disqualified as a dealer. But despite this fact, the Army purchased 35,000 bags of peas from Cullum at $7.75 a bag. Since Cullum purchased his peas in October for $6.00 a bag, this one deal meant a profit of $61,250.

The Army Procurement officer who made the purchase was Ralph Davis of the Army's Chicago office. Shortly after this deal, Davis went to work for Dyke Cullum.

As a result of Cullum's heavy purchases of peas, the price was jacked up generally. In fact, prices went so high that the Agriculture Department has refused to buy any more peas.

The Agriculture Department's boycott of peas has caused Cullum to start a lobbying campaign to force the Department back into the pea market.

I think you will also find that the Klemgard Pea Processors of Pullman, Wash., Martin Grain Co. of Grangeville, Idaho, and Inland Empire Pea Growers Association of Oaksdale, Wash., can throw some interesting light on the weird operations of this "unofficial assistant" of your colleague, the Democratic Senator from Oklahoma.

2 Senators Aim Blows at Truman Civil Rights Plan

Proposals Could Be Road Leading To Dictatorship, Byrd Tells Party

Richmond, Feb. 19 (AP).—Senator Byrd (D., Va.) declared tonight that some of President Truman's civil rights proposals "could conceivable lead to dictatorship."

In bitter words, the Virginian criticized, at a Democratic Party dinner, Mr. Truman's request for laws setting up a fair employment practices commission, and banning poll taxes and Jim Crowism.

He declared that the President's civil rights commission wants to give the Juistice Department the power to supervise primaries and elections of Federal officers.

Sees 'Field of Abuse'

"This opens up a possible field of Federal abuse of power which may be used to prevent the free discussion of the record of the party in power," he declared in a prepared manuscript, adding:

"Hitler and Stalin, in securing unanimous elections, did this very thing."

Byrd said in introducing Senator Hoey (D., N. C.), another speaker, that the South stands alone—abandoned by both parties—in its fight to keep the white and Negro races separated.

He said the President's FEPC, poll tax and Jim Crow proposals involve "a mass invasion of State rights never before even suggested, much less recommended, by any previous President of any party affiliation in the Nation's history."

He added that every Southern Senator and Congressman, except one he did not name, "is prepared to oppose this legislation by every legislative device within our power." He obviously alluded to a filibuster.

Time Then to Decide

"We may lose the battle," Byrd said, "and then it will be time enough to decide what action the Southern States should take."

Byrd thus differed from some of his colleagues who have been urging an immediate break away from President Truman.

He warned that the Southerners can expect no help from the Republicans. Both parties are bidding for the votes of "small pressure groups in Northern States," he said.

"The Southern people have their pride," he continued, "and if I know them rightly they do not intend to submit tamely to having their customs and traditions made a political football for the benefit of political aspirants."

Hoey did not mention the civil rights issue in his prepared address.

Ball Says Police Cleanup in D. C. Would Show Real 'Interest' in Issue

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) said yesterday he would press for an investigation of Washington police administration which has been blocked by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.).

Recalling President Truman's recent message to Congress on civil rights, Ball declared in a letter he regularly sends constituents:

"Here in Washington, the Nation's Capital, a new police chief, one Robert Barrett, was appointed last summer. Barrett once was convicted of beating up and crippling a man he arrested on suspicion, who later was proved innocent. A retrial was ordered but was never held. Barrett is the kind of policeman most cities have avoided for a generation.

Negroes "Roughly Treated"

"The rough treatment which Washington Negroes receive at the hands of the police here is so notorious that few of them will carry a complaint to the police any more. The reception they get indicates that any Negro or any other person without influence is guilty until proved innocent."

Senator Ball is a member of the District Committee and the District Appropriations Subcommittee. From observation on these committees, Ball said he wondered "why Mr. Truman is not doing something about the shameful disregard of civil rights of Negroes and other uninfluential people in the District."

If the President "is really interested in protecting civil rights," said Ball, "I would respectfully suggest that he call in the three District Commissioners, who are his appointees, and tell them to do something about protecting civil rights and cleaning up police administration right here in Washington."

Clegg Case Called Judicial Farce

The trial of three policemen before a board of two subordinates to Barrett and one civilian on charges of beating and detention, made by Julius Willie Clegg, a Negro war veteran employed by The Washington Post, "made a farce of justice, and Barrett congratulated them on their handling of the Clegg case."

"Eliminating economic discrimination against racial and religious minorities is important," the letter added, "but it is far more important to make sure that those fundamentla civil rights guaranteed in the Bill of Rights are protected."

Barrett said he had no comment on Ball's statement.

measurate with the justice in a particular situation."

Baldwin made it plain that he was committed to flat $800 pay raises for postal employes and that he would support sizable increases for Federal officials.

Senator Flander (R., Vt.) was another who said he hadn't voted for the Langer bill as written. He's a member of the three-man subcommittee that held hearings on it. Flanders indicated he's in favor of a percentage rather than a flat increase.

Senator Cain (R., Wash.), a third Senator who was listed in favor of the $1000 bill, said he favored his own bill for a flat $800 raise.

The showdown will come next Tuesday when the full Senate committee meets on the Langer bill. Chairman Langer said he already had a majority of his members pledged to support his bill. He looks for support from these members: Chavez of New Mexico, who joined with Langer in sponsorship of the $1000 bill; O'Conor of Maryland, O'Daniel of Texas, McKellar of Tennessee, and Johnston of South Carolina.

Meantime, Administration officials were debating strategy on a pay-raise plan. Now that the House committee is to hold hearings next week, the Administration will be forced out in the open on the pay-raise issue.

It's no secret that Administration people are opposed to identical flat increases for Classification Act employes. They would prefer overhauling of the Classification Act and a stepping up of Federal salaries up and down the line. The plan they have in mind appeared here Monday. However, the President must give it his approval before it can be recommended to Congress.

Incidentally, the Langer bill would give employes who are paid less than $2000 more than a $1000 increase. It would work this way: the bill would raise to $2000 the minimum salary that could be paid a full-time employe. A $1500 employe now, for example, would be raised to $2000 and he'd be given a $1000 boost on his new $2000 salary, or a total of $1500. In other words, it would have the effect of making $3000 the minimum Federal salary for full-time employes. That's now the average salary paid in Government.

Hourly employes who are in either the postal or classified services would be given increases of either 50 cents an hour, or $1000, whichever is smaller. The Langer bill also would give rural carriers two cents a mile more for equipment upkeep, and special delivery messengers would be increased from 75 cents to $1 an hour. Blue-collar workers whose salaries are fixed by wage boards aren't covered by the bill.

But the Langer bill would cover employes in the legislative and judicial branches as well as those in the District government.

As written, the bill wouldn't go into effect until 90 days after it becomes law. However, a committee attache said this delayed date would apply only to those employes and officials who would be paid more than $10,000. The general pay bill, he said, would go into effect the day it's enacted into law.

INTERIOR: Grace Butler Baum, a career employe, yesterday was appointed chief of Interior's miscellaneous service division. She has been with the department since July 23, 1918. Mrs. Baum succeeds Frank Updike who retired last month.

Pupil Health 'Neglect' in D. C. Charged

School Board Asks To Be Given Control Of Physicians, Nurses

The Board of Education yesterday charged the Health Department is "neglecting" school children and showing insufficient interest in public school health needs.

"Direction and control" of doctors and nurses assigned to schools by the Health Department should be turned over to the Board of Education, board members told the Commissioners.

The superintendent of schools should be permitted to report "unsatisfactory" doctors or nurses to the health officer for "discipline or dismissal," they added.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland has given "unsatisfactory" replies to "numerous" communications on school health problems, they declared. He "frankly admits" service is "poor," but feels he cannot improve it under "present conditions," they added.

Not "Poor," Ruhland Says

Dr. Ruhland, who was present at the meeting, replied that service was "quantitatively inadequate," but not "poor." The board has taken no steps to train teachers to help in health work, which he recommended as early as 1935, he declared.

The Commissioners ordered Ruhland to work out more satisfactory arrangements with board officials.

In a memorandum presented by Dr. James A. Gannon, the board charged:

1. There aren't enough doctors or nurses to provide "satisfactory service."

2. Nursing care in elementary schools has been "neglected for years."

3. Doctors hired by the Health Department's "owe no allegiance to school authorities." There is no check on time they spend at schools and "it is natural (for them) to neglect . . . school duties in favor of . . . private practice."

4. Doctors sometimes fail to keep appointments to examine or immunize groups of childrne, causing waste of time for students and school personnel.

5. "In most cases" they don't follow up on defects or disease found in children, who graduate from school "still handicapped by . . . abnormality."

6. Cooperation lags because doctors "seldom" discuss medical problems with principals or teachers. No lectures are given to help physical education instructors handle individual cases.

All Positions Not Filled

The memorandum charged the Health Department with inability to keep positions for 30 school doctors filled. Part-time public health nurses provide care equal to only 15 full-time nurses for 100,000 students, when about 60 nurses are needed, the board said.

Dr. Ruhland said the Health Department budget doesn't allow more nurses, although they're needed. The number of doctors should be doubled and their school time cut in half; and they should be given a raise from the present $2.35-an-hour they're paid for school work, he declared.

Possible sites for the proposed Cardozo High School for Negroes also were discussed at the meeting, the Commissioners announced. They said they would "further explore" sites in the block bounded by 13th, 14th, S and T sts. nw., and the area bounded by 7th and V sts. and Barry pl. nw.

have a total of 135 years' service among them, is Inspector John H. Fowler, veteran ballistics expert and director of the Police Academy.

With one exception, the retirements were granted for disability.

Their approval by Commissioners brought immediate speculation in police circles on successors to Fowler and to Lieuts. Elmer F. Lewis and Joseph D. Harrington.

Mentioned frequently, but unofficially, for the inspectorship were Captain Walter Storm, Robert Pearce and George Wallrodt.

On the list of possibilities for the lieutentant ranks were Sergts. John E. Winters and John F. Ryan.

The retirements, effective March 1, are:

Inspector Fowler, 52, joined the force in 1919 as a bicycle patrolman. He came up through the ranks and was named inspector in 1944 and has been awarded 13 commendations. He will retire on a pension of $260.09 per month.

Lieutenant Lewis, on the force 25 years and five months, has been at the Tenth Precinct and has 30 commendations. He will receive $178.26 monthly.

Lieutenant Harrington, 60, served 29 years 6 months and has been hack inspector since 1944. He has received 14 commendations and will retire on $178.26 monthly.

Pvt. Richard G. Clagett, 28, served six years and two months; retires at $141.58 with injuries suffered in two motorcycle accidents in the line of duty.

Pvt. LaRue K. Collins, 48, with 20 years 4 months service and three commendations; retiring on $141.58 monthly.

Pvt. Oscar E. Rehbein, 55, with 25 years and 1 month of service, taking voluntary retirement at $141.58 monthly. He has five commendations.

Clapp's Name Shelved for Welfare Head

Action Held Indication Commissioners May Reject Acting Director

The District Commissioners yesterday pigeonholed—for the time being, at least—the Public Welfare Board's nomination of Raymond F. Clapp to head the local welfare department.

Clapp

Clapp, 57, has been serving as acting director since the top post was left vacant by the death of Ray Huff last December.

First report from the Commissioners' meeting was that they had "refused to act" on the nomination, but later it was officially announced that the nomination had been taken "under consideration."

The Commissioners' failure to give immediate approval for the promotion of Clapp, principal assistant welfare director for four years, indicated they might reject the nomination.

Nominations for local welfare positions are made by the Board of Public Welfare, but the Commissioners have the power to approve or reject such nominations.

There have been clashes in the past between Commissioners and Welfare Board. In 1941, for example, Conrad Van Hyning, a compromsie candidate was appointed director after the two boards had turned down each other's candidate.

There were six applicants for the directorship, it was learned, and Clapp was the unanimous choice of the Welfare Board. Before joining the department in 1944, Clapp served with the Federal Security Agency. He was manager of the Indianapolis Community Fund from 1935 to 1940 and, before that, director of the Cleveland Welfare Foundation.

Resurfacing Bids Asked for U. S. 301

By The Associated Press

The Maryland State Road Commission took another step in Maryland's highway overhaul program yesterday by asking bids on the resurfacing of an eight-mile stretch on U. S. 301 in Charles County.

The highway is a main north-south artery and connects Baltimore and Richmond by way of the big Potomac River bridge between Newburg, Md., and Dahlgren, Va., thereby missing Washington.

The roads commission asked for sealed bids by noon of March 2 for asphaltic concrete surfacing and the modification of one curve on the stretch from Mattawoman Creek south through Waldorf to Lyons Corner.

Woman, Children Flee Fire Near Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—One family was forced to evacuate an apartment today when fire broke out in the Maryland Lime & Fertilizer Corp. plant near here.

The plant was badly damaged, but officials made no estimate of the loss.

Miss Jesse Reed and her six children, who lived on the second floor of the structure, fled the building and lost all their possessions. Company records and orders were destroyed.

The fire was believed to have resulted from defective wiring.

Fingerprints Sole Clew To Three Kidnappers

Yeggs Burn Hole In Insurance Firm Safe and Make Away With $1600

Professional yeggs, equipped with an acetylene torch, early yesterday stole $1600 in cash and a $45 case of whisky from an insurance office and a restaurant at 1422 K st. nw.

Police Lieut. Aubrey Tolson, head of the general assignment squad, said the work was that of professional safe crackers, and smooth ones at that.

Acetylene torch safe jobs are rare in Washington police said. There have been only two or three of them in recent years.

Door Lock Forced

The $1600 haul was made in the third floor offices occupied by the Life & Casualty Insurance Co. of Tennessee.

Detectives said the thieves had gained entrance by forcing the lock on the office door. Once inside, they moved the safe from the front office to a rear room where they opened the safe after burning a hole the size of a quarter in the door.

Estimate of the loss was made by DeWitt T. Yates of 3242 Valley dr., Alexandria, Va., manager of the insurance company office.

Case of Whisky Stolen

The safe crackers also broke into the Robin Hood Restaurant on the ground floor at the K st. address. Police said they first entered the restaurant by forcing a lock on a basement door, then broke into the liquor room by burning a hole in the lock with the acetylene torch.

John Letsas of 2445 15th st. nw., owner of the restaurant, said the only thing missing was a case of assorted whisky.

Lieutenant Tolson assigned four safe sleuths of the general assignment squad to the thefts.

Ice Skating, Sledding Fatal to 2

A District high school student and a Government girl typist died yesterday of injuries suffered in sledding and ice-skating accidents last week.

Fleming

Richard Fleming, 16-year-old Kramer Junior High School student, died in Homeopathic Hospital of internal injuries he received when his sled hit a telephone pole in the 2300 block of High st. se. on February 8.

Miss Mary Campbell, 24, typist at the Navy Department Bureau of Ships, died of a fractured skull at Emergency Hospital as a result of a fall while ice skating at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace on February 14. She never regained consciousness after the accident.

First Sledding Fatality

Richard, who lived at 2218 Chester st. se., was the District's first sledding fatality of the year.

Richard was in the ninth grade at Kramer Junior High School. He attended Trevecca Nazarine College in Nashville, Tenn. for one year.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Lucy Jane Haendel, 4900 Columbia Pike, Arlington; his father, Richard Paul Fleming, 2233 Mount View pl. se.; a sister, two brothers two half-sisters, and a step-brother.

Miss Campbell, who lived at Nebraska Hall, Arlington Farms, is a native of Crestwood, N. Y. Friends said she fell backward while skating and struck her head.

Coroner Christopher J. Murphy issued certificates of accidental death in both cases.

UCLA Approves Fehring As Assistant Grid Coach

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP).—The UCLA athletic board today approved the hiring of William (Dutch) Fehring, former Purdue star tackle and Oklahoma line coach the past two years, as assistant football coach.

He served in the Navy during the war, went back to Purdue briefly in 1946 and then shifted to Oklahoma. He was credited with developing a Sooner line that led the Nation in 1946 in defense against rushing.

3 Generations Observe Joint Anniversaries

Arlington, Mass. (U.P.). — Three generations of the same family observed their wedding anniversaries on the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Kimball held their fifty-sixth anniversary while their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Allen Kimball of Winchester, marked their thirty-first.

At the same time the Allen Kimball's daughter Ann and her husband, Kenneth G. Larrabee of Binghampton, N. Y., celebrated their sixth anniversary.

Greek Guerillas Shell Edessa, Border Town

Salonika, Feb. 19 (AP).—Edessa, a town in northern Greece on the Yugoslav border, was shelled for 20 minutes today by a guerilla band, a third army communique said.

One woman was reported injured.

Greek forces returned the fire and the guerillas fled.

6-County Department Of Health Proposed

Fredericksburg Va., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—A single health department to serve Essex, Gloucester, Middlesex, Mathews and possibly King and Queen Counties has been proposed by Dr. J. C. Neale, director of local health services for the State Health Department. Dr. Neale said the unit could serve some 40,000 persons.

He said one physician would be sufficient for the entire unit, but each county should have a public health nurse, clerk and sanitation officer. Boards of supervisors of the counties are expected to act on the proposal at their March meetings.

Big Names Go Over

New York (U.P.).—The Sales Executives Club's luncheon program made a survey of members for guidance in selecting speakers and learned that "name" speakers with a message are preferred to inspirational or humorous talkers. Replies to questionnaires showed that more than 50 per cent favored the big-game speakers, while 30 per cent liked inspirational speakers and 20 per cent liked humorous speakers.

Eats 23 Bananas

Goshen, Ind. (U.P.).—Ernest Evans, 20, boasted that he could eat 10 pounds of large South American bananas featured at a local store. The proprieter bet him he couldn't. Evans ate 23 bananas and won the bet.

Two Store Holdups Ladi to Trio After Abduction of Naval Employe in Own Car

Fingerprints on the stolen car were the principal clews to three kidnaping bandits who took a Navy employe over the Maryland line Wednesday night, robbed him and tied him to a tree, and then used his car to stage two holdups.

Detectives of the robbery squad reported they had no definite suspects as yet. None of the victims could identify any of the robbers definitely from pictures in the rogues' gallery, police said.

The fast-moving drama of Wednesday night began at 7:10 p. m. when John A. Selby, 51, a painter at the Naval Gun Factory, was driving to the Elks Club and was intercepted when he stopped for a red light at 4th and H sts. nw.

The trio of Negroes apparently had only one gun among them, Selby said, as they passed it back and forth, but "one was enough" for him as they climbed into his car—one in the back and the other two in the front seat, squeezing him between them.

After they "cased" a drugstore and deciding against robbing it, Selby said he got "pretty nervous" and told the men he wanted to "get out of all this."

"I heard one man say, 'Let's let him go,'" Selby told The Washington Post. "Then they drove me to Seat Pleasant and demanded my money and anything else I had," he continued. "I gave them the $15 I had, but I slipped my watch into the right pocket of my suit."

Selby said the man who appeared to be the leader gave him back $5, saying "We're not bad guys, we just want enough to get back to the base in Georgia." This man was wearing part of an Army uniform, Selby declared.

Then another man decided to search him, Selby said, and he found the watch.

"When they found the watch," Selby continued, "they decided to take back the $5 and the watch, and took my Elk's pin, too."

"While they were tying me up with adhesive tape," he said, "the leader fired a shot in the air and told me that was to show they meant business." They then drove off and Selby worked loose, got a ride to a phone and told police.

A few minutes later, District police were called to the Suburban Liquor Store, 4347 Hunt pl. ne., where D. G. Thompson and George Belden, clerks, said two stickup men had taken $300 from the cash register.

Bernard B. Larrick, 62, co-owner of the Salb Pharmacy, 316 H st. ne., was the next victim. Two of the trio happened to come in when there was no customer, Larrick said, and one of the bandits pushed him into the prescription compounding room in the rear.

"He kept prodding me with the gun," said Larrick, "and saying, 'Back, pop, back, I don't want to have to pull this.' I didn't want him to pull it either, so I kept moving back."

Larrick said the second man opened the cash register, but the man who had been prodding him said to leave it alone.

"Then the first man opened the top drawers in every row until he came to the one I kept the extra money in," said the pharmacist. "He got about $125, but they didn't bother with the $40 or $50 in the cash register out in front. They must have known about this drawer in the back."

The man with the gun then slugged him on the head with it, knocking him back against the wall, Larrick said. He wasn't knocked out, he said, but blood was pouring down his face so that he had difficulty seeing the phone when he was dialing for police.

Selby's car was seen at about 9:35 by Pvt. James Poland, who was directing traffic at Pennsylvania ave. and 12th st. nw.

The FBI is still looking for three men who held up a messenger for the Darby Printing Co., 2414 Douglas st. ne., last December 20 and seized a $3798 payroll. One of the three was identified as Wilson Mack Fierst, a notorious holdup man.

Area News in Brief

Ownership Point Gives ABC Pause

If a man leases a restaurant, does he own the business it does?

That question—and all its legal ramifications—yesterday confronted the District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

It arose when De John Papanicolas, 3101 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, appeared, under citation, to show cause why his Class C liquor license for De Jon Restaurant, 2603 Connecticut ave. nw., should not be revoked.

Papanicolas obtained the license, good for a year, on February 1.

In mid-January, however, before he obtained the new license, he leased the restaurant to Little Mexico, Inc., which has been operating the business under its own name since January 27.

The board wanted to know: Who, what and how about the ownership.

Insisted John Maktos, Papanicolas' lawyer: Papanicolas is still the owner, has only leased it to Little Mexico, a firm whose president, Ralph D. Pittman, attorney, said had no connection with Papanicolas.

Added Maktos: "The ABC Act says the liquor license application must be filed by the true and actual owner. It doesn't say anything about who is in control. If a person leases a business, he is still the owner."

The board took the question under advisement.

24 New Measles Cases

Twenty-four new cases of measles here were reported by the Health Department yesterday.

Dr. James G. Cumming, director of the Preventable Disease Bureau, said the situation is not "alarming."

"We don't anticipate a severe outbreak," he said.

Dr. Cumming said all children with measles must be kept from school for seven days. Children in the same family may continue in school if they have had measles, but must stay at home for 14 days if they haven't.

Nylon Hosiery Stolen

Stockings sufficient to grace 198 feminine legs disappeared from a truck making deliveries to Norbud shops, police heard yesterday.

Miss Ruth E. Moore, stockroom manager for the Norbud Hosiery & Ready to Wear Shops, told Police the driver, James Austin, 21, 1424 9th st. nw., couldn't tell at which stop the loss occurred on Wednesday. She said the truck was making regular deliveries from the firm's warehouse, 2101 Rhode Island ave. ne.

Police valued the 99 pairs of hosiery, mostly nylons, at $121.50, wholesale.

Sentenced for Assault

William Curtis Dean, 34, of 4710 Edgemoor lane, Bethesda, yesterday was sentenced to nine months in the Maryland House of Correction on a charge of assaulting the 10-year old daughter of an Army colonel. Police said the child identified Dean as the man who enticed her into a basement near her home and attempted to commit an indecent act.

Extradited as Bigamist

Bolitha J. Laws, chief justice of District Court, yesterday ordered James H. Hodge, Richmond, Va., construction foreman, extradited to Bel Air, Md., where he is charged with Bigamy.

is charged with bigamy.

Hodge told the court he had stayed in Mexico for 10 days to get a divorce from his first wife, Lena, whom he married in 1922. He said he received his Mexicon divorce decree by mail. He said he then married Mildred Maitland of Bel Air. Bigamy charges were brought by Maryland authorities on the ground that in that State Mexican divorces are invalid.

Jumps—Changes Mind

Life looked bleak indeed to Charles Slater, 42, at 9:05 a. m. yesterday as he stood on Gregory's boat dock at 820 Maine ave. sw.

Suddenly he was in the water. Life began to look a little more precious and Slater screamed for help. To the rescue came James Coppedge, of 1631 3d st. nw., and Richard Darbro, manager of Gregory's dock.

They extended a boat hook to Slater and pulled him to safety.

Slater, who lives at 334 Dixon ct. sw., told police he was depressed because he recently lost his job. He was sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

Robert Lamont Dies; Former Cabinet Aide

New York, Feb. 19 (A.P.).—Robert P. Lamont, 80, Secretary of Commerce under President Herbert Hoover, died today.

Lamont, a native of Detroit, died at the home of a daughter here. He had been ill for some time.

Like Hoover, Lamont was an engineer. During his early career he directed the building of the underwater tunnels into Lake Michigan to furnish Chicago's water supply.

He also was in charge of excavation for the Boston subway system.

Lamont resigned as president of the American Foundries Corp. to join Hoover's Cabinet.

When Hoover appoined Lamont to the Secretaryship in 1929 he had been president of that firm when the Simplex Railway Appliance Co., which he had founded, was sold to the Foundries company in 1905.

When he took over the cabinet post, Lamont resigned his directorship in the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Because the liquor issue had been prominent in Hoover's campaign, Lamont gained considerable publicity from his connection with the association and said he resigned because he was "playing the game" with the administration.

Lamont served in Hoover's cabinet until about six months before Hoover left office. He was president of the American Iron and Steel Institute from 1932 to 1933.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Lamont of Falls Church, Va., a son, Robert Patterson Lamont, jr., of Thiensville, Wis., and daughters, Mrs. Matthew Jones of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Chauncey Belknap of New York at whose home he died.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church here.

J. D. Witten, Advertising Executive, Dies

John D. Witten, 40, assistant to the president of the Young and Pubicam advertising agency in New York and former chief statistician of the United States Army, died unexpectedly Wednesday of a heart attack in the agency conference room.

A native of Versailles, Mo., he was the son of Professor M. Wray Witten of the University of Missouri, founder of the rural education movement.

Following his graduation from Columbia University, Mr. Witten began his professional career by doing statistical work for the City of New York.

He was appointed chief statistician of the Quartermaster Corps of the Army in 1940 and two years later was named chief statistician of the Army with the grade of colonel. He was retired for disability in 1945 after receiving the Legion of Merit for the performance of his duties in office.

After retirement from the Army he joined Young and Pubicam as manager of the research department and was promoted to assistant to agency president Sigurd S. Larmon in January, 1947.

Mr. Witten, whose home was in Scarsdale, N. Y., is survived by his wife, Mrs. Kathleen Witten and two children, Anne, 5, and John, 3.

George B. Elliott

Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 19 (A.P.).—George B. Elliott, 74, former president of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, died here today after a long illness.

Elliott graduated from Virginia Military Institute in 1892.

Dr. Ralph Long Dies; Lutheran Council Head

Dr. Ralph Herman Long, 65, executive director of the National Lutheran Council since 1930, died yesterday in New York following a heart attack.

Long

Under treatment for several weeks, Dr. Long suffered his first attack a few days before the thirtieth annual meeting of the National Lutheran Council at Richmond, Va., January 2. He was unable to attend the session for the first time in 18 years.

A contributor to church publications, Dr. Long was a member of the executive committee, Lutheran World Federation. He was elected vice president of the American Lutheran Church in 1946.

Dr. Long was a keynote speaker at Lund, Sweden, last July when the Lutheran World Federation came into formal existence after 25 years of effort toward uniting Lutherans throughout the world. A supporter of the ecumenical movement, he was to have attended the first assembly of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam this summer.

A native of Loudonville, Ohio, Dr. Long was a graduate of Capital University and Evangelical Lutheran Seminary, Columbus, Ohio. He was ordained for the ministry in 1909. In 1918, he served as camp pastor at Camp Meade, Md. He was stewardship secretary, evangelical joint synod of Ohio, from 1927 to 1930.

In addition to his wife, who lives in New York, Dr. Long leaves three sons, the Rev. Robert W. Long, pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington; the Rev. James Long, pastor of a Lutheran church in Baltimore, and the Rev. Edward Long, pastor of a Lutheran church in Galveston, Tex.

Burial will be in Columbus, Ohio, Monday. Special services will be held at Capital University.

Mrs. Mary E. T. King

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 19 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held at Aquia Episcopal Church tomorrow at 2 p. m. for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Towson King, 90-year-old Stafford County woman, who died yesterday. Burial will take place in the church cemetery.

Mrs. King was formerly a resident of Dumfries, Prince William County.

U. S. Will Need Vast Quantity of Natural Gas

During the next five years 28 trillion cubic feet of new natural gas must be located to maintain the Nation's reserves at current levels, a Federal Power Commission examiner was told yesterday.

Donald Linton, market analyst for the Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates of Boston, made this forecast in testimony before Examiner Edward B. Marsh, who is studying the application of a pipe line certificate by Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Co. This organization has proposed to construct an 1800-mile pipe line to bring 325 million cubic feet of gas daily into several Eastern Seaboard cities.

He was preceded by George A. Lamb, fuels' economist of the Pittsburgh Consolidated Coal Co., who said petroleum production appeared to have reached its maximum production. The Nation will be fortunate, he said, if the present rate of production can continue many more years, leading to a growing dependence on natural gas and coal for fuel oil and gasoline.

Two witnesses described the extent and condition of the great Hugoton natural gas field in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, source of much of the natural gas now piped into the East. One of them, R. A. Ransom, Washington consulting engineer, said the Panhandle field would reach its production peak between 1954 and 1965, while the Hugoton field would hit its peak by 1963. Ransom will continue his testimony today.

Construction of the pipeline is opposed by railroads, some oil companies, coal producers and some labor unions. Representatives of all these have appeared since occasional hearings started October 27.

One railroad spokesman, William Wyer, a Newark consulting engineer, testified recently that pipeline applications granted or pending, if approved, would displace 46,781,000 tons of coal now carried by railroads. The road's alternatives, he added, would be to go bankruptcy, ask for higher rates or give up and be taken over by the Government.

Early in the hearings, Claude A. Williams, Transcontinental president, testified that his firm expected to pay 20 million dollars above the market price for 400,000 tons of fabricated pipe to build the line. Under questioning, he declined to reveal the sources from which he would get this steel, stating that two companies which had agreed to sell pipe $50 a ton above the market had told him to "forget about it" if he revealed their identities.

Opponents of the pipe line have contended that a "high quality" motor fuel can be produced from natural gas at 2 cents a gallon less than gasoline refined from petroleum. They have estimated that 14,000 barrels a day could be produced from plants already under construction and that eventually 500,000 barrels a day could be taken from this source.

Such gasoline, they contend, is not only better than any demanded by the present market but better than any now made by conventional oil refining processes. They say diesel fuel superior to the present product also can be made from natural gas.

Another contention they have advanced is that much natural gas is "dumped" by selling it for use in industrial boilers to take up the slack during the summer when the domestic and commercial demand drops. As a result, they say, winter peak use by domestic and commercial purchasers cannot be met and a shortage of gas for one customer or the other is inevitable.

Area Bankers To Map Drive On Inflation

By S. Oliver Goodman

Regional bankers will confer today at the Willard Hotel to map a program against inflation and high prices.

Joseph M. Dodge, president of the American Bankers Association, will preside at the all-day meeting and present the ABA plans for an anti-inflation program which can be carried on in every community. Officers of five bankers' associations will be present from Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and West Virginia.

Representatives of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, headed by Richard A. Norris, will attend.

Also attending will be members of commissions and committees of the ABA and banking department officials from the five nearby States The meeting here will be the eleventh in a series of regional conferences sponsored by the ABA.

President Dodge yesterday summed up the program for voluntary action as follows:

"We believe that during this period, bank lending policies should place emphasis on loans that are conducive to increased production and distribution, and discourage loans that are unneeded now for economic productivity The former would assist in checking inflation by helping to increase the supply of goods and the latter would help to restrain the creation of additional purchasing power. Banks can be of material assistance by discouraging as far as possible, inflationary uses of credit by businesses and individuals in their communities and by encouraging anti-inflationary practices, such as wise use of credit and investment in United States bonds.

"Every banker must realize the opportunities and responsibilities in helping the battle against inflation."

HOLIDAY: Washington financial institutions, including banks, loan associations and the Washington Stock Exchange, will be closed Monday in observance of Washington's Birthday. Security and commodity markets also will suspend for the day, with the exception of livestock markets.

CONVENTION: Peoples Life Insurance Co. last night opened the annual agency convention with a dinner in the Willard. An educational forum and a motion picture is on the program for today at the Mayflower. Highlights will be a banquet tonight at which Lewis W. S. Chapman of Hartford will speak. The convention brings together the managers and leading producers of the Peoples Life districts, in recognition of excellent records during 1947.

NOVEL DIVIDEND: This trend has possibilities. Stockholders of Cudahy Packing Co. will get a new kind of dividend this week—a can of scouring cleanser and a pound carton of margarine, two new products of the company. Motor car stockholders are going around with a more hopeful gleam.

ODD LOTS: A general course in salesmanship will start March 1 at Southeastern University, sponsored jointly by the university and the Sales Executive Club of Washington . . . An increase in bank loans was reported by the Federal Reserve Board for the first time in three weeks. Loans by member banks increased 48 million dollars in the week ended February 11 . . . Automotive News estimated that this week's output will total 105,679 units compared with 81,539 in the previous week. Sharp upturn was attributed to resumption of industrial gas service in Detroit area . . . Fire losses in this country totaled 63 million dollars in January, an increase of 10 per cent over same 1947 month

MORE GI ENTERPRISE: A former Marine and a former Navy man have pooled resources and established a plant near Bowie, Md., which currently is producing bricks at the rate of 30,000 a day. The plant is the Gichner Brick Co., whose production manager is William Gichner, former Marine, and whose sales manager is Jacob H. Gichner, former sailor.

EARNINGS: Best & Co., which operates a branch store in Washington, reported net income of $2,613,153 for the fiscal year ended January 31, equal to $4.36 a common share, compared with $2,657,518 or $4.43 a share in previous year. Other income reports follow:

One on the Aisle—

But Preachy Air Hurts New Stars

By Richard L. Coe

NOBODY'S GOING TO catch ME breathing a critical word against the Warner's "My Girl Tisa" if I can help it.

It would take a far sturdier figure than this rickety frame to suggest that there's anything wrong with a picture in favor of all the human virtues including patriotism and Teddy Roosevelt.

Nor do I intend to put myself in the position of seeming to sneer at immigrants who admire this country and labor in the sweatshops of 1905 New York while prepping for their citizenship exams. In theory and in retrospect this story of a Hungarian girl who wants to become an American is appealing, but I must reluctantly confess it all seemed pretty sticky while I was watching it.

It is a pleasure, though, to talk about the two leading players, Lilli Palmer and Sam Wanamaker. They're both very good at their jobs and they're still new enough to the screen to seem refreshing.

Take Miss Palmer. She's got a long, rather solemn face with nice dewy eyes and a clean shyness about her that doesn't try to mow you down. She's a restful, pleasant personality and she makes the character of the little immigrant girl just as appealing as Director Elliott Nugent could wish.

Wanamaker's screen debut is more than promising. He's shaved off that mustache he wore while playing opposite Ingrid Bergman on the stage for "Joan of Lorraine." He looks a lot younger; it's a clean, handsome face and the technicians have done much to make you want to see him again.

A Brash Hero

The part he plays is less likable, one of those conceited, anxious young men who just know they're going to get ahead. That I find this type depressing is a purely personal weakness; obviously, I'm off base, for by now I, too, would be an alderman, like Sam.

Not admiring a nice little picture like "My Girl Tisa" is, frankly, shattering. There are bits in it that are rather good; the period detail—it was around this time that Eleanor Roosevelt and Frances Perkins were taking note of working conditions in New York; several of the Palmer-Wanamaker scenes are charming; Stella Adler's vitality comes through as a Polish boarding house keeper.

But there's also a drearily preachy air: the desire of folks to become citizens is wan, not stirring; the musical background of Max Steiner is as corny as such comes; the final sequence in which the hero rushes through a cordon of police to ask President Teddy Roosevelt to solve his problem tops the strained quality of the whole.

So there you are. Like so many things that are admirable, virtuous and patriotic, "My Girl Tisa" is just a drip.

WASHINGTON'S Fencers Club tonight will be holding a three-weapon fencing tournament at Pierce Hall, 15th and Harvard sts. at 8 o'clock. Special invitations have been issued to all members of the Police Boys Club and their families, but there's no charge for general admission. The winner will receive—surprise, surprise—"The Larry Parks-Swordsman" Trophy, in honor of the Technicolor film due at the Warner next week. Col. William B. Kunzig will direct the bouts and Dr. H. A. Craig will explain techniques used in dueling with various weapons.

TONIGHT'S EVENTS: Erika Thimey's Dance Theater offers a "Dance Demonstration" at 8:30 in Hurst Hall, American University campus, Mass. and Nebraska aves. . . . The Falls Church Community Theater plays "The Night of January 16" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 in Madison School, on Lee Highway, Falls Church . . . The Calvary Players' Club of the Calvary Baptist Church offers three one-act plays at 8:15 at the church, 8th and H sts.; "Three Pills in a Bottle" and "Londonderry Air" are by Rachel Field, "The Neighbors" is by Zona Gale. . . . Tryouts for two once-act plays by the Alexandrian Little Theater in its workshop, Ramsay Alley, Alexandria, at 8 o'clock.

"CINDERELLA," a sell-out last weekend, is adding a night performance Saturday, having already filled all Roosevelt High auditorium seats for its matinee tomorrow. This is a children's ballet. Tickets downtown at the Snow Agency.

"MY GIRL TISA." Warner release of a United States Pictures production produced by Milton Sperling. Screen play by Allen Boretz from a play by Lucille S. Prumbo and Sara B. Smith. Music by Max Steiner. Directed by Elliott Nugent. At the Warner.

Did Taylor Kill His Wife?

'High Wall' at Capitol Moves Nicely, Then Pops in Mid Air

By Orval Hopkins

The best thing on the bill at the Capitol is Kay DeWitt singing "Now Is the Hour," bless her little heart.

There's also a movie over there called "High Wall," surely the most cryptically titled film in a raccoon's age. The story moves along very well and at a nice pace until it fall apart like the one-hoss shay on a perfectly preposterous assumption.

You discover, as the scene opens, Robert Taylor, accused of murdering his war bride and also a little off his rocker, the result of a bomber crackup and a couple of operations. You are tipped off about halfway through that Herbert Marshall actually committed the crime. The remainder of the picture is devoted to resolving the problem of whether Taylor will be able to pin the murder on Marshall or, failing that, will be sent (1) to the chair or (2) to the insane asylum. That's perfectly reasonable structure and should be the basis of an acceptable movie.

Did He Pay?

The thing dissolves on the premise that, while you cannot legally use drugs to force an incriminating confession from a man, you CAN assume that later in court he will admit the same things he did while under the influence.

This leaves you with the haunting feeling that when they finally got him on the stand, the man denied the whole thing, went scot free and may be lurking outside the theater, waiting for you.

However, as I say, this doesn't happen until the very end, and if you want to settle for everything being good but the kernel, this is for you. I found little to quarrel with in the acting, except that Robert Taylor, as always, doesn't do much of it. He is very pretty and has a remarkable pair of eyebrows, particularly when he's registering rage. I predict a great future for him as a scare guy.

Audrey's Prettier

Herbert Marshall does very well, also as always, and gets away with one of the neatest murders on record (not the one mentioned above)—no fuss, no mess, no smell. Audrey Totter is pretty, too—prettier than Taylor, I'd say—and she even acts a little. Somebody really ought to speak sharply to Bob.

The newsreel showed Governor Dewey making a speech. Couple of people near me walked out on Dewey. Nobody walked out on Taylor. Dewey got an ovation. Taylor didn't get a peep. I don't get it.

Also on the bill at the Capitol are Landre & Verna, Sarah Ann McCabe, who sings probably the least-inspired version yet of "Molly Malone," Eddie Hanley, the comedian, and Lowe, Hite & Stanley.

P. S.—I just consulted the theater ads about that title, "High Wall." In parenthesis it says "(Between Two Lovers)." That all clear now?

"HIGH WALL." M-G-M release produced by Robert Lord. Screen play by Sydney Boehm and Lester suggested by a story and play by Alan R. Clark and Bradbury Foote. Photographed by Paul Vogel. Music by Bronislau Kaper. Directed by Curtis Bernhardt. At the Capitol.

Residents Win Zoning Fight On Library

Neighborhood residents won their fight to exclude a Diplomatic Affairs Foundation library from a restricted residential zone at 2201 R st. nw.

The Board of Zoning Adjustment ruled that the proposed library for study of international affairs would adversely affect the present character and future development of the neighborhood.

Foundation directors, led by former Ambassador Joseph Grew and Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), told the board at a hearing Wednesday that the library would add prestige to the neighborhood.

But neighboring residents, led by Harry L. Grant, a business consultant, presented what the board termed an "almost solid" front of opposistion. The Dupont Circle Citizens Association also was opposed. They argued against intrusion of "any institution" in the strictly residential area.

The board deferred decision on requests to build two $1,500,000 office buildings on lower 16th st. nw., and said the petitions had been forwarded to the Fine Arts Commission for study and report.

They included a request by the Motion Picture Association of America to begin work on a new headquarters building at 1600 I st. nw., and by Joseph Tucci to construct an eight-story bank and office building at the southwest corner of 16th and K sts. nw.

Evening Star Directors Elect Frank B. Noyes as Chairman

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Evening Star Newspaper Co. since 1909 and a founder of the Associated Press, has been elected chairman of the newspaper company's board of directors, it was announced yesterday.

Noyes, who will be 85 years old in July, was succeeded as president by his brother-in-law, Fleming Newbold, vice president and manager of the Evening Star Newspaper Co. since 1935.

President of the Associated Press from 1900 to 1938, and then designated honorary president, Noyes resigned from the news-gathering agency's board of directors in 1947, after 54 years' service. He has been associated with the Evening Star since the age of 18.

The Evening Star announced that Samuel H. Kauffmann, treasurer of the company, has been elected to succeed Newbold as vice president, and will also retain the office of treasurer.

Swank Jekyll Island To Be Public Park

Atlanta, Ga. (U.P.).—Swank Jekyll Island, one-time millionaires' playground off Brunswick, Ga., will be transformed into "the finest seashore park in America" within the next year, according to Georgia Parks Director Charlie Morgan.

The island, bought from its New York owners for $675,000, has been the focal point of a political dispute between Gov. M. E. Thompson and his deposed predecessor, Herman Talmadge. Supporters of Talmadge, who sought to block the purchase by court action, charge that the sea will wash away the island in time.

Included among the island's present facilities are an 18-hole golf course, two swimming pools, tennis courts, a skeet shooting range, bowling alley, horseback riding trails, woodland roads and docks for fishing, swimming and boating.

Finds Life With Father Hazardous Business

Milwaukee (U.P.). — Four-year-old Jimmy Roberts was racing his tricycle when the mudguard dropped off and fell into the spokes of the front wheel.

Jimmy sailed over the handlebars, landed on his nose, and got up minus two front teeth.

His father fixed the mudguard, but his mother didn't quite trust her husband's repair job. She started to walk the tricycle to the garage.

Her intuition was correct. The guard came loose again, fell into the spokes, and Mrs. Roberts landed on her nose.

She broke only one tooth, however.

Drug Reported Found To End Diaper Rash

New York (U.P.).—Use of a drug to eliminate the cause of diaper rash has been announced by two professors of pediatrics here.

The drug is known as diapene and comes in tablet form, according to Drs. Reuel A. Benson and Lawrence B. Slobody of the New York Medical College.

They reported in the Journal of Pediatrics that the new drug is "safe and efficient."

Argentine Fleet May Join Chilean on Way to Antarctic

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 19 (AP).—The commander of the Argentine fleet en route to disputed Antarctic islands was quoted today as saying it was probable he would hold a rendezvous with Chilean warships.

The Argentine high seas fleet is now at Ushuaia, capital of Tierra del Fuego territory just north of Cape Horn.

Rear Admiral Harald Cappus, commander in chief of the Argentine fleet, said the fleet's immediate destination was Deception Island in the South Shetland group which Britain claims is one of her dependencies administered from the Falkland Islands.

The Chilean corvette Codadonga aslo is en route to Deception Island..

Dispatches from Santiago, the Chilean capital, reported President Gabriel Gonzales Videla intended to leave for Punta Arenas on the Chilean mainland as soon as a heavy storm abated at Port Sovereignty, Greenwich Island.

Britain is sending the cruiser Nigeria to the Antarctic to support Miles Clifford, British Governor of the Falklands and dependencies.

A British Foreign Office spokesman in London declared today the maintenance of British bases in the Antarctic was neither aggression no provocation, as alleged by Gonzalez Videla in his speeches in the south.

[British Ambassador Lord Inverchapel discussed the matter with Secretary of State George C. Marshall in Washington yesterday, the United Press reported. Marshall said the United States was very interested in the row, but reiterated there was no change in American policy of refusing to recognize all claims.

[Recent hints there may be uranium in the area added to the interest.]

McMillin Becomes Head Coach of Detroit Lions

In "Bred to Run"

Haight Gets Ready For Book, Author Bid

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

FOR SOME TIME I have eyed The Washington Post Book and Author luncheons, wondering if I might achieve the literary fame necessary for a command appearance.

Mentally I have pictured myself being greeted by thunderous applause as I arose to describe the background of my best-seller. In my imagination, I kept the crowd in bookbinding stitches with my anecdotes and witticisms—and so back to spend the rest of my day working over a hot typewriter.

Haight

But all kidding aside, I have written a book. And there's almost as much background to it as there is foreground to me, if you know what I mean.

Some years ago Dick (Playgrounds) Tennyson asked me to present medals to youthful sports champions. I spoke at great length, until some frank boy yelled, "Ain't we going to get no medals? Why don't you write a book, Fatso?"

And so a literary career was born.

That night, after the paper had been put to bed, other fellows hustled to beat the 2 a. m. deadline at Johnny's but, still smarting from that kid's remark, I started to write my book.

MY STUBBY FINGERS beat a tattoo on the keys as I ripped through Chapter No. 1. I grabbed more paper and pounded out Chapter No. 2 before you could say "Clarence Buddington Kelland." At the rate I was going it looked as if my brainchild would reach the publisher before I would get hungry.

At this point the phone rang. I put the two precious chapters in the bottom drawer of my desk—and there they stayed for the next three years.

One December night, after I had closed the Charles Town gates for the winter, I wobbled into the big boss' office. He was looking a bit perturbed, so I asked. "What's the problem?"

"I'm looking for something out of the ordinary to run over the Christmas holidays—some book to publish by chapters would do, but I can't locate one," he replied.

I was mad with myself. Here was my big chance but, being my fat, lazy self, I hadn't even thought of my book for years.

"I started to write a book once," I said, "but like most newspaper guy I never finished it."

HE WAS INTERESTED, so I told him about "Bred To Run," my story of a race horse told in the first person, a la Black Beauty. He liked the idea and surprised me by asking, "How far are you advanced with it?"

"Only have two chapters written," I moaned, but I brightened when he said, "Let me see them."

A little later the boss called for me and asked, "How does this end?"

"Give me an hour or so and I'll write you the last chapter," I replied and hustled off to the task.

He looked it over and said, "Well, if I get tired of it, we'll print the last chapter."

The boss went on to explain he wanted about 35 chapters. I was to have nothing to do in sports, but write the story, take care of the art, etc.

"When are you going to run the first chapter?" I asked.

"Tomorrow morning," he replied, "so get to work."

So, with the first two chapters and the last written, I squatted in front of my typewriter with only 33 chapters to go!

I KNOCKED OFF two more chapters the next night. At one stage I was four ahead, but there came times when I went into serious conferences with guys like I. W. Harper, Paul Jones and Hiram Walker and couldn't write a chalk line.

But I was up in the last stride to win by a nose.

Then I obtained a New York agent who loved the book and needed some expense money. I never got a publisher, but I did receive 10 pretty rejection slips. But even in defeat, it was a moral victory because three had notations to this effect: "Would reconsider if story is rewritten in other than newspaper style."

I promised myself to do so at once. That was five years ago.

The other day the rewrite job was completed—by a friend, Ernest Blanche, author of "Off to the Races."

So I'm serving notice on all The Washington Post book author fans. You might have Haight for luncheon any time now—and no wisecracks, please, about the entree being a bit on the fat side.

High Games Today Hold Playoff Key

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Attempting to break up the stalemated battle for two unclaimed first division spots, the Interhigh Basketball League plays its last regularly scheduled pair of Friday doubleheaders today at the National Guard Armory.

McKinley Tech plays Calvin Coolidge and Eastern faces Western in a 3:30 p. m. doubleheader.

Interhigh Standings

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Roosevelt	5	1	.833	Anacostia	3	3	.500
Central	5	1	.833	Eastern	3	3	.500
Tech	3	3	.500	Western	2	4	.333
Wilson	3	3	.500	Coolidge	0	6	.000

At 8 p. m. Central clashes with Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson tangles with Anacostia.

With the championship playoffs slated to start Monday night at the armory, only Central and Roosevelt have clinched their participation in the title round. Eastern, Tech, Wilson and Anacostia are deadlocked for third and fourth place.

If the tie isn't broken a preliminary playoff for the first division positions will begin tomorrow afternoon at American University gym, and end Monday night at the armory.

Other Possibilities

If necessary, semifinals of the championship playoffs will be moved back to Friday night and the finals to Saturday night at the armory.

Three possible situations affecting the playoffs could arise from today's two doubleheaders. The two which would necessitate a preliminary playoff are:

1. If Tech and Eastern win as expected, they will tie with the winner of the Wilson-Anacostia game for third place.

2. If both Tech and Eastern are upset, they will be tied for fourth place with Western and the loser of the Wilson-Anacostia game. Winner of the Wilson-Anacostia game will clinch third and not have to partake in the extra games.

The only way an extra series can be avoided is for either Tech or Eeastern (but not both) to be upset. Then the team not upset would clinch a tie for third and gain the playoffs with the winner of the Wilson-Anacostia game.

Vikings-Riders Tops

Although the outcome of their game affects only seedings in the championship playoffs, the Central-Roosevelt game has captured the most interest. The records of the coholders of first place have run a parallel course. Eac hteam lost its opening game, and then proceeded to win five in a row.

The two teams play entirely different styles of basketball, a fact which should add flavor to the game. Offensively, the Centralites bank on the long set shots of Bob Johnson and Jimmy Pantos and the pivot shots of Hal Sponsler. Fast-breaking Roosevelt uses a driving attack with boys like Billy Hibbs, Billy Paugh and Bob Zamsky at their best on lay-ups.

GW High Seeking Court Title Tonight

George Washington's high-scoring Presidents of Alexandria try to clinch their second straight Northern Virginia Class A scolastic championship when they play Washington-Lee of Arlington at 8 p. m. tonight at the W.-L. gym.

The Presidents are undefeated in four conference games, and already hold a 48-17 victory over W.-L. this season. With only one game left after tonight's the Presidents could lock up the title with a victory.

G. W. is heavily favored because of its earlier win over W.-L. plus the fact that it has won 13 out of 16 games this season. W.-L., with a 2-2 record in the confernce, has won only seven out of 16 against all comers.

N. Virginia Class A

	W.	L.	Pts.	Opp.
George Washington	4	0	201	101
Washington-Lee	2	2	141	159
Charlottesville	2	3	180	205
Fairfax	1	4	190	246

Philly Leads Caps, 41-37, At Halftime

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—The Philadelphia Warriors were leading the Washington Caps, 41-37, at halftime of their Basketball Association of America game here tonight.

Trailing most of the way, the Caps pulled up to a 35-34 advantage in the second quarter, but the Warriors soon regained the lead.

If the Caps lose tonight and the St. Louis Bombers win, the two teams will be deadlocked for leadership of the Western Division.

Flashing a well-rounded offense, the Warriors valuted into an early lead. "Bones" McKinney came thruogh with two overhead shots and brought the Caps close but Jerry Fleishman and Howie Dallmar pulled the Warriors ahead, 23-13 at the quarter.

High scoring Joe Fulks was absent from Philadelphia's lineup, suffernig a case of the grippe.

Irv Torgoff, Sonny Hertzberg and McKinney led a Caps' drive which put them ahead for the first time, 35-34, with two minutes left of the half. Their lead was short-lived, however, as Dallmar sunk one from underneath.

In a preliminary contest, the Philadelphia Eagles defeated the Washington Redskins, 41-24.

Tommy Mont's 14 points led Washington's scoring. Gorham Getchell paced the victors with 12.

Pitt Football Under Fire

Pittsburgh, Feb. 19 (AP).—A report that an investigating committee's findings will rap knuckles on all hands guiding Pitt football was called "shooting in the dark" by a university spokesman today.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph said:

"Football Coach Mike Milligan, Athletic Director James (Whitey) Hagan and university officials will share the blame for Pitt's decline as a grid power, according to a report to be submitted to Chancellor Rufus H. Fitzgerald this week."

The Sun-Telegraph said the report will blame Milligan for "inability to handle, discipline and get the most out of young players," failure to maintain "cordial relations with district high school coaches," and "lack of an offensive on the gridiron."

The Panthers' 1947 record was the worst in modern football history. They won one and lost eight.

Southeastern's 'Purity Code' Stand Is Secret

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 19 (AP).—An air of uncertainty prevailed tonight as the Southeastern Conference prepared to take a stand on the new "sanity code" of the NCAA.

Since the NCAA's adoption of the new code—which outlaws the muchly publicized grants-in-aid of the Southeastern Conference—some doubt has existed as to what the conference will do. Some observers insist the conference will ignore the NCAA's code while others are just as emphatic the opposite will occur.

A partial answer to that question was drafted today at a joint meeting of delegates from the Southern, Southwest and Southeastern Conferences, but no announcement was made as to action taken.

Louis Will Invade Political Ring After His Retirement

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, who has political ambitions, and Challenger Joe Walcott, who has title aspirations, were miles apart tonight—on two counts.

The champ sailed for a tour in England after delivering his "sign-in-two-weeks-or-else" ultimatum to Walcott. Back home in Camden, N. J., Jersey Joe just laughed it off.

Shortly before departing on the Queen Mary, Louis also startled newsmen by disclosing that he plans to enter the political ring after he retires from the boxing ring.

"I will go into some kind of politics," said Joe, who expects to quit the fight game after risking his title in June, "but I don't know what kind."

"I think everybody eventually goes into politics," he said. In answer to questions about his attendance at a Harlem meeting last Sunday where Henry A. Wallace was a speaker, Louis replied that he was present "because the same reason everyone else went there."

The champ said he had not decided if or when he would run for public office.

Upset Marks Novice Bouts

Monta Pressuer's upset of Tony Anastasia in a 160-pound bout featured the novice class last night of the District AAU Boxing tournament at Turner's Arena, before 700 fans.

Pressuer's, of the Merrick Boys Club, survived a torrid first round to floor Anastasia, just after the Trinidad boy had unloaded some of his heaviest blows.

There were no 10-cound knockouts on the program, but Earl Evans of Police Boys Club No. 2, scored a technical kayo over Joe Kerensky of Apollo, in a featherweight scrap.

NOVICE CLASS

Mack Takes Over

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP).—Connie Mack called his office from St. Petersburg, Fla., today for names of all unsgined Athletics. He's going to deal with them directly until training camp opens March 1.

The unsigned list includes Ed Joost, Elmer Valo, Rudy York, Barney McCosky, Bob Savage, Russ Christopher and recruits Zebulon Vance Eaton, Robert Joseph Wellman, Francis James Bernardi.

Van Buren Broke Mark

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP).—It's official now—Steve Van Buren broke a 13-year-old national football league record to win the pro loop's ground gaining title.

The Philadelphia Eagles running ace carried 217 times for a 1000-yard total of 4.6 yards per plunge. This eclipsed by four the mark set in 1934 by the Chicago Bears' Beattie Feathers.

Bo Leaves Indiana for 7-Year Pact At $30,000

By Frank Kenesson

Detroit, Feb. 19 (AP).—Turning from a career of more than 20 years as a college football coach, Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin, colorful gray-haired Indiana University mentor, moved into the professional ranks today by accepting a long-term contract as head coach and general manager of the Detroit Lions.

Although neither McMillin nor D. Lyle Fife, president of the Detroit Club of the National Football League, would specify terms of Bo's pro contract, it was believed to be for seven years at a salary of $30,000 a year.

Both McMillin and Fife made it clear that Bo's acceptance of the pro-post hinged completely around his release by Indiana University's board of trustees from his contract there as athletic director and head grid coach. McMillin's Indiana contract, a 10-year pact when he signed it in 1945, still has seven years to run.

Trustees Will Release Him

While McMillin said that he had approached some members of the board and had assurance they would not stand in the way of his coming here, he explained that his next move would be to telephone the trustees and ask formally for his release.

Prompt action was expected by the board, freeing him to go to work immediately with the Lions.

McMillin, who has been Indiana's grid strategist since 1934, said he had hopes of bringing along "a man or two" from his Hoosier coaching staff to become his assistants with the Lions.

"Just who they would be I can't say right now," Bo said. "I will expect to have an announcement concerning that in several days."

Assistants Go Along

Rumor, fairly well authenticated, has it that Backfield Coach Owen L. (Chili) Cochrane and Line Coach C. A. (Tim) Temerario would come here with McMillin from Indiana.

The future of Joe Bach, line coach, and Bob Winslow, backfield coach, the Lions' 1947 assistants under Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, will be determined after a conference with the men themselves, McMillin said.

When Dorais gave up Detroit's head coaching job prior to the club's recent sale to an eight-man syndicate headed by Fife, the club retained Bach and Winslow under contracts that have not expired.

Fife said that Lewis M. Cromwell, holdover general manager from the ownership of Fred L. Mandel, jr., would be retained as business manager.

McMillin, who gained Nation-wide fame for the first time as quarterback of Centre College's Prayin' Colonels who upset Harvard in 1921, coached college teams at Centenary (La.) College, Geneva (Pa.) College and Kansas State before taking the Indiana reins in 1934.

Won 63 for Hoosiers

His Hoosier teams have won 63 games, lost 48 and tied 11 in 13 seasons and it was with obvious regret that McMillin turned away from the Indiana campus on which he produced a Western Conference champion in 1945.

"Leaving college football after all these years pulls at my heartstrings," the Hoosier grid boss said sincerely as he accepted the pro offer.

"Most of my friends down through the years have been college men," he said. "I can tell you truthfully I have been sweating blood for 10 days now making my decision to accept this position with the Lions. In leaving college football I have every regret possible for a man to have, and I assure you I will continue to be as stanch a supporter of the college game as always.

"I firmly believe this Detroit football job will give me the opportunity to continue doing for boys all the things I have been doing in college."

N. C. May Get Tatum, If Dons Get Snavely

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

ALMOST A MONTH had passed since Jim Tatum's name had been linked with another job, so the news that Maryland's head grid man is being considered as possible successor to Carl Snavely at North Carolina didn't come in the nature of a surprise yesterday.

Snavely has been formally offered the job of coaching the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America Conference.

While the Carolina campus buzzed with talk that the veteran coach was seriously considering the pro offer, influential Tar Heel alumni were already campaigning to bring Tatum back to his alma mater in the event Snavely goes west.

Snavely

Tatum

"I have heard nothing about it," said Tatum, who played for Snavely at Carolina and who also served as his assistant at Carolina and Cornell.

"Personally, I doubt if Coach Snavely accepts. I feel certain he is happy at Chapel Hill and I feel equally certain that all Carolina alumni join me in hoping he remains at school."

HAVING HIS name linked with other positions is no novelty to Tatum. In January there was talk of Tatum going to the Naval Academy. In Jacksonville, Fla., while he was there for the Gator Bowl game, there was also talk of Tatum succeeding Carl Voyles at Auburn.

All of this to a man who has just completed his first year as head coach at Maryland and who recently was named Terp Athletic Director.

"I am very happy at Maryland," Tatum said, "and I hope Maryland is happy with me."

The stoic Snavely could not be reached. He issued a statement through a spokesman saying: "I have discussed the Los Angeles coaching job, but no commitments have been made."

A source close to Snavely said a decision will be reached "over the weekend, but we all hope that Coach Snavely stays at Chapel Hill."

He added, however, "If Snavely goes, I wouldn't be surprised if an official move was made to bring Tatum back here."

Haas, Champ Tied at 67 in New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Feb. 19 (AP).—The home State boys took the honors here today in the first round round of the $10,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Frank Champ of Lake Charles and Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans, wound up in an all-Louisiana tie for the lead with cards of 33, 34—67, four under par.

A stroke behind the pace-setters came Jimmy Thompson, from New York, and Bill Nary of Phoenix, Ariz. Thompson's 34-34—68 led the round until three-fourths of the field of 137 was in. Nary had 33-35—68.

At 69 were Ben Hogan of Fort Worth, Tex; Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, leading money winner of 1948; Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kas., and Edmund Burke of New Port, R. I.

With Moore at 70 were Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn; Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind; Al Brosch of Garden City, N. Y; Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill; Marty Furgol of Brooklyn, N. Y; Tony Manero of Greenwich, Conn; and John Palmer of Badin, N. C.

Shooting par 71 were Lawson Little of Cleveland, Ohio; Fred Hawkins of Antioch, Ill.; Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del.; Dick Govern of Shaneateles, N. Y.; Robert de Vincenzo and Enrique Bertolino of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C.; and Walter Romans of Baltimore.

Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., leading money winner of 1947 and running second this year, had 38-34—72. Bobby Locke, the South African who has been one of the hottest players on the winter circuit, shot 35-37—72.

Lew Worsham Ill

National Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington was unable to compete in the tournament after the penicillin shots he had taken for his infected foot gave him a bad case of hives.

Late Spurt Nets Terps 60-53 Win

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Maryland spurted in the last five minutes to beat out a Richmond team that furnished unexpected opposition, 60-53, last night at College Park.

The defeat was the ninth straight for Richmond. By winning, the Terps made their Southern Conference record 7-5 and kept alive their hopes for a berth in the conference tournament at Durham.

Spence Wright and Bill Brown led Maryland's second half comeback that wiped out a 27-21 Richmond lead. Wright, lanky freshman from Bloomsburg, Pa., accounted for 17 points, Brown 13.

Another Brown, Wes, was Richmond's high scorer with 15 points.

It took Richmond seven minutes to score its first field goal but once the visitors found the range they gave Maryland trouble, walking off with a 27-21 half time lead.

Maryland's shooting was off and the score after seven minutes was only 7-3 in its favor. With little Bernie Delsey setting the pace, Richmond crept up to tie the game at 7-all.

Spiders Hold Lead

Dalsey accounted for four field goals before he was taken out with three personals after 13 minutes. Art Haines, with 7 points, and Wes Brown, with 5, took up the slack and kept Richmond in front.

In the last five minutes, Maryland made a few menacing moves and cut into Richmond's 23-14 lead. Bill Brown scored four of his points in that space and sub Ron Siegrist dropped a basket.

But Art Haines and Al Rinaldi countered with field goals and kept Richmond's margin comfortable.

Minor League Salaries Running Too High

Oriole Pilot Says He Pays Beyond Limit

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP).—Manager Tommy Thomas of the Baltimore Orioles reported today the "fabulous" salaries being paid baseball's stars are reflected all along the line and most pilots, including himself, are being asked to pay beyond their limit.

The International League manager has fewer than 10 signed contracts as he prepares to head south next month for spring training.

"They're just asking too much," complained Thomas in reporting his contract troubles.

The "trouble" may have something to do with the Orioles today announcing signing of their second former major leaguer, Jimmy Wasdell, as insurance.

Wasdell Added to Squad

Wasdell, cut loose as a free agent after last season with Buffalo, saw big league service with Washington, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Cleveland. A southpaw, he can play either first base or the outfield.

Already in the Oriole fold is Lew Riggs, another veteran of experience with Cincinnati and Brooklyn.

Back to the "youngsters," Thomas hinted they had batter remember the "war's over" and things will have to "return to normal."

In this connection, he mentioned baseball club expenses are going up while the high attendance generated in the war can be expectd to recede.

Trouble All Over Country

"They've go to remember that in the minor leagues we can only pay minor league salaries," said the veteran of 30 years in the game. "I understand managers all over the country are running into the same high demands and that even some of the majors are having unusual troubles getting contracts signed."

The Orioles, however, aren't overlooking entirely building for the future. They also announced signing of three Maryland prospects, Vernon Taylor of Severna, Eddie Barton, jr., from Lansdowne and Bob Moreland of Bristol. They're all pitchers.

Barton and Moreland will be sent to Batavia, N. Y., in the Pony League and Taylor be taken South for a tryout in spring practice. He won 12 and lost 3 with Poughkeepsie las tyear.

Blind to Wrestle

Staunton, Va., Feb. 19 (AP).—A field of 70 wrestlers from eight Eastern State schools for the blind is expected to participate in the blind national wrestling tournament at the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind here this weekend.

The meet starts Friday night and will close Saturday night.

Beau Proves Tonight if He's Ready

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Beau Jack's comeback reaches the "you do or you don't" stage tomorrow night when he meets Terry Young in a Madison Square Garden 10-rounder. The winner earns a lightweight title shot with Ike Williams in April or May.

Except for Jack's two knee operations, there would be little doubt about the winner. Even so he is a 5-to-11 favorite over Young. A Brooklyn vet, staging a comeback of his own.

Twice the bouncing Beau has held the 135-pound crown and twice he has lost it since the days when he came a swingin' out of Augusta, Ga.

Almost a year ago to the day, on February 21, 1947, the Beau was carried from the Garden ring with a broken left knee cap after a bout with Tony Janiro. A knockout victim for the first time, Jack's boxing obituary was written in haste. It was believed that he never would fight again, certainly not in the Garden. But here he is, back again and angling for another crack at the title.

Beau began his comeback last November and polished off four mediocre foes before his first "test" in Chicago January 23. Jack broke the jaw of Johnny Bratton, a rugged customer who rated among the top 10 lightweights. He moved on to the Garden with five straight wins.

Actually Young is lucky to be in there with Beau. He was upset two weeks ago by young Paddy De Marco. That cost him a chance at Williams' crown February 27, then when Billy Graham, Jack's original foe, discovered he had a broken hand after a tune-up bout, Young was substituted.

Spence Signs With Bosox

Boston, Feb. 19 (AP).—Outfielder Stan Spence's acceptance of 1948 salary terms was aannounced today by General Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox. Spence is a recent acquisition from the Washington Senators.

Spence was sent to the Red Sox in a deal which gave Washington Al Kozar and Leon Culberson.

The Red Sox plan to use the lefthander at first base and in the outfield. Spence's batting average last season was .279.

Ruth Days Permanent?

New York, Feb. 19 (U.P.).—Plans to make Babe Ruth Day an annual event, celebrated in every baseball park in the Nation,, were announced today by Emory C. Perry, a director of the Babe Ruth Foundation.

Ruth was honored similarly on a special Babe Ruth Day last April.

The foundation, organized as a tribute to Ruth's career "as baseball's most picturesque and most popular figure" has been commissioned by the one-time American League star simply to 'help the kids of America."

McNeish to VPI?

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 19 (AP).—Bob McNeish, Navy's backfield coach, is "very much interested" in coaching football at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

He said today he understood he was being considered for the job and that a coach would be chosen by VPI officials in a week or two.

Paraplegic Basketball Team Will Play Here February 27

Kansas City, Feb. 19 (AP).—Playing dates for the cross-country exhibition tour of the wheelchair basketball team from Birmingham General Hospital at Van Nuys, Calif., were announced here today.

John Old, Los Angeles sportswriter and trainer of the team, said the paraplegic combat veterans would play nine games, including the one here tonight, on their tour.

"This tour is to decide the national wheelchair basketball championship," said Old. The team is carrying an extra set of wheelchairs for its opponents.

The schedule takes the veterans to Washington, D. C., February 27.

The 12 players have been discharged from the Van Nuys Hospital but still are under treatment there. They have been playing basketball for two years. The first season they won 24 and lost 2 games and so far this season they have won 10 and lost 2.

Money for the tour, which is being made in a chartered plane, was raised by Los Angeles newspapermen. A doctor, a registered nurse and three hospital attendants are traveling with the team.

"It's just a precaution," said Old. "As a matter of fact in the two years they have been playing not a single injury or setback has been traceable to basketball."

'Last Offer' Missing

Which is more important in producing a fine wine—grapes or skill?
A.
No question but what grapes are important . . . and that's why the Petri family selects only the finest.
But even the most superb grapes could not be turned into superior wine without the greatest of skill. The Petri family have been adding to their skill for three generations. You'll find this skill expressed to the fullest in every bottle of Petri Wine!

Maryland Ends Home Boxing Slate Against Citadel Tonight

Lions Play Providence Here Tonight

Three of the American Hockey League's top six scorers will lead the Providence Reds against the Washington Lions at 8:30 tonight on the Uline ice.

Carl Liscombe, top scorer with 84 points, and Harvey Fraser and Whitey Prokop, third and sixth with 72 and 65 points respectively, will make their last appearance here this season.

The Lions haven't won a game from Providence this year and aren't conceded much chance of winning tonight.

The Reds are the Eastern Division leaders and boast four high scorers beside their three leaders. Ray LaPlante has netted 62, Roger Bedard 61, Chuck Scherza 57, and John Chad 56.

Vets' Court Title Game Tomorrow

Silver Spring Memorial Post and John R. Webb Post of Frederick, Md., both undefeated, clash Saturday night for the Maryland State Veterans of Foreign Wars basketball championship at the Montgomery-Blair High gymnasium at 9:15 p. m.

In a preliminary, Garvin's Grill, last year's girls champions of Washington, plays Merrick, last year's runner-up. The preliminary starts at 8 p. m.

Winner of the men's championship game will compete in the National V.F.W. Tournament in Anderson, Ind., March 2-6.

Army Boxers Invade C. U. Tomorrow

Catholic University boxers will be reaching for their first win when they face Army at Brookland Saturday night. Cardinal Coach Eddie LaFond fears they'll be outreached.

The Cadets have the advantage on the Cards in both height and punch reach.

Charley Rohr, a 6-foot, 2-inch scrapper will be the only Cardinal who won't concede a height advantage. He'll face Army Heavyweight Bill Kellum, a newcomer to the West Point squad.

Other starters for the Cardinals will be Tom Cronin, Bucky Ennis, Johnny Arnold, Bill Maher and Frank Strasburger.

125 POUNDS—Tom Cronin vs. John Rasmussen.
130 POUNDS — Don Redmon vs. Vernon Quarterio.
135 POUNDS—John Arnold vs. Bill Hiestand.
145 POUNDS—Cal Nisson or Ray Calnan vs. Ralph Puckett.
155 POUNDS — Bucky Ennis vs. Robert Howell.
165 POUNDS—Bill Maher vs. Bill Caldwell.
175 POUNDS—Frank Strasburger vs. Pete Monfore.
HEAVYWEIGHT — Charley Rohr vs. Bill Kellum.

Cadet Coach's Son Fights In Feature

Maryland boxers are conceded a slight edge over The Citadel squad in the Terrapins' last home appearance at College Park tonight at 8 o'clock.

While both teams lost to Army, 4½ to 3½, Citadel edged South Carolina by that score in its last match. Earlier, the Terps scored a 6½ to 1½ victory over the Gamecocks.

Citadel's outstanding boxer is Dale Mathews, son of Coach H. L. (Matty) Matthews. Dale will compete either at 165 or 175 pounds. If he makes the lighter weight, he will meet Maryland's Bob Gregson whom he defeated last year in the Southern Conference finals.

Maryland is still handicapped by a lack of heavyweights. Against Citadel, Ken Malone again will move up from the 175-pound class. Eliminations bouts in the training room among Larry LoPrete, Bob Smith, Walter Lindquist and Bob Hafer will determine Maryland's starter in the next class. Hafer is the only bona-fide 175-pounder, the others are fattened up middleweights.

Monty Whipp, who started the season as Maryland's heavyweight is out. Bill Downs, considered one of the best heavy prospects in collegiate circles, won't be eligible until next season and John Burman left the squad.

There are about a thousand reserved seat available for the public.

Coast Dominates Wightman Squad

New York, Feb. 19 (AP).—Five California players were among the 14 young feminine tennis stars named today to the National Junior Wightman Cup squad.

The squad, announced by John C. Parry, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Junior Wightman Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, will be trained as this country's future representatives in matches with British women's teams. They were selected on the basis of their play during 1947.

Included on the list are Nancy Anne Chaffe of Ventura, Calif., the national girls' champion, and Laura Lou Jahn, 14-year-old Belmar, N. J., player who is one of the youngest ever to make the squad.

2 D. C. Girls Active In Conn. Ski Carnival

Two Washington girls will serve on the arrangement committee for the annual College Winter Carnival and Intercollegiate Ski Union championships which will be held at Middlebury (Conn.) February 26-28.

They are Miss Juliet Carrington of 3715 Woodley rd. nw., and Miss Shirley March, 4303 13th st. ne.

Philly Boxed 'Critical' After Brain Operation

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP).—Leroy Johnson, 18-year-old Philadelphia lightweight boxer, is in a critical condition at Temple Hospital today following removal of a blood clot from his brain.

Johnson, who was scheduled to fight Jimmy Sulla at the Met tonight, collapsed and fell unconscious while training Tuesday. The blood clot was removed Tuesday night by Dr. Michael Scott.

Miami Bout Delayed

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP).—The 10-round boxing match scheduled for Flamingo Park here tonight between Laverne Roach of Plainview, Tex., and Al Thornton of Rochester, Pa., was postponed until tomorrow night because of threatening weather, Promoter Dave White announced.

Conference's Top Trackmen in Terp Meet

Maryland's first annual invitation track meet in the College Park armory tomorrow night at 8 has attracted some of the top performers in the Southern Conference.

The meeting had to be restricted to eight teams because of space limitations. Events will be run on an unbanked track with 9½ laps to a mile.

Among the interesting events are the two-mile and 660-yard. In the distance race, North Carolina's Jim Miller and Sam Magill will compete. They ran one-two in the outdoor Conference championships last year. Facing them will be Bill Lidell, VMI; Dave Dubow, N. Carolina State; Ray Middleton and Joe Shelton, VPI, and Maryland's Howard Umbarger and Gene Greer.

In the 660, Maryland's Ed Matthews, three-time 440 conference champ, meets Bob Black, North Carolina's former national interscholastic half-mile champion at Mercersburg; Jim Jackson, Catholic U., and Navy's Joe Garibaldi.

Field events also have drawn formidable entrants. In the shot put, North Carolina's Bob Seligman will be on hand. Big Bob is the Southern Conference indoor and outdoor champion. Opponents include Navy's Jay Beller; Tony Dostanko, N. C. State and Ike Eichorn of Maryland. Eichorn won the conference javelin title with a record heave of 189.6 feet.

Leading the high-jump entrants is North Carolina's J. W. Moody, who won the conference outdoor championship with a 6:05 leap.

Complete list of schools entered includes Maryland, North Carolina State, North Carolina, Navy, Catholic U., VMI, VPI and Virginia. Other track events include the 880, mile and 2-mile relays, 60-yard dash, and high and low hurdles.

Xavier, Nativity Win In CYO Girls Games

St. Francis Xavier defeated St. Peter's, 20-14, and Nativity beat St. Dominic's, 30-18, yesterday in Catholic Youth Organization junior girls basketball league games at St. Patrick's gym. Ronnye Smith was high scorer for St. Francis Xavier with 10 points. Bunnie Jordon tallied 16 for Nativity.

Landon Five Beaten In Closing Seconds,

Al Hoblitzell hooked in a field goal with 30 seconds left to give Gilman School of Baltimore a 41-39 victory over Landon yesterday at London. Willie Willis of Gilman and Gil Bogley of Landon were highe scorers with 18 and 12 points, respectively. The loss was the fourth in 14 games for Landon.

Trainer Still Giving Fans Double Talk

Miami, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP).—Armed—the darling of the Florida racing crowd—may run against Assault in the $50,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah Saturday. But it'll be for sentiment's sake only.

Widener Day without Armed would be like Christmas without Santa Claus and Calumet Farm doesn't want to disappoint.

Armed has become a Hialeah fixture. He raced at the track as a juvenile, in 1943, and won the Widener the last two years under Jockey Doug Dodson.

"But it depends on how he breezes tomorrow," said Trainer Jimmy Jones after the morning workout.

"There's nothing wrong with Armed that a good rest won't cure," said Jones. "Time is what he needs and every day helps. I wouldn't want to say now whether he'll be out or in.

"If Track is O. K."

"He may run if the track is O. K., and he stays all right. The past four or five days have. But what he needs is several months of rest. A hard race might be a terrible thing for him now."

Around the track, they say it's a preetty safe bet that Armed will run.

Armed and Assault met for the first and only time in the $100,000 Special at Belmont late last summer. Armed galloped home the winner.

Assault did not train satisfactorily for the race and there has been a clamor for another duel. This time it is Armed—not Assault—who is reported unfit.

Wilson Jayvees Win

James Young scored 10 points to lead the Woodrow Wilson High Jayvees to their seventh straight victory yesterday, a 43-33 triumph over Coolidge High Jayvees, at the losers' gym.

Baguio Easily Wins at Hialeah

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP).—Baguio made a virtual one-horse race out of today's featured Saw Grass Purse.

Flying the red, white and blue silks of the Mariet Stable, owned by June Fink of Cincinnati, Baguio sprinted into a wide lead soon after the start and made merry with eight other veterans in the mile and a sixteenth turf course event.

The Romco Stable's almost neglected Fulgor 2d, paying $32.80 for place, edged out H. Ashton Richardson's Andantino for the place while taking a five lengths licking from the victor, a $13.90 for two chance.

G. W. Fencers Win

After defeating the YMCA fencers, 9-7, Tuesday night in the GW gym, George Washington University fencers announced plans for a three-weapon meet with the University of Virginia on March 20.

Delay Advised On Fishery Legislation

Richmond, Va., Feb. 19 (AP).—Governor Tuck and members of a bi-state fisheries commission have recommended legislation on seafood be postponed until after the present legislative session.

With the consent of Maryland, however, the bi-state commission studying fisheries in the Potomac river and Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries will continue its investigations.

The Maryland-Virginia commission recently called for a bi-state authority to regulate fishing in the Potomac, including oysters, and in the Chesapeake, with the exception of oystering. The report was opposed by Virginians, who contended that the commission was set up to deal only with the Potomac after "oyster war" difficulties between the two states last year.

On February 7 former State Senator C. O'Conor Goolrick advised Governor Tuck that Virginia and Maryland members of the commission felt action should be delayed.

In a letter to Goolrick, which presumably has been approved by tidewater county legislators and Charles M. Lankford, commissioner of fisheries, Tuck agreed that the legislation should be delayed.

The Governor also stated that he wouldask the General Assembly for a separate Virginia hydrographic and biological study to be conducted by the State fisheries laboratory. He said the results of the study could be made available to the Chesapeake and Potomac study group and the State of Maryland.

Governor Lane, when told of the Virginia decision, said in Washington, where he attended a Jackson Day dinner, that:

"While I have not had the chance to see either Governor Tuck's letter or that of Mr. Goolrich, I naturally would abide by thei pudgment as to the appropriate procedure that is to be presently followed with the Virginia Legislature.

"Of course, I very honestly hope that a plan may be adopted that will be of lasting benefit to both Maryland and Virginia."

Sandor Shows Promise in Debut Here

By Paul Hume

Gyorgy Sandor made his Washington concert debut last night in an all-Chopin program at Constitution Hall.

He gave a half-filled house the benefit of some beautiful playing, notably in the B Flat Minor Sonata. His tone has a gentleness which is reassuring in these days when it is too often the custom to beat the poor piano to a pulp. Thus the essential singing qualities of Chopin, without which the great Polish composer is empty, came through in lustrous fashion.

There were moments when we felt that a slight tendency toward a brittle touch, coupled with sparing use of the pedal, made Sandor's long phrases seem somewhat disconnected. This was a tendency which may have been due to the acoustical properties of the location from which we customarily hear concerts in the hall. Now that the first solo appearance is past, we hope to hear Sandor again in some of the far broader repertoire he commands so authoritatively.

Running simultaneously with the Chopin festival, a Festival of Jewish Music was being heard in Adas Israel Congregation. The program, planned by Cantor Jacob Barkin of that congregation, drew upon the music of such famous names as Mendelssohn and Ernest Bloch, as well as many of the composers whose religious and folk music comprise the wealth of Jewish music.

The concert reminded us of the rich heritage reaching into every realm of music that can be traced directly to the harmonic and emotional content of Hebrew songs and instrumental writings.

Some of Washington's most outstanding musicians, including Jan Tomasow, concertmaster of the National Symphony; Donald Homuth, cellist with the symphony, and Paul Callaway, organist of Washington Cathedral, added stature to the program. Cantor Barkin was joined by Benjamin Grobani in excerpts from the song literature of one of our most musical peoples.

Judge Acquits District Motorist

Charges of manslaughter and reckless driving placed against a 26-year-old District motorist in connection with the traffic death of Miss Virginia Sigman, 25, of Baltimore, were dismissed in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday.

Ardell R. Nicholson, 1925 I st. nw., a marble finisher, was acquitted of both charges by Judge Arthur P. Owens after he and another witness testified Miss Sigman, in reaching for a pack of cigarettes on the dashboard of the car driven by Nicholson, lost her balance and grabbed the steering wheel for support. The car, according to testimony, crashed into a truck parked on Baltimore blvd. near Muirkirk, Md., and hurdled over an 8-foot embankment.

Miss Sigman, thrown from the car after the crash, was dead on arrival at Leland Memorial Hospital.
